27 Per Cent Freight Rate Boost Asked By Railroads

Third Appeal to ICC in 8 Months Based on Fast Increasing Costs

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

For the third time in eight months the Nation's railroads have asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to let them raise freight rates.

Yesterday the roads requested that a rate increase of 16.7 per cent asked last July 3, be boosted to an average of 27 per cent.

ICC will hold a hearing on the July 3 request Tuesday, at which the railroads will seek a temporary increase of 10 per cent over present rates, to be effective immediately, and to remain in effect until final action is taken on the entire 27 per cent increase request.

Rising Costs Cited

Behind yesterday's sudden action was the railroad's claim that their operating costs have gone up 625 million dollars a year since the request for a 16.7 per cent increase was made in July.

They pointed to action this week, when an arbitration board granted non-operating employes, shopmen, clerks, etc., a pay raise of 15½ cents an hour. This will add 438 million dollars a year to the railroads wages burden, they declared.

In their action yesterday, the railroads asserted that wage increases, payroll taxes, and greater costs of materials and supplies had added three billion dollars a year to their operating expenses since 1939.

Yesterday's amended request calls for a 38 per cent increase on many articles in the East, north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers and east of the Mississippi, and a 28 per cent increase in the South and West.

Specific Increases

Yesterday's petition asked for specific increases in cents rather than in percentages on many commodities. The request, however, estimated the average as 27 per cent for the country as a whole above present rates.

The petition was filed with the ICC only a day after the Commission had approved higher rates for Pullman accommodations, which will give the Pullman company, now owned by the railroads, an additional 13 million dollars in annual income.

Also, the Commission recently approved a 13.6 per cent increase in coach fares among 60 Eastern railroads, and a six per cent increase in charges for Pullman seats.

Rates Boosted January 1

The last general rate increase became effective January 1, 1947, when ICC authorized average boosts, of 17 per cent.

Rail Strike Shuts Down 4 Steel Plants

33,000 May Lose Jobs

Pittsburgh, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—A wildcat strike of 1800 railroad workers today paralyzed production in four giant mills of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., and caused the daily loss of enough steel to build 6000 automobiles.

The strike, which may quickly idle as many as 33,000 steelworkers, will cause a daily loss of 21,000 tons of steel ingots, 15,000 tons of blast furnace pig iron, and consequently, about 16,000 tons of finished steel products.

It was called suddenly this morning by local leaders of the Brotherhoods of Railroad Trainmen and Locomotive Engineers against the Union Railroad Co., a subsidiary of United States Steel which hauls raw materials and finished products in and between plants.

Demand Pay Raise

The men struck because of an "accumulation of grievances." They demanded a wage increase and numerous rules changes.

Efforts were being made by trouble shooters of the two brotherhoods to halt the strike, which the unions called "unauthorized."

C. R. Cox, president of Carnegie-Illinois, a U. S. Steel subsidiary, said, "the company has been forced to shut down all of its basic operations in this district, except such minor operations as are required to prevent irreparable loss."

The Taft-Hartley labor law does not apply to the dispute, which is covered by the railway labor laws.

Blast Furnaces Down

Eighteen of the company's 19 local blast furnaces were down, and fires were being banked in 101 of 108 steel-making open hearths. Finished steel production was practically halted.

The company had planned to operate the plants at more than 108 per cent of theoretical capacity this week—exceeding the national average by more than 10 points.

The shutdown threatened to aggravate the national steel shortage. A company spokesman said much of the lost steel had been

Traffic Death Toll For Year Rises to 50, 8 Ahead of 1946 Pace

Traffic accidents claimed two young victims yesterday, one in the District and one in nearby Maryland.

They were Melvin Short, 7, 113 N st. sw., and Vincent Ring, 6, whose family lives on Crain Highway near Defense Highway in Prince Georges County.

The District traffic death upped the toll for the year to 50, eight more than this date last year.

The Short boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Short, was struck by a truck which police said was operated by Earl Robinson, 23, 327 M st. sw., at about 8:10 p. m. Thursday in the 1200 block of 1st st. sw.

He was taken to Gallinger Hospital where he was treated for head and internal injuries and a possible fractured right arm. He died late yesterday.

Prince Georges County police said the Ring child was struck by a car driven by Charles R. Zeuner, 66, of Highland Park, Pa., shortly before 4 p. m. yesterday.

Police said the Ring home is

Florida Seeking Aid of Troops If 'Red Tide' Returns

Mayor Bruce B. Blackburn of St. Petersburg, Fla., said here last night that the Strategic Air Command has been asked to make troops available from MacDill Field to help remove dead fish from Florida shores in the event of another "red tide."

Blackburn's a member of a four-man committee of municipal officials here to seek Federal assistance.

Red tides, the cause of which has not yet been determined, have washed millions of dead fish on Florida Gulf Coast beaches in recent weeks.

The Federal Works Agency told Blackburn and his committee that it is ready to proclaim affected beaches as "disaster areas" if more fish are washed up. Such action which would make Florida communities eligible to obtain war-surplus equipment such as trucks and bulldozers.

Auto Injuries Prove Fatal to Culpeper Girl, 9

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 5.—Alva Rose Simms, 9, only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Simms, of Culpeper, died early yesterday in University hospital, Charlottesville, from injuries received late Wednesday afternoon in an automobile-truck collision.

The little girl left her playmates on Main st. and started to her home about 50 feet away, when she paused for passing traffic. She was struck by a car as it overturned after it collided with the truck, loaded with sand. Carol Brown, owner and driver of the automobile, and his companions, Everett Clatterbuck and Fred Tinder, were thrown from the car. All three were hospitalized. State Police said the truck was operated by John W. Scott, 22, of this town.

Funeral services for the child will be held from the Culpeper Baptist Church at 2 p. m. Saturday, with burial in Fairview cemetery here. The child's father is an employee of the Robson Construction Company here.

Two Women Store Clerks Are Beaten in Holdups Here

Two women store clerks were beaten yesterday in separate daylight holdups.

In the first of the holdups, at Page's Dress Shop, 1200 H st. ne., the bandit escaped without loot when the screams of Miss Dora Lee May, 1221 Oates st. ne., frightened him away. But before he left, he beat her mercilessly about the face, causing bruises and loosening a tooth. This happened at 4:30 p. m.

In another holdup, a bandit entered Peoples Bakery at 910 4th st. sw., about 6:45 p. m. and struck Mrs. Anna Baker, 30, in the head with his fist. Mrs. Baker's husband, Tony, who was in the rear of the store, heard his wife scream. When he ran out he found her lying on the floor. Meanwhile her assailant had escaped, with approximately $10 from the cash drawer.

The same bandit who attacked Miss May attempted another holdup within an hour of the incident, police said, at Aristo Cleaners, 2122 18th st. nw. There, a man answering the same general description, approached Ruth Robinson, 2531 Benning rd. ne., an employe, and asked her for laundry. Then he put his hand in his pocket, said: "This is a stickup. Keep quiet."

He reached in the cash drawer and removed $27. The clerk said she screamed and the bandit ran from the store.

Miss May said she was alone in Page's Dress Shop. The man asked

President Replies With Praise for Brazil War Aid In Rio Address

By Frank L. Dennis
Post Reporter

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 5.—The future of the world rests in the hands of the United States, President Truman was reminded today by the chairman of the Brazilian house of deputy's foreign affairs committee.

The chairman, Joao Henrique, told the President during Mr. Truman's formal visit to Brazil's congress that "we all feel duty bound to support the United States in fighting for the survival of democracy on the face of the earth." Mr. Truman in reply spoke of the 125 years of United States-Brazilian friendship and Brazil's providing of air bases and strategic minerals in World War II. Then, interpolating an extemporaneous remark in a prepared speech, Mr. Truman said: "'and I'm here to tel lyou we are not a people who forget our friends when those friends are friends in need."

Chamber Hung With Flags

This interchange took place before a joint meeting of Brazil's house and senate in the chamber of deputies, with President Dutra sitting on one side of Mr. Truman and Melo Viana, president of the senate, on the other.

The circular chamber was hung with United States flags and yellow, green and blue flag of Brazil, with lavendar, green and yellow streamers festooning the marble pillars. Mrs. Truman, Margaret, and others in the North American party occupied a loge-like space just off the chamber floor.

Mr. Truman, Henrique, and Senator Arturo Santos, Senate leader of the opposition United Democratic party, all spoke feelingly of the long friendship of United States and Brazil.

Santos brought prolonged applause with the assertion: "The silenced voice of Franklin D. Roosevelt still speaks." It was made in connection with Santos' statement that the Rio treaty signed here Tuesday marks a new step in the aspiration of the common man for economic and political freedom.

Mr. Truman also said that "Brazil and the United States must continue to cooperate with their sister nations of the Western Hemisphere in the development of a strong and concerted force for the good of mankind." He declared that "The United States is resolved to support the United Nations with all the resources at our command."

Second Speech in Brazil

The President, making his second speech on Brazilian soil since he arrived to close the Quitandinha Inter-American Conference, described Brazilian-American relationship as one of "lifelong friendship."

Brazil and the United States, he said, "have common interests, common principles and common ideals" with the same beliefs in the "state as the agent of the people" and "the fundamental rights of man," the "same respect for the dignity of the individual" and the same moral code in the conduct of international relations.

He recalled his recent correspondence with Pope Pius XII, in which he said he "desired to do

Assembly Upholds His Policy by Narrow Margin Of 292 to 243

By Sidney Keller

Paris, Sept. 5 (NYHT).—The National Assembly gave Premier Paul Ramadier the vote of confidence he had demanded today after hearing him outline an economic program which he warned would mean greater sacrifices, less imports and tightening of food rationing and price controls.

The vote—292 to 243—was the smallest majority Ramadier has received in five votes of confidence since he took office in January. Had 54 right-wing deputies voted against the premier instead of abstaining his government would have fallen. The premier had pleaded with the Assembly to vote clearly for or against him.

National municipal elections are coming in October and no one wants to take Ramadier's vulnerable post before then. The assembly adjourned after the confidence vote to go politicking. It will reconvene November 13, after the elections.

The Socialist chief was said to have been so discouraged by the vote that earlier today he offered his resignation. But after a special cabinet meeting tonight and talks with President Vincent Auriol, Ramadier was reported to have withdrawn his resignation.

500,000 Leave Jobs

A few hours later, close to 500,000 Paris workmen left their jobs and rallied toward the Champs de Mars under the Eiffel Tower to protest against their dwindling bread ration and soaring food prices.

The demonstration was organized by the Communist-dominated General Labor Federation (GGT) which has 6,000,000 members throughout the nation.

The demonstrators tied up large portions of Paris traffic. Subways and buses had been halted earlier for one hour in a demonstration of sympathy.

Union leaders said more than 1,000,000 participated, but the demonstration went off without notable incident and workers dispersed peacefully as the supper hour approached.

Tear Up Ration Cards

The Paris strike topped a series of strikes and demonstrations which have been going on since last week. In several instances the demonstrators are reported to have forced their way into town halls and prefectures to tear up ration cards and government reports.

Premier Ramadier took these demonstrators to task today. In a speech delivered just before the confidence vote he told the Assembly, "neither strikes nor demonstrations will help our food situation."

The bread ration was cut this week from 250 to 200 grams, one fifth less than the lowest wartime ration. But the premier said France has only half the wheat crop needed to maintain even this reduced ration, and is not at all sure of making up the deficit by imports.

Ramadier said the only way to meet France's economic crisis is by submitting to more severe food and price controls and working harder.

"In another era," he said, "Poin-

U. S. Heavy Industries Ready To Aid Europe's Rebuilding

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Leaders of American capital-goods industries have already assured the Government that they will help in getting reconstruction goods to Europe under the Marshall Plan.

Their assurances have been so encouraging that some informed officials now foresee little need of using the Government's special powers to compel the export of certain types of goods.

As matters stand now, industry is ready to do its job as soon as Congress approves a Marshall Plan program and appropriates the necessary money.

The chief instrument for giving industrial leaders an understanding of the Marshall program, and of getting their support and help, has been Secretary Harriman's nonpartisan committee of business and professional leaders, appointed by President Truman last June. The committee's assigned task was to determine what reconstruction goods could "safely and wisely" be sent to Europe under the Marshall Plan.

Among the industrialists on this group are Hiland Batcheller, president of the Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp., Paul Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp., John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., and R. R. Deupree, president of the Procter & Gamble Co.

After hearing the European problem outlined to them at their first meetings, these and other members have now gone out to put the problem to industrialists in the field, and to see whether certain key industries were ready to meet exceptional demands from Europe.

They will not know, of course, how much Europe will need until they hear the proposals of the 16-nation European economic conference which has been meeting at Paris to work out a combined program of self-help plus American aid.

They will not decide how much America can send to Europe until they have also studied the reports of Government agencies and the recommendations of the Foreign Aid Committee of the House under

New Cabinet Is Announced By Sophoulis

Coalition in Greece Ready to Replace Tsaldaris Tomorrow

Athens, Greece, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Liberal leader Themistokles Sophoulis announced tonight that he had succeeded in forming a coalition government to replace the Populist cabinet of Premier Constantin Tsaldaris and that he expected his government to be sworn in Sunday.

It was understood Tsaldaris would meet Sophoulis tomorrow morning and go to the palace to hand in the resignation of himself and his week-old government, thus clearing the way for King Paul to appoint Sophoulis as Premier-designate.

Announcement that a new Greek government was in the offing climaxed a day of intensive negotiations and meetings among political leaders, with Loy Henderson, United States State Department representative, taking an important part in the discussions.

Rightists Placated

It was understood that the discussions ironed out disagreements with the extreme rightist elements of Tsaldaris' Populist Party, which were opposed to a coalition with the Liberals.

One of the main points of contention, which prevented formation of a coalition government a week ago, was over which party would control the important army post and thereby control the campaign against the guerillas.

Sophoulis' announcement indicated that agreement finally had been reached on this point.

He presented a program in today's discussions calling for general amnesty for political prisoners, the release of exiles and the treatment of guerillas as "criminals and not ideologists."

Henderson and United States Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh had lunch with King Paul, and Henderson said later that the Greek political situation appeared to be "brightening."

Thuringia President Disappears

Berlin, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Dr. Rudolf Paul, German Minister President of the state of Thuringia in the Soviet-occupied zone, has been missing for four days, it was disclosed today, and the belief grew in political circles that he had crossed into the American or British zones to escape growing political difficulties.

Paul, who is reported to have lost favor rapidly with Soviet occupation authorities, left Weimar, the Thuringian capital, on Monday with his wife, a chief interpreter and two police officers. He has not been seen since his automobile was observed speeding along the autobahn from Weimar toward Berlin.

Another automobile in which his wife was riding was found later near the Potsdam railway station in the Soviet sector of Berlin, it was reported by the British-licensed newspaper Telegraf.

American military authorities and German police have been alerted to watch for any clues that Paul might have entered the American zone."

Dr. Harold Koch, minister of economics of the state of Hesse in the American zone, was one of the last to see Paul.

Arriving back home in Wiesbaden after a trip to the Leipzig Fair in the Russian zone, Koch said he conferred with the missing Minister President all day on Sunday at Eisenach, on the Russian side of the border. He said Paul left with his wife by automobile Monday morning.

Congress Wants Facts On European Aid, He Warns, and Won't Write Blank Checks

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg yesterday put the question of a special session to aid stricken European countries squarely up to President Truman, with this warning:

"Congress will not act in the dark. And it is not going to write blank checks."

The Michigan Republican, one of four congressional leaders who have power to call Congress back on their own responsibility, indicated plainly they do not plan to do so.

He said he felt the responsibility is the President's if he has "facts" on the European situation to warrant such a call and a definite program to present.

Committees Study Situation

He said Congressional committees are now scouring Europe for information, and hence are not ready with a program of their own.

Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett hinted strongly at the possibility of a special session Wednesday. Lovett said conditions in Europe are deteriorating so fast emergency help may be needed in 1947 before Marshall Plan aid has matured.

It was learned on good authority yesterday that Secretary Marshall had not yet decided whether to recommend a special session to President Truman. In any case, Administration officials see no special session as possible or advisable until after the congressional committees now in Europe have come home.

The first date on the timetable now being discussed is the return of most of the congressional travelers, about October 15, then a reassembly of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate and the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House late in October. Finally, if the advocates of a special session have their way, Congress as a whole would be called back about November 15, to consider both a stop-gap relief grant and the longer-term Marshall Plan reconstruction program.

With Vandenberg in the middle, a sharp controversy on the issue developed on Capitol Hill.

Hatch Favors Special Session

Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.), a close friend of the President and strong advocate of a special session, recalled Marshall's report after the Moscow conference "that the patient was growing steadily worse while the physicians argued about the proper treatment."

Hatch, himself leaving on an information tour of Europe, said congressional investigations abroad need not interfere with a special session call.

"We, and other members of Congress engaged in like studies could and would return quickly and be ready for the session whenever it is called," said Hatch.

"For my part, the sooner we reconvene the better, especially as concerns any proposed relief for Europe. Even if nothing more than a palliative is to be administered,

Dr. Mary Emma Woolley Dies; Headed Mt. Holyoke 37 Years

Once Criticized Man as Head of Women's College

Mary Emma Woolley, educator, peace crusader and for 37 years the guiding force of Mount Holyoke College, died at Westport, Essex County, N. Y., yesterday at the age of 84.

Death came after a lingering illness at the Lake Champlain home of Jeannette Marks, her friend of 52 years.

Daughter of a Civil War chaplain and a native of South Norwalk, Conn., Dr. Woolley's career had drawn on a hardy New England vitality to attain renown in varied fields in addition to her academic accomplishments. She was born July 13, 1863.

Virtually all her mature years were linked with college life—as instructor at Wheaton College, professor of biblical literature and history at Wellesley College and finally as president of Mount Holyoke. Yet she became one of America's greatest women in the interest of peace, woman suffrage and the League of Nations.

She was the first woman ever named a delegate to an international disarmament conference (Geneva, 1932) and was named one of the 12 great American women leaders of the last 100 years.

Death came to her during self-imposed "exile" from Mount Holyoke in protest to the naming of a man as the college president after 100 years of women presidents. Friends said she hoped to the end that alumnae and trustees would reverse their decision and name a woman president.

Aside from Mount Holyoke, her chief interest was world peace—"the substitution of international understanding and arbitration for armed force." As

Baptist Clerics Call on Pope, Indorse Policy of Truman

Rome, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Four Baptist clergymen were received in audience by Pope Pius XII today, and reported afterward they had upheld the policies of a fellow Baptist, President Truman.

Mr. Truman was criticized here last week by another group of Baptist leaders whose spokesman, Dr. Duke McCall, executive of the Southern Baptist Convention, said the recent exchange of letters between the President and the Pontiff implied that "our Government is an ally of clerical totalitarianism."

Dr. Frank Norris, Detroit and Fort Worth pastor, was spokesman for the group received today. He said he read the Pontiff a statement saying:

"The Baptist preachers attacking President Truman in his efforts to stop Communism are certainly doing the bidding of Stalin, whether intended or not.

"They talk of Truman lining up with the Pope. But they are lining up with the Communist regime of Moscow.

"The issue for America in the world is not the union of a state and church, but whether we will have a church or no church, a state or no state, God or no God."

[Norris praised the Pope as "the only power in Europe standing like Gibraltar against communism," according to the International News Service.]

Dr. Norris said that when he banteringly suggested that the other Baptists feared the Pope "would convert Mr. Truman to Catholicism," the Pontiff threw up his hands and laughed.

Austerity Program Mapped in China

Red Ship Sails

China's Row Over Dairen Not for U. N.

Nanking, China, Sept 5 (U.P.)—China will try to settle the dispute with Russia over the Soviet-held port of Dairen outside the United Nations Security Council, the Foreign Ministry announced today.

Meanwhile, the Soviet repatriation ship Ilyitch, which heightened the dispute by defying the Chinese order "closing" Dairen, was scheduled to sail from Shanghai tonight for Vladivostok, Siberia.

Technically, the Ilyitch, because it touched Dairen en route from Vladivostok, was not granted permission to enter Shanghai. The ship come in anway on Sunday.

The Chinese then ruled that the vessel could not unload or load passengers or cargo. The Ilyitch took aboard some 1500 Soviet repatriates and after a special Chinese "gesture of mercy" planned to disembark a group of Catholic nuns and missionaries, including some Americans.

China "closed" Dairen after Russia failed to return the port to Chinese control despite an agreement to do so. No ship was to enter or leave Dairen, and any ship which did could not call at a Chinese port. The ban has been difficult to enforce.

But the Foreign Ministry announcement said China would not take the case to the United Nations, unless, as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said July 7, some evidence of Russian implication in the Chinese civil war could be found.

Gifts Banned, Gas Rationed By Government

Nanking, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Chinese government took a pot shot at the national equivalent of Santa Claus today.

It issued regulations calling for an end of the traditional exchange of gifts on feast days and launching a rigid austerity program aimed at everything from automobile operation to tardiness at social functions.

Kan Nai-kuang, secretary-general of the government's Executive Yuan (cabinet) which promulgated the decrees, concluded that enforcement would be "somewhat hazy." He said some prohibitions would be punishable by the police and others involved only "moral sanctions." The effective date is tomorrow.

The twofold purpose, he explained, was to save foreign exchange and domestic supplies by requiring stringent public and private thrift.

The program includes reductions of the number of public servants, nation-wide gasoline rationing, and eventual withdrawal of automobile licenses for all except essential operators such as doctors, bankers, industrial officials and producers of the necessities of life.

Gas Rationed, Cars Pooled

The gasoline ration was set at 60 gallons a month for automobiles and 100 gallons for heavy vehicles. Government cars were ordered pooled.

Kan estimated that 18 million persons were supported from Government funds, including soldiers and subsidized students. He said this list would be trimmed sharply.

Official dinners were limited to those on national holidays, for foreign guests, for important conferences and for soldiers newly returned from the civil war battlefields.

Instead of the traditional feasts of 15 to 20 courses, official and restaurant dinners were limited to seven dishes.

Newspapers Cut

All daily newspapers were restricted to eight pages, with no increase permitted those already publishing fewer.

Commercial dancing was forbidden and places of public amusement closed by midnight.

Also included were numerous regulations which Kan said were intended for time saving. Public meetings must start on schedule, and anyone more than a half hour late will be subject to undefined discipline.

"Persons who accept and fail to appear at social affairs, those who arrive late or those who leave early will be considered guilty of major breaches of etiquette," declared Kan.

The whole thing, he explained, may be regarded as a revival of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek's prewar and wartime "new life movement."

Hindu-Moslem Riots Kill 64 In New Delhi

New Delhi, India, Sept. 5 (U.P.)—Hindu-Moslem riots caused the death of 64 persons in New Delhi and its suburbs last night and early today, and authorities imposed a 24-hour curfew to keep the city from becoming an open battleground.

Mobs attacked shops and looted homes in the thickly populated suburb of Karolbagh. Police fired on the mob, killing at least 12 persons and wounding 20.

The heaviest clash was in the Suzimandi Mill area, where 33 were killed and 11 wounded.

Authorities said more than 100,000 Hindus and Sikhs in the Shakirgarh district were missing and at least 10,000 of them were believed to have been slaughtered when they attempted to break through hostile Moslem country to Hindu-ruled Kashmir State.

The main escape route was blocked by floods and it was feared that the Moslems had ambushed many more in the mountains.

More Strikes In Italy Due To High Costs

Rome, Sept. 5 (U.P.)—Labor demonstrations against low wages and high living costs spread through Italy today and the Labor Chamber in Florence threatened a general strike in Tuscany September 8 unless workers demands were met this weekend.

Textile, transportation, port and steel employes in various cities already were off the job and 600,000 farm workers in northern Italy had failed to reach an agreement with landowners.

At Prato, near Florence, 20,000 textile workers did not report to work today after the local labor council ordered a general strike.

Naples bus and trolley car conductors already had tied up that city's transportation in a protest walkout against the cost of living.

At Terni, workers banked fires at the steel smelter sand started a sitdown strike, demanding immediate wage increases.

Police were called out at Carrara to control disorderly demonstrators who threatened to sack the local prefect. About 20 arrests were made.

27 B-29s Arrive In U.S. Zone of Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 5 (AP). Twenty-seven of a flight of 31 United States Air Force B-29 Superfortresses—the largest group to fly to Europe this year—arrived at Giebelstadt air base in the American zone of Germany today.

The remaining four, Lieut. Col. Daniel Hawes, commander of Giebelstadt Airbase said, were delayed en route by engine trouble and are expected to arrive tomorrow.

Virginia Reduces Crop of Turkeys

Richmond, Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—Viaginia farmers this year will raise the smallest turkey crop since 1944, the cooperative crop reporting service said today.

The service estimated that 1,065,000turkeys are bein raised this year, 20 per cent fewer than in 1946, but said that the 1947 figure still is 26 per cent above the average for the five years 1939-43.

Reasons for the drop included unfavorable prices received after Thanksgiving last year, high feed costs, and uncertainty concerning the 1947 demand.

World's Future Rests in Hands Of U.S., Truman Told in Brazil

everything in my power to support and to contribute to a concert of all the forces striving for a moral world," and added, "in making that statement, I spoke the thought not only of my own country but of Brazil as well."

"Through the years," he continued, "we have learned that because there is agreement between us upon th fundamental principles of justice and equity, we can face our common problems with an assurance of agreement upon the ways and means of solving those problems.

War Proved Friendship

"The recent war gave convincing proof of our friendship. The mutual trust that exists between us manifested itself at an early date in the immediate response of your government to our need for air bases and for supplies of strategic materials.

"When both our countries were attacked, our people fought side by side until victory was attained.

"The bravery of your fighting men, against an experienced and resourceful enemy, cemented our comradeship and gave us another reason to feel a deep sense of pride in our friendship."

Appealing for continued good relations, the President said the problems of peace—"more difficult than we could have anticipated"—required "closest collaboration between us."

"The one essential is that we maintain our common ideals and our common principles of morality and justice" he declared in expressing confidence that the problems of peace could be solved if there is good will and forbearance.

U. N. Support Promised

Turning to the United Nations, the President said difficulties encountered in the "early phase" of that organization's life had only "increased our determination that it shall succeed."

"The United States is resolved to support the United Nations with all the resources at our command," he continued.

Referring to the hemisphere pact for mutual defense, the President said "we in this hemisphere have demonstrated to the world that right-thinking men can submerge their individual prejudices and their individual aims in the accomplishment of an agreement that will bring great benefit to the world."

He expressed deep appreciation for the reception accorded in Brazil.

"When the time comes to depart," he concluded, "I shall carry away in my heart strengthened confidence in the endurance of our two countries and in the goodness and generosity of the people of Brazil."

His Congress appearance highlighted President Truman's day. He walked in the garden of Laranjeiras palace and did much paper work.

British Delay State Ru' Over Steel

London, Sept. 5 (U.P.)—The British iron and steel industry won at least a year's reprieve from nationalization today when the powerful Trades Union Congress, meeting at Southport, agreed to delay to help maintain stability during Britain's economic crisis.

Giving in to the pleas of government ministers, TUC delegates representing more than seven million British workers, backed down on demands for immediate nationalization this year and rejected a "nationalize steel now" resolution, 4,857,000 to 2,360,000.

The congress was swung to the government's view by Supply Minister John Wilmot's assurances that a steel nationalization bill will be presented to the predominantly Labor Party Parliament during its present life—between now and 1950.

The point made by Wilmot, and accepted by the Congress was that steel would be nationalized by the existing Parliament but not necessarily in the next session.

As the Congress session drew to a close, members of the general council elected Miss Florence Hancock, chief woman officer of the Transport and General Workers Union and a member of the council since 1935, to the post of new TUC prseident. She is the third woman to hold the office.

Strike Truce "Too Late"

London, Sept. 5 (AP).—A board of trade spokesman said today in Leeds that even if 60,000 striking Yorkshire coal miners return to work immediately, "it is now too late to avert the closing of many textile and engineering works for two or theree days each week."

He added that the partial shutdown would have to continue "until the depleted coal stocks are replenished."

Bevin Critized

London, Sept. 5 (AP).—A qualified government informant said today that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's proposal to divide U. S. gold stocks was made "haphazardly and without premeditation" before the Trade Union Congress Wednesday to "stimulate a wide discussion."

This statement conflicted with the remarks of British and American authoritative sources yesterday who said Bevin's proposal had the backing of the British government. Foreign Office spokesmen have refused to make any formal comment on the Bevin suggestion to distribute "Fort Knox gold."

The informant, who is in a position to interpret Bevin's views, said the Foreign Secretary was firmly of the opinion most people would agree with him that maldistribution of gold was one of the fundamental causes of the present economic situation.

U. S. Army Protests Arrests by Slavs

Charges 'Illegal Detention' and 'Mistreatment'

Trieste, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The United States Army today officially protested the "illegal arrest and detention" and "mistreatment" of two American officers and four enlisted men who were seized at gunpoint by Yugoslav soldiers last week on the Morgan Line and thrown into prison.

The protest was prepared at the headquarters of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore, commander of the Eighty-eighth Infantry Division. It acused the Yugoslavs of seizing the six men in the American-British zone of disputed Venezie Giulia.

Moore's protest was filed through the American embassy in Rome and eventually will reach Yugoslav army authorities through diplomatic channels in Belgrade. Repeated protests since the Yugoslavs started seizing Moore's troops late in 1945 have done no good.

Still Held

Lieut. John C. Dwyer of Chicago and T/5 Willis Smith of Waycross, Ga., who were "arrested" a month ago are still in a Yugoslav prison.

The six men about whose seizure Moore protested were returned to their organizations yesterday. They were seized by Yugoslav patrols last Friday. They are Captains Clifford Shea of Randolph, Mass, and Jacob Conrad of Lexington, Ky.; T/3 Milan Borich of Denver; T/5 Steven G. Novotny of Uniontown, Pa.; T/5 Keiji Hashine of Honolulu, and Pfc. Richard Donnell of Humboldt, Ill.

Notovny, Hashine and Donnell were riding in two military trucks in the American 349th Regiment's sector when a Yugoslav patrol stopped them and took them east of the Morgan Line.

The two captains and Borich, an interpreter, were sent to a Yugoslav outpost to negotiate for the release of the three seized earlier. While they were negotiating, a Yugoslav patrol came up and took them prisoner.

Sleep on Sraw Mattresses

Shea said none of the Americans in the Yugoslav prison were allowed to communicate with U. S. representatives. He said they could not even leave their cells until their release was negotiated. Shea said their treatment in prison was the "poorest." He and the others had to sleep on straw mattresses on the floor. They had cold coffee and inedible bread for breakfast, soup and scraps of meat for lunch and strained soup for dinner.

Dwyer and Smith, who were seized Augusta 9, inadvertently stepped on a corner of Yugoslav territory while fishing along the Isonzo River.

Bevin, Maybe

No Molotov At Opening Of Assembly

Lake Success, Sept. 5 (AP).—Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov will miss the opener of the United Nations Assembly, but will come to New York later if he feels his presence is necessary, An informed source said today.

This indicated there might not be a meeting of the four-power Foreign Ministers' Council before the session arranged for London in November.

The other members of the Big Four Council—Secretary of State Marshall, French Foreign Minister Bidault and Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain are pledged to be here or are expected by the time the assembly convenes September 16. Bevin is the only doubtful one now.

The British delegation here has not yet confirmed the confident expectations of the secretariat that Bevin will be on hand. Some quarters speculated that he was waiting to see whether Molotov would come.

At present, Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Molotov's right-hand man in the foreign ministry, will lead the Soviet delegation.

Meanwhile, the United Nations secretariat lined up plans for a "driving" Assembly, with the hope that the session will be completed by November 15.

The Assembly shapes up in this fashion:

1. The first three or four days will be devoted to general policy declarations. All full Assembly meetings will be at Flushing Meadows.

2. The intensive committee work should begin by Saturday, September 20, at Lake Success.

3. There probably will be a special committee of all 55 member nations to deal with the Palestine issue alone.

4. The Assembly work will be expedited by the use of simultaneous interpretation both here and at Flushing Meadows, eliminating the time-killing consecutive translations of each speech.

The chief development in the contest for Assembly president was a prediction by one leading official that Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, stood a good chance to head the Assembly again.

Chile Closes U.S. Firm in Price Violation

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Grace & Co., large United States wholesale trading and manufacturing concern, was closed today by the government for 48 hours, on charges of violating price-control regulations.

Specifically, the commissariat of prices and supplie scharged that Jose M. Cousino, a Grace salesman, had sold sugar at the special price fixed for industries only to a grocer named Kinco Zaninovic, who in turn sold it to the de luxe Oriente dining rooms.

Cousino, Zaninovic and Pedro Pubill, a partner in the Oriente, were ordered arrested and banished to the Tarapaca nitrate desert.

A large poster fixed on the door of the Grace offices read: "Closed for disregarding the orders of the commissariat of prices and supplies."

In large newspaper advertisements, the Grace Co. said the deal between Cousino, Zaninovic and Pubill had been "entirely private" and that the commissariat had ordered the firm closed "without any previous investigation; without hearing us and depriving us of any means of legitimate defense."

As the government put teeth into price-control regulations, agitation against the high cost of living increased.

Two hand grenades exploded last night and early today in front of the homes of Arturo Olavarria, anti-Communist leader, and Bernardo Ibanez, leader of the Socialist faction of the Chilean Workers Confederation, strongly anti-Communist. There were no casualties.

The company proposes to extend its Winding Gulf Branch in Raleigh County from near Whitby 4.25 miles up Bowyer Creek, and to extend its Allen Creek Branch in Wyoming County for about 2 miles from near Wyco up Allen Creek. The new branches would serve coal and timber developments in the area.

British Send Troops to Meet Refugee Ships

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—British troops will be prepared to use tear gas and fire-hoses as "last resort" means of forcing the landing here of Jewish refugees en route from Palestine, British authorities said today.

[The Associated Press quoted a British government source in London as saying only 20 reporters out of 150 applicants would be permitted to witness the debarkation.]

Vaughn Berry, regional commissioner of Hamburg, and Air Vice Marshal H. V. Champion de Crespigny, regional commissioner of Schleswig-Holstein, revealed their plans for handling some 1400 refugees from the first of three transports, the Ocean Vigour, scheduled to dock early Sunday.

The Runnymede Park will be brought in Monday and the third transport, the Empire Rival, on Tuesday morning, a British navy spokesman said.

Bery said British soldiers, carrying truncheons, first would try to persuade the refugees to leave the ship. He hoped to achieve a peaceful landing.

But, he added, the hoses and gas would be "available" for "reluctant" use should the refugees balk.

The passengers on the Ocean Vigour will be transported to camps in locked railway cars under armed guard, De Crespigny said.

London, Sept. 5 (AP).—A Foreign Office spokesman declared today that Jewish children were being "shipped" to Palestine as illegal immigrants without their parents' consent and that Britain was preparing to take international steps to stop the "inhuman" traffic.

He said parents in Hungary of 13 children of the Exodus 1947, now en route to Hamburg, declared their children were shipped without their consent. He said the parents had asked for repatriation of their children.

The spokesman said the organization responsible was Hasomeir Hagair, a Marxist Jewish youth group.

2 Are Sentenced in N. Y. Pier Fee Conspiracy

New York, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—I. James Brody, ousted deputy commissioner of marine and aviation, and James V. Auditore, one-time millionaire stevedore boss, today were sentenced to serve from 3½ to 9 years in prison for conspiring to accept illegal fees for wharfage space on the city's piers.

Dr. Woolley, Educator, Dies

early as 1907, while attending a peace congress in New York City, Dr. Woolley commented on a scheduled military celebration with a question:

"If we really wish to develop the spirit of mercy rather than of cruelty, to exalt reason rather than violence, why not depict the enticing splendors of peace instead of the splendors of war?"

Held 19 Honorary Degrees

Dr. Woolley spent much of her childhood at Pawtucket, R. I., and was graduated from Wheaton Seminary at 21. She returned there to teach, took a trip abroad and entered Brown University to receive, in 1894, the first bachelor of arts degree ever awarded a woman. A year later she received a master's degree and in 1900 Brown gave her a doctorate.

She held 19 honorary degrees from 18 colleges and universities, Yale, Brown, Columbia, Smith, the University of Chicago and Bucknell among them.

On January 1, 1900, she became president of Mount Holyoke and served until July 1, 1937. During her tenure, the physical plant of the college grew from a value of a half million dollars to four million in 1937.

She suffered a severe cerebral hemorrhage in September of 1944, but rallied to keep in constant touch with several organizations in which she was an officer. Among these were Women in World Affairs (participation of women in postwar planning) and the People's Mandate.

Honors by the Score

Honors came to her by the score. Among them: Delegate to the Institute of Pacific Relations, Honolulu, 1925 and 1927; Kassovo Medal, Royal Red Cross of Yugoslavia, 1931; Susan Rosenberger Medal from Brown University, 1937; Monticello College Centenary Medal, 1938; Cristobal (Colon) Medal, 1940; Women's Centennial Congress honor to career women, 1940; Federation of Women's Clubs scroll for outstanding service in the field of education, 1941; Near East Relief Medal, 1944; King Christian X's Medal of Liberation, 1946.

She was a member of the National Clubhouse of the American Association of University Women in Washington; the Boston College Club; New York's Cosmopolitan and Women's University Clubs; Daughters of the American Revolution; Sorosis.

Her memberships in other organizations were numerous—American Association of University Women; American Civil Liberties Union; American Palestine Committee; Citizens Emergency Committee; Federal Council of Churches; Near East Relief Foundation; General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches; Phi Beta Kappa Senate and World Government Association.

them," Koch said, "until I reached the Leipzig Fair on Tuesday. A German criminal police officer came up to me there and asked me if I knew where Paul was. I asked him why and he replied, 'we believe he has vanished.'"

A dispatch to Der Abend in Berlin said the entire city of Weimar was cut off yesterday by police while a search for the missing official was under way.

Visitors returning from Leipzig said police established road blocks at short intervals and were examining automobiles headed for Berlin, and trains and buses leaving Leipzig.

The Telegraf, a Socialist paper, said Paul was at odds with many members of the party, including his deputy, Werner Eggerath, when the Munich conference for heads of all German provinces was held in the American zone three months ago. Paul was spokesman for the five provinces in the Russian zone, and he led the walkout of the Soviet zone delegates when the conference refused to take up political matters.

15 Chimps Arrive For Johns Hopkins

Philadelphia, Sept. 5 (AP).—There were monkeyshines aboard the Liberty Ship Robert C. Howe—but there would be, with 15 chimpanzees among the cargo.

The freighter docked here today after a 15-day voyage from West Africa and Capt. Charles Nelson said half the chimpanzees were given the run of the ship daily. The chimps, together with crates of birds and snakes, are consigned to Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., where they will be used in medical research.

N. Y. State CIO Backs Labor Party

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The New York State CIO today adopted a resolution indorsing the American Labor Party in a disorderly session which brought charges and countercharges from the convention's 1200 delegates.

Opponents of the resolution became so disorderly that President Louis Hollander had to adjourn the morning session early to keep the convention under control.

Main opposition to the resolution came from Jack Rubenstein, State director of the Textile Workers Union, who argued that the union should not indorse the ALP but should depend on the CIO Political Action Committee in the coming cmapaign.

Delegates from the United Auto Workers Union also opposed the resolution.

After Hollander announced the resolution had received a majority vote, opponents of the measure jumped to their feet demanding a roll call. They demanded that the convention floor be cleared of all visitors, charging that "visitors" were voting on the resolution.

Hollander rapped his gavel for order several times and finally had to adjourn the session.

Today's demonstration was the first time in the eight-year history of the State CIO that any opposition had arisen to support of the ALP, wheih draws its voting strength from the CIO.

Sponsors of the resolution expected no trouble when the measure was introduced. It had been approved by the executive committee by a 4-to-1 vote after a right wing move to withhold indorsement of ALP candidates was rejected.

Wallace Slates 10 Talks

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Henry Wallace will make 10 speeches in Eastern Seaboard cities between September 30 and October 15, his New Republic office announced today.

The former Vice President will address meetings at Boston, September 36; Lowell, Lynn and Cambridge, Mass., October 1, with two meetings at Cambridge, Springfield, Mass., October 2; Pittsfield, Mass., October 3; New Haven, Conn., October 8; Providence, R. I., October 10, and Baltimore, October 15.

Deputy Premier of Hungary Denies Ouster by His Party

Budapest, Sept. 5 (AP).—Deputy Premier Arpad Szakastis, leader of the pro-Communist faction of the Social Democrat Party, denied today that he had been removed from his party post of secretary-general.

He added, however, that if his "connection" with the party rank and file and "old trustworthy officials" should be broken, "I shall leave of my own free will."

Both the Social Democrat and Smallholders Parties of Hungary have been in turmoil since last Sunday's elections, with anti-Communist factions reportedly seeking to purge leaders collaborating with the Communists, who dominate the coalition governments.

Meanwhile, definte expressions of the Communist attitude on maintaining the coalition were expected to be made tomorrow, when the Communist Party is to stage a "victory demonstration" in Millennium Square.

Coal Mine 'Blaze' Proves False Alarm

Richwood, W. Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—Fears of fire underground were dispelled yesterday as 23 miners were safely evacuated from the Richwood-Sewell Coal Co. mine 12 miles from here.

Superintendent James Sadilla said all men at first reported trapped in the pits when a conveyor belt became overheated had walked out unharmed.

Fourteen petty officers or warrant officers who participated in the sabbing tests got 10-year terms.

Corn, Oats Set Price Records For Third Day

Prices on major commodities continued going up on the Nation's commodity exchanges yesterday, many registering new all time highs.

Among the latter were corn and oats, which set new records for the third consecutive day. September corn sold at one time for $2.52½, and oats at $1.18¾, both far above any previous highs.

Lard went up two cents a pound, although it still is under OPA ceilings.

Butter in the Chicago wholesale market advanced three cents. Butter, 92 score, sold at 81 cents wholesale. Eggs also went up as much as three cents a dozen, selling as high as 59 cents on best grades.

Such varied commodities as cotton, linseed oil, and Brazilian cocoa joined in the upward spiral.

The Associated Press index of wholesale prices of 35 commodities, reached a record high for the third day in a row. It stood at 191.58. Last week it was 187.46 and a year ago only 140.6. The price level of 1926 equals 100 on the index.

In an effort to stem the wild price gyrations on the Chicago Board of Trade, the board's directors voted to raise margin requirements on wheat, corn and oats futures.

The new down payments per bushel, effective today, are 35 cents for wheat and corn and 30 cents for oats. The old scale was 30 cents for wheat and 25 cents for corn and oats.

Nash Plans Layoff

Milwaukee, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The Seaman body division of Nash-Kelvinator announced today that a shortage of steel would necessitate a night shift layoff of about 800 workers.

The layoff, expected to last two to three months, will begin next week, company spokesmen said. During the layoff, the company was expected to reduce its output from 540 units to 400 daily. Corresponding layoffs were expected at the Kenosha Nash plant, which produced automobiles from the bodies assembled here.

Baled cotton 10 cents per 100 pounds; fresh fruits and vegetables, 20 cents per 100; sand, 60 cents per net ton; salt, 3 cents per hundred; fuel wood, 12 cents per hundred; cement and lime, 9 cents per hundred; and sugar, 18 cents per hundred.

Announcement also was made yesterday that the Railway Express Agency had granted a wage increase of 15½ cents hourly to 65,000 employes. The boost, retroactive to September 1, is the same amount given earlier this week to approximately a million railroad workers.

Grain Crop Losses Will Cut Shipments to Needy Abroad

The Midwest's weather-damaged corn crop has forced this country to reduce its goals for shipments of grain to hungry nations overseas, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson declared last night.

Referring to the "bad weather that has seriously damaged the corn crop," Anderson declared:

"Although we have had a record crop of wheat, our total grain supply this year will be much smaller than last year. The reduction will amount to more than last year's grain exports of over 563 million bushels.

"This Government intends to do its utmost to ship grain where it is needed, but it is now evident that it will not be possible to ship as much this year as we did last year."

Confirms Report

Anderson's declaration, made in a radio address, was the first public acknowledgment that a reappraisal of this country's grain shipments was under way. The Washington Post on August 23 reported that the tremendous drop in corn crop prospects would force such action at once.

"Aside from the fact that our grain supplies are smaller this year," the Secretary added, "foreign countries have fewer dollars to spend for our grain. There already are ominous signs of foreign governments' interest in grain purchases from us falling off because of their shortage of dollars with which to pay."

Anderson admitted that this country was paying heavily in soil deterioration for the tremendous crops being produced to meet foreign demands.

Soil Heavily Drained

"We continue to drain our soil fertility by using much of our land too intensively," he said, "not taking time in our crop rotation for enough grass and legumes.

"We are even plowing land in the plains that is sure to blow away in dust storms.

"Probably half of our cropland has been subject to erosion at some time during the year. Farmers know this is serious.

"They want to establish a permanent agriculture. They would only be too happy to shift to greater production of milk, meat and other livestock products.

"This would enable them to meet the wants of United States consumers in this period of good purchasing power and at the same time would enable them to take better care of the soil."

The first court challenge of the National Labor Relations Board's action in "freezing" 3500 cases until union officers sign non-Communist affidavits will be touched off Monday by the CIO oil workers.

The Taft-Hartley Act requires union officers to swear they are not Communists, else the unions cannot take advantage of the board's services. NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham has ruled that if any officer of a national labor organization, such as CIO and AFL, refuses to sign, no unions affiliated with the organization can use the board's facilities.

Before the Taft-Hartley Act became fully effective August 22, an election was called among 41 production workers of the Deep Oil Development Co., in Wichita and Archer Counties, Tex., to determine their choice of a collective bargaining agent.

40 Ballots Impounded

The deadline for receiving the ballots, cast by mail, was August 29. Forty ballots were received by then, and Dr. Edwin Elliott, regional NLRB director at Fort Worth, Tex., impounded them.

On Wednesday, the union petitioned Federal Court at Fort Worth for a preliminary injunction requiring Elliott to open and count the ballots.

Arguments on the question will start in Forth Worth Monday. Officials of the National CIO here said they were not directly involved in the case, and it was up to the Oil Workers attorneys to determine just how broad would be their challenge.

They could widen their test case to deny the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act's requirement that union leaders swear they are not Communists. Or they might raise the issue of the retroactivity of the requirement, which technically was not in effect when the election was called.

A NLRB official said that if the court upset Denham's ruling, the case undoubtedly would be carried to the United States Supreme Court.

Gives Unions 20 Days

Denham has allowed unions 20 days after receipt of notice to comply with two Taft-Hartley provisions before their pending cases will be cleared by the board. One of these calls for the non-Communist affidavits. The other calls on unions to register with the Labor Department their constitutions and by-laws, financial reports, dues and fees collected and the pay of officers.

First of these reports and affadavits will be due September 29, because the board started mailing notices to some unions on September 2. Sunday are excluded in the 20-day waiting period.

The AFL and CIO have not announced their policy on the question of signing the non-communist affidavits. CIO vice presidents, meeting in Pittsburgh Thursday, put off their decision until the CIO convention in Boston beginning October 13. The AFL executive council will take up the question in Chicago next week.

Meantime George Q. Lynch, president of the AFL-Pattern Makers League reiterated his refusal to sign the type of affidavit required by Denham. In a letter to Denham, Lynch said the affidavit was too vague and could "be employed to destroy basic freedoms through fear."

"We believe that it is our right to denounce and disclaim all forms of totalitarianism by name and we consider it to be your public responsibility to name them," he said.

Tobin to Give Statement

Seattle, Sept. 5 (AP).—Lester M. Hunt, public relations officer for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said today Daniel J. Tobin, union president, will issue a statement from Indianapolis that the anti-Communist provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act will be fully complied with by the union.

Ching Sees Labor Peace A Long Process

By The Associated Press

The Government's new chief mediator, Cyrus S. Ching, yesterday promised to "do everything possible" toward industrial peace.

Taking over the leadership of the vastly larger Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, Ching told reporters after being sworn in as director of this new agency:

"There will be no miracles. The attempt to build better labor-management relations is a long, slow process but we hope to make a real contribution.

"Sometimes I think that more progress is made by making haste slowly than by trying to do something spectacular."

The new service was set up under the Taft-Hartley law, which removed dispute conciliation work from the Labor Department and put it under the agency Ching now heads. He is the former industrial relations director for the United States Rubber Co. At 71, Ching has served on Government boards from time to time in labor-management disputes.

Ching declined to speculate on prospects for enduring industrial peace but said "I sincerely hope we will have peace and this agency will do everything possible to see that we have it."

He said he is unfamiliar with the East Coast shipyard strike involving 35,000 CIO marine and shipbuilding workers. His assistants held conferences on this dispute yesterday, reporting they were largely exploratory talks."

This is currently the nation's largest strike.

Bridges Fears War Sacrifices May Be in Vain

Cleveland, Sept. 5 (AP).—Asserting that winning the peace was the most momentous issue facing America, Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) declared today the country's sacrifices in the last two wars would be wiped out unless "some means is evolved to stop" Soviet "barbarians" and their "Russian war machine."

Terming Russia a "threat to peace," Senator Bridges told the eighty-fourth national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars that the United States has had "world leadership thrust upon us."

The veterans in a resolution adopted at the encampment, slapped at former Vice President Henry Agard Wallace for criticizing the Nation's foreign policy before Europeans and asked penalties against sponsors of any similar speeches.

The resolution was prefaced with a "whereas" clause that described Wallace's recent tour of Europe for speeches "against the foreign police of the United States" as "an insult to the citizens of the United States."

Also adopted was a resolution asking Federal bonuses of up to $5000 for World War II veterans.

Other resolutions adopted advocated:

erans similar to those which Spanish-American War veterans now receive;

Pensions for World War I veterans;

A change in Federal income tax laws to permit World War II veterans to file returns on income average over a 5-year period;

A Federal drive on income tax evaders and an increase of Bureau of Internal Revenue agents from the present 27,000 to 50,000 with veterans getting preference for the new jobs.

In an earlier address, the 15,000 VFW delegates heard Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commanding general of the United States Air Defense Command, call for a "ready for battle" regular air force of 10,000 modern aircraft and 400,000 trained men.

Urging a six-point program for improvement of America's aerial forces, General Stratemeyer declared the plan would "reestablish unbeatable air power in America," and added, "with this brand of air power, coupled with a strong Army and a fit Navy, we Americans need have no worries of a military nature."

Bridges said: "Winning of the peace is undoubtedly the most momentous issue facing America today. Within the United States our job is relatively simple. But in Europe, in the Near East, and in the Pacific our task is as arduous is it is critical.

Sacrifices May Be in Vain

"For unless we are able to find a solution to the confused problems of our foreign allies, unless we can at once check Russian aggression and cut out the cancerous growth of communism in friendly countries, we may yet find our hard-won victories and bloody sacrifices on the fields of battle to have been in vain."

"For a long time after VJ-Day," he continued, "many of our friends and neighbors harbored the delusion that the roots of aggression throughout the world had been torn out, that with the capitulation of the German Nazis and Japanese warlords we should truly have 'peace for our time.' The awful irony of those words of Neville Chamberlain at Munich may yet be repeated.

"On VJ-Day many of our friends and neighbors had forgotten that the Russian colossus which stands astride half of western Europe is the same Russia which had offered Hitler bases and submarines in his war on France and England, that it was the same Russia which invaded and pillaged Finland in 1939-40 . . . which devoured Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, the same Russia, in fact, which in an unspeakable display of indecency cold-bloodedly at down with Hitler and partitioned a prostrate Poland.

"These friends and neighbors were forgetful of the cruel barbarity which power-mad Communists had practiced on their own fellow Russians, of whom an estimated 12 million, or 16 per cent of all adult Soviet males, lie in labor and prison camps in Siberia for so-called political crimes, such as listening to foreign broadcasts.

Honied Words Behind Doors

"Behind closed doors at Yalta, and Tehran and Potsdam with honied words and promises of cooperation these same barbarians beguiled our leaders into believing their sincerity," Senator Bridges declared. "Yet, call the roll of this ally of ours:

"Democracy has died in Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Romania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Albania, Hungary, Poland, Finland, and one-half of Germany. Wounded, if not mortally stricken, are Greece and Austria. Czechoslovakia has been surrounded, if not already captured. France and Italy, still on their feet, fight desperately for their sovereignty.

"In other words, within two years after Hitler's fall and without firing a shot, Russia has already consumed nearly all the gains which Hitler acquired through years of warfare and political chicanery."

"It is obvious," continued the Senator, "that unless some means is evolved to stop this Russian war machine, all the sacrifices which you and millions like you have made in the past two wars will have been in vain.

"I do not regard a third world war as inevitable," he concluded. "I have a sincere hope and trust that open diplomacy based on American ideals and backed by a strong America may yet bring about a peaceful solution to the present open conflict between democratic liberty and Communist slavery."

asked for change, she said, and she sent him next door.

In a few minutes he returned, and asked to see merchandise in the rear of the store. When she accompanied him there, he grabbed her and forced her into a dressing alcove, Miss May said.

Coroner Jury Holds Youth In Auto Death

A coroner's jury yesterday found a 22-year-old youth responsible for the hit-and-run death of a retired policeman and declared accidental the traffic death Tuesday of a two-year-old girl.

George E. Brent, 22, of 2620½ Nichols ave. se., was held for action of the grand jury in the death of Edwin M. Jett, 79, 1434 W st. se.

Jett, who was on the Metropolitan Police force 36 years, died June 25 of injuries suffered June 7 when struck down by a car while crossing Nichols ave.

Cab Driver Released

The jury freed Paul C. Richardson, 26, a cab driver of 502 62d pl. ne., who had been held on a technical charge of manslaughter for the death of Josephine Estelle Pugh, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pugh of 1137 New Jersey ave. se.

The child was struck by a taxi as she ran between two parked cars to join her mother.

Police Sergt. Edward H. Sennott of the Accident Investigation Unit, testified that Brent's car was found to have dents in the hood and a loose rim on a headlight.

Witness Heard Thud

Philip Cornfield of 804 Delafield pl. nw., told the jury that while driving home along Nichols ave. the night of the accident he saw Jett start across the street in the middle of the block. He said he had passed him when he heard a thud. He stopped his car and saw the elderly man lying in the street.

Residents along Nichols ave. testified that the accident happened on a rainy night and that the impact could be heard inside their houses.

Mrs. Pugh, testifying in the death of her daughter, wept as she told of haling the truck to purchase bananas for her three children. She had started across New Jersey ave., she said, when she stopped to let the cab pass. She did not know the child had been hit until she saw her emerge under the wheels.

Mrs. Smith Ends 30 Years Federal Service

Mrs. Hazel Q. Smith, chief of the audit liaison section of the central office control division of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, retired yesterday, after 30 years' service.

More than 100 friends and fellow workers crowded into a Commerce Department room to present the smiling, fifty-ish veteran with gifts and extend their best wishes.

Mrs. Smith was with the Signal Corps in 1917 when Army aviation was under that branch, and in 1926 joined the Department of Commerce'se Aeronautics Branch, later the CAA.

Dubbed "Mrs. Deduct"

"In my time," she said, "I've told a lot of the big shots they couldn't do this or that."

"Why, they've called me 'Mrs. Deduct' for the past 15 years," she laughed. At one time, she explained, she had charge of expense vouchers, and occasionally it was necessary to refuse certain expenses.

Mrs. Smith received a large purse, silver bracelet, an inlaid wod box, and many other gfits. She wore a lei of orchids which had been sent by friends in the Honolulu office.

Both Glad and Sorry

She and her husband, William H. Smith, plan to leave Washington next week for a short visit in her native Pennsylvania.

After that, it's a trip to the home they bought last May in Lakeland, Fla. There, she plans to do "nothing." Perhaps she'll take up the piano again, she sadi, and she'll do some gardening. But she has nothing in mind beyond that.

"I'm glad and I'm sorry its all over," she said. And then, almost apprehensively—"It's going to be so different."

Candy to Rival Woman Sentenced For Sending Poiso

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Mrs. Anna Hanrahan, 52, Davenport, Iowa, socialite and book seller, was given three years probation today after she admitted mailing poisoned candy to a woman rival for the affections of a 36-year-old man.

She pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle to mailing a box of poisoned candy April 8 to Miss Rosetta O'Shea, 39, Rock Island, Ill.

She said she had learned that Wilbur Allen, Rock Island, was going to take Miss O'Shea to a party, so she sent the candy "just to make Rosetta sick."

Just as she was going to eat a piece of the candy, Miss O'Shea said, she noticed it had been tampered with. She put it back and took the box to police.

Shortage of Dollars Cuts U. S. Exports

From Paris

Kennan Back With Data on Needs Abroad

Further details of what Western Europe will need from the United States, both in short-term relief and in long-term reconstruction goods, were brought to Washington yesterday by George Kennan, chief of the State Department's policy planning staff.

Kennan

Kennan returned from Paris after a hurried trip to consult with American officials there and with leaders of the 16-nation European economic conference.

He saw Secretary Marshall only briefly after reaching the State Department, but over the weekend expects to write a complete report of his Paris discussions, with recommendations for future American action.

U. S. Position Clarified

His assignment in Paris was, firstly, to bring Undersecretary Clayton and other American officials up to date on discussions here, and secondly, to give guidance to the Europeans on what kind of program might be acceptable to the United States.

As a result of his first visit, there is a good prospect that the Europeans will put greater emphasis in their coming report on productive measures of self-help.

He is believed to have brough estimates of Europe's emergency needs between now and the date when American help might begin to come under the Marshall Plan.

Estimates of Needs Vary

One report, never denied or confirmed, said Undersecretary Clayton had placed these emergency needs at 2½ billion dollars; another placed them at a billion. Informed sources here believe both these figures to be too big, and for these reasons:

1. The chief emergency this winter is expected to come from France and Italy, both of which fear they will run out of dollars before the Marshall Plan can get under way. Other countries, including Great Britain, are not in such an acute position.

(2) The commodities involved are chiefly wheat and coal; capital equipment can wait until the Marshall Plan begins to work. The October allocation of American grain will provide approximately 126,000 long tons of wheat and flour for France and 115,000 for Italy. In addition, France has been taking about 1,200,000 tons of American coal per month and Italy about 650,000.

Problem Baffles

Assuming both countries will run out of dollars some time this winter, the problem is therefore one of providing dollars for their wheat and coal for three or four months. Certainly this would not come up to 2½ billion dollars or even a billion, as officials here calculate it.

It may be the Kennan will disclose unexpected emergency needs of other countries which have been hit by the ending of British sterling-dollar convertibility and find themselves suddenly short of dollars for vital needs. But government economists here would be surprised to find other countries as badly off as France and Italy. Even Italy has not yet spent half of the 125 million dollars allocated to her under the congressional post-UNRRA relief program.

The problem that baffles officials here is not the size of the amount needed as a stop-gap, but the difficulty of getting it in time. Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett confessed on Wednesday that he had no idea how it could be provided, and he hinted that a special session of Congress was the only course.

anything but bright. Dispatches from Salonika described an alleged battle by "Yugoslav national troops" (now further identified) against Marshal Tito's forces on Belos Heights inside Yugoslavia and near Bulgaria.

Other dispatches told of guerilla clashes with Greek regulars around Mount Grammos and in villages near Drama. In one case, the guerillas were said to have fled across the Bulgarian frontier.

Reports from Arta in Epirus said the guerillas had burned 11 villages in that area in the last few days and behaved "in a worse manner than the German occupiers."

Seventy-five hundred refugees were said to have escaped from the villages to Arta where they were being sheltered in schools and churches.

Defends Comic Books Against Police Charge

Butler, Pa. (U.P.).—Comic books have nothing to do with juvenile delinquency because for the most part the "good guy" in the color classics wins out.

This was a magazine dealer's retort to charges of the Pennsylvania Police Chiefs Association that crime stories in comic books had a bad influence on children.

"In the comic books, right always wins out," said the dealer, who claims comic books sell in greater quantity than any type of magazine.

Shipments Drop For Second Month After 2-Year Climb

The shortage of dollars abroad, which brought about a temporary modification of the British-American Loan Agreement last month, was reflected in export reports yesterday.

For the second month in succession exports declined in July, the Census Bureau reported.

Until the June report, American exports had had a continuous rise for more than two years.

Exports in July totaled 1151 million dollars, the lowest since February. They were seven per cent under the 1242 million registered in June, and 19 per cent below the postwar high of 1422 million in May.

Commercial exports (all except lend-lease, UNRRA and other foreign aid programs) amounted to 1124 million compared with 1201 million in June.

The July figures do not include three million dollars in shipments made under the Greek-Turkish aid program.

In his report on economic condition to Congress President Truman on July 21 referred to the "extraordinary excess of exports over imports" as one of the "temporary props to our economic system."

While exports were shrinking, imports from other countries, which are the natural medium to pay for exports from us, also were going down. Imports in July were only 449 million dollars against 466 million in June. This is the lowest figure imports have reached since March.

care was able to solve the problem by an energetic fiscal and monetary policy. These methods were sufficient in 1926 and 1938 in a France that was prosperous and with increasing production these means no longer suffice today, when reconstruction of the nation is hardly begun."

After a cabinet meeting this evening he announced a four-point program calling for:

1. Immediate action to bolster the French economy;
2. Efforts toward European collaboration;
3. Fiscal and budgetary reforms to assure a balance between France's resources and her needs;
4. Administrative and military reforms.

Navy Bureau Wins Highest Design Award

The Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks has received the Bronze Medal—highest architectural award for general excellence in design—at the tenth annual exhibition of the Association of Federal Architects.

A committee of nationally known architects selected the Navy bureau's exhibits in a competition with designs from every Federal agency which maintains its own architectural staff. The exhibition, which is at the National Museum, will run through September 16.

The Bureau of Yards and Docks' entries marked the third time it has carried off top honors. Bronze Medals were won in 1938 and again 1940.

Howard C. Sullivan, head architect of the bureau, said the emphasis in his section had always been "on planning and design."

"And competitions like this," he said, "let us know whether we're ahead or behind in the field and where we do stand."

The bureau's designs for the contemplated expansion of the Naval Academy received first prize for site planning and presentation, and for design sketches.

The plans and designs were the work of O. A. De La Rosa, of 2101 Varnum st. ne., and T. A. Pope, of 8314 Carey Lane, Silver Spring.

The presentation and execution were done by L. R. Warthen, of McLean, Va.; Howard Page, of Vienna; E. D. Thomas, 1020 19th st. nw.; John Law, 2201 S. 2nd st., Arlington, Va.; J. H. Dugan, 4221 32nd st., Mount Rainer; and J. S. Furr, 3512 36th st. nw.

Winning design sketches were the work of De La Rosa, William Suite, of 2432 Tunlaw rd. nw.; D. S. Johnson, 9405 Thornhill rd., Silver Spring; and M. Gochnauer, 1138 Connecticut ave. nw.

Blind Beggar Gets 21 Years in Rape Of Baltimore Girl

Baltimore, Sept. 5 (AP).—A blind beggar, 31, was sentenced to 21 years imprisonment today for the rape of a 6-year-old girl, and his wife was sentenced to a year in the reformatory for an attack on the girl.

Judge Joseph Sherbow noted in pronouncing sentence that Elmer Meadows maintains a legal residence in Ironton, Ohio, draws a $50 monthly pension there, but lived in Baltimore and collected as much as $50 weekly begging on the streets.

The child lived nearby, but had been staying temporarily with Meadows and his 24-year-old wife. Judge Sherbow said Meadows and his wife lived in squalid quarters and spent all the money they could get on drink.

"His handicap does not justify the kind of parasitical existence he has led," the judge said. "He shows no remorse and has a completely perverted attitude toward society. In this whole sordid mess there is one glimmer of hope—the court's medical officer says there is a real possibility his eyesight may be restored."

certainly such should be given before the patient dies."

But Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), a former stanch Administration supporter, voiced strong opposition to Congress' return. Sabath charged that "propaganda is being stimulated by certain gentlemen in our State Department who are feeding Undersecretary Lovett misinformation."

Senator Chapman Revercomb (W. Va.) and Representative Dewey Short (Mo.), two Republicans who have been critical of Administration foreign policy, were just as cool to the proposal. Short said Congress should not return until touring congressional committeemen "determine the facts."

Vandenberg also referred to the globe-trotting committees. He said the fact they are making on-the-ground studies clearly indicates Congress will demand "a more completely adequate submission of facts."

"If the President finds a situation which requires a special session, it will be his responsibility to call it," said Vandenberg.

"I have no doubt Congress will be prepared to face its obligations.

"However, it would be quite futile to call such a session until the committees involved in preparing a legislative program have time to prepare it. They cannot prepare such a program until they have been given the full and complete information by the Administration that will be necessary."

He stressed that congressional leaders have "no disposition to dodge any emergency which the President may identify" but repeated the initiative is up to the White House.

"The information is not up here," he said. "It's down there."

Statistical Parley Opens Here Monday

States Prepare To Cooperate On Pollution

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Staunton, Va., Sept. 5.—Cooperation between Maryland and West Virginia in abating pollution of the Potomac upper reaches moved closer toward realization today following a conference between representatives of the two States.

The conference was held as a part of the annual meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, which opened a two-day session today at the Ingleside Country Club here.

Kenneth S. Watson, chief engineer of the West Virginia water commission, who represented his State at the conference, frankly told the Maryland group that West Virginia municipalities and industrial firms are reluctant about inaugurating a pollution control program while Cumberland continues to dump raw sewage into the river and Maryland industrial firms are the worst offenders.

Plans Being Prepared

Watson said his State has made progress, however, and that three large industrial plants are preparing plans for waste disposal.

Cumberland, second largest city in Maryland, dumps its raw sewage into the Potomac without treatment of any kind. City officials have contended that they are unable to expend funds for sewage treatment until flood control and water source programs are completed.

The Maryland group said that the problem of Cumberland is entirely a health program and beyond their jurisdiction but that their group would consider and act upon the suggestions of the West Virginia body in the effort to control pollution.

The Maryland group is the State commission on water pollution control and members attending are Dr. Joseph H. McClain, chairman; Paul W. McKee, executive secretary; John G. Walters and Guk E. Lerner, field experts.

To Define Problems

The two groups decided that the first step in cooperation is to define the problems involved and then seek methods of providing a solution.

Improved prospects for realization of a commission project of long standing, the completion of the Savage River dam to protect Cumberland from floods and to provide an even flow of water in the river during the dry months thus aiding in preventing pollution, was forecast by State Senator L. Harold Sothoron, retiring chairman, in his anual report.

Big Industry To Aid Europe

Representative Christian Herter (R., Mass.), which is now in Europe.

But this much they do know: that American industry is ready for exceptional production efforts to meet Europe's needs, even if this will mean cutting into domestic orders to some extent.

In some key industries the supply of goods is tight, among them electrical equipment and crawler tractors. In others there is greater leeway for meeting European demands, among them machine tools, wheeled tractors and horse-drawn farm equipment.

But members of the Harriman committee already realize that Europe will need many of the same things that are in brisk demand here at home, and will have to get some of its requirements in these fields if the Marshall Plan is to succeed.

Can Divert Products

The Government now has powers, under newly extended legislation, to divert certain products if the Secretary of State certifies their export is in the national interest and if the Secretary of Commerce attests that exporting them will not injure the domestic economy.

But if industry carries out the assurances which are about to be given to the Harriman committee, the need of using these powers will not arise. In any case, the powers expire on February 29 of next year—just about the time when the Marshall program is expected to get under way.

The steel industry presents a special problem, since the bottleneck in certain types of steel accounts for the existing short supply of many types of reconstruction goods.

The steel industry has set its face firmly against building additional plants to increase capacity. Steel leaders argue, and with a good deal of support from the Government, that an expansion of plant capacity would use up precious steel that could be put to better use directly or indirectly as exports under the Marshall Plan.

They also argue, without contradiction from Government departments, that a new steel mill takes two and one half years to build, and that expanded capacity would therefore be of little or no use in meeting Europes' needs over the next two or three years. By the time the new capacity would be available, Europe would have no further need for its products, since the Marshall Plan is intended to reduce Europe's dependence on the United States.

To Make Improvements

Instead, therefore, of building new plants, the steel industry is starting to spend an estimated 500 million dollars on improvements to get greater output from existing capacity. Whether or not the United States needs greater plant capacity in the long run—and this is a subject of warm debate among Government economists and steel executives—the present speedup of output is felt to be a more sensible course from the viewpoint of Europe's reconstruction needs.

So there is good hope in official Washington that steel and steel products will be available in greater quantities for Europe, and without cutting too deeply into what is available for American consumers.

Phone Workers Of Md. May Join National Union

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 5 (AP).—Asserting this year's strike was "like the banana—if it's away frmo the bunch it gets skinned," Vice President Robert O. Slemmer said the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers will meet next Tuesday to consider affiliation with a national union.

Slemmer said the meeting will be held in Baltimore and representatives of the CIO, the Communications Workers of America and the AFL will be given an opportunity to talk. He said the Maryland federation at present is "leaning toward affiliation" with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL).

The vice president reported that from 3500 to 4000 of the State's 6900 telephone workers are expected for the meeting. The workers have been independent for 12 years.

Nazis' Jewel Loot Is Set Aside for DPs

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The jewelry, precious stones and gold which the Nazis looted from their victims—including the gold teeth taken from the mouths of dead men—were set aside today to help displaced survivors of Hitler's horror in Europe.

The American military government announced that the loot had been turned over to the International Refugee Organization to sell.

Weighted Rent Control

Housing Expediter Creedon has taken a proper attitude, if a little belatedly, on the matter of fair representation on local rent control advisory boards. In announcing that he will review nominations submitted by Governors to insure a proportionate number of renters, landlords and public members on each board, he has followed the only course that will guard against local maneuvering. The mainspring for Mr. Creedon's action seems to have been the adverse reaction to the membership of the new Defense Rental Area Advisory Board for Montgomery and Prince Georges counties. This was a conspicuous example of one-sided selection, to put it mildly. The six members were, respectively, a mayor, a mortgage company executive, a builder, a bank president, an architect and a restaurant owner. Nowhere was there to be found a representative of the great number of tenants the rent control law is designed to protect. The blame for this flagrant one-sidedness must fall on Governor Lane of Maryland, who made the choice. But one also may well inquire where Mr. Creedon's thoughts were when he accepted the narrow recommendations of Maryland authorities in the first place.

Another example of weighted selection which we hope will receive Mr. Creedon's scrutiny under his new policy of review is the advisory board just appointed in Charlottesville, Va. The demand for wider representation on such boards does not mean that the members with property interests would not try to do an honest job from their point of view. But a fair balance between the two conflicting interests concerned is essential in equitable administration of the rent control law. If the rental advisory boards are to have any meaning, they must merit public confidence, and that is precisely what they cannot do when the cards appear to be stacked.

Yorkshire Strike

At last report nearly 60,000 Yorkshire iners were on strike, and the daily loss in al resulting from their idleness amounted 60,000 tons. Mills and factories in the ea that have already dug into their limited al piles at an alarming rate will soon be rced to curtail operations or close down nless the miners can be induced to return work.

The miners have struck in sympathy with little group who refused to obey an order f the National Coal Board to step up their ily output. Union heads are supporting he Coal Board, which is the agency established by the Labor government to administer this nationalized industry. Consequently oth the government and the union leadership will be seriously discredited if these ildcat strikes are not put down and the trikers forced to conform. On the other and, if the government authorities refuse o yield ground the result may be a prolongation and spread of strikes, with disastrous consequences to the country.

The people of the United States who are being called upon for aid will not be disposed to regard the Yorkshire coal strikes as solely an internal struggle between disgruntled miners and supervisory officials. They will, on the contrary, consider the strikes to be evidence of an unwillingness on the part of British labor to cooperate in a national program of self-help that offers the only practicable solution of the present economic crisis. Since lack of coal is the basic cause of Britain's inability to expand her export trade and thus bridge the gap between imports and exports, the self-help program is bound to fail unless more coal is produced. If the striking Yorkshire miners had set out deliberately to jeopardize the chances of further assistance to their country they could not have chosen a better time for their demonstration. For Congress will, with good reason, object to voting further dollar loans if those dollars have to be used to make up for deficiencies brought about by work stoppages and restrictions on output instead of being employed as a supplementary aid to expand production.

There is, of course, a hard and painful way of getting more work done by British labor. That is for us to do nothing and wait for the pressure of poverty and fear of unemployment to drive home the necessity of increased effort. So far the British have been spared such extreme hardships. Job openings are more numerous than job seekers and workers, judged by British standards, are exceedingly well paid, even though their diet is monotonous and living conditions drab. Some cynics here and abroad are already convinced that the only way to induce British workers to make an all-out effort is to let them experience the full force of the economic storm that now hangs threateningly over their heads. That is, however, a solution of Britain's economic problem that might have dangerous political as well as economic repercussions. If workers can only be brought to understand the imperative need of maximum production to hasten permanent restoration of the nation's economic structure, it will not be necessary to follow such counsels of despair.

Policy of Global Scope

When President Truman spoke to the delegates of the Inter-American Conference at Rio de Janeiro the other day, he emphasized the need for cooperation among the Americas in helping Europe meet its present ordeal. Yesterday, when he addressed the Brazilian Congress, the dominant note in his remarks was faith in the United Nations. "The difficulties that we have encountered in this early phase in the life of the United Nations have not discouraged us," he said. "On the contrary, they have increased our determination that it shall succeed." In both instances, we think, the President is to be commended for projecting the global viewpoint into the regional atmosphere of Rio.

The achievements of the Rio conference command the highest praise. We agree with Secretary Marshall when he said on Thursday night: "This evidence of willingness to adjust the many varied national viewpoints in order to make possible a unanimous agreement for the good of all, is the most encouraging, most stimulating international action since the close of hostilities." Senator Vandenberg crowded much the same thought into fewer words when he said: "This is sunlight in a dark world." We do not think the Senator is exaggerating when he claims, in behalf of the accord reached at Rio, that "this is a true partnership which represents the greatest advance ever made in the business of collective peace."

But every contrast that is made between the frequently hamstrung United Nations and the apparently workable security system that has been created for the Western Hemisphere strengthens the necessity for patience and good faith in working through the former organization for world peace. The success of the Rio Conference may encourage many people living in the new security zone to retreat into the shell of Pan-American solidarity and close their eyes to what is happening in the rest of the world. We shall hear many ask why the United States should place any reliance on the veto-frustrated Security Council after obtaining a vetoless security system in cooperation with our neighbors to the south. Apparently the President has anticipated such questions and given his reply in advance—an emphatic statement of determination to support the United Nations "with all the resources at our command."

The wisdom of that policy would be open to grave doubt if the United States were permitting the paralysis of the Security Council to obstruct all action looking toward reconstruction and the maintenance of peace. But it is taking no such course. While working through the U. N. and seeking to tighten up its machinery for the maintenance of peace, this Government is also helping democratic peoples in various parts of the world to rebuild their economies and maintain their independence through the turmoil of the postwar era. In many respects this is even more essential to the maintenance of peace than the erection of machinery to cope with aggression. By expounding a policy of global scope amid the regional enthusiasm of Rio we think Mr. Truman has added notably to his stature.

Mobilizers Of Facts

Leading statisticians from 55 foreign countries and the United States are assembling in Washington to discuss their common problems in conferences extending over a period of nearly two weeks. A long list of organizations, public and private, will be represented. The conferences are the first of the kind to be held in ten years.

The problems that concern the delegates are technical in nature, with special emphasis on the improvement of statistical techniques and comparability. However, this kind of work is of tremendous significance from a practical viewpoint, because, as the official announcement states, "world peace and security through international cooperation depend in large measure on reliable and adequate statistical information." Innumerable international agencies concerned with problems of health, agriculture, finance, employment, education and so forth must have reliable information, scientifically compiled and analyzed, in order to do efficient work.

Last year Alexander Loveday, formerly director of the Economic, Financial and Transit Department of the League of Nations, delivered a very illuminating address under the auspices of the National Bureau of Economic Research, in which he warned against the danger of asking too much of poor and underdeveloped administrations. It is much better, he said, that such administrations "should devote the limited resources at their disposal to producing accurate statistics on the really essential phenomena than that they should fill a thick tome with a measure only of the imagination of their statisticians." To drive home his point the speaker cited various amusing samples of phony statistics supplied the League agency by some of its members. He also noted that the war had created the need for a tremendous organizational task in the international field and declared that no government is "really adequately equipped to implement any promise it may have made to maintain a high and stable level of employment."

In the light of this authoritative opinion, we acknowledge an enhanced appreciation of this postwar assemblage of experts who are the men behind the men who are our policy makers. For the policy maker engaged in the task of national and international economic reconstruction must have facts based on accurate and comparable statistics at his disposal in order to make intelligent decisions. That is a truth which is daily being impressed upon us as we grapple with the problem of relief for Europe.

Eclipsed Ellipse

We have a great deal of sympathy with the dispossessed all-day parkers who are affected by the new two-hour limit on the Ellipse. Their gloom is not likely to be relieved by trying to find another parking place on the Mall at 8 a. m., which is one of the most disillusioning experiences we know. Be that as it may, Mr. Irving C. Root, National Capital Parks superintendent, is unquestionably right in insisting that space around national shrines be reserved for tourists—though he needn't have been quite so calloused in his unconcern for the woes of the displaced motorists. Permission to use such areas was, as Chairman Howat of the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency points out, a wartime measure, and in a sense the space has been usurped. For all-day parkers to continue to preempt this space would be unfair to the visitors who come to Washington and must be considered in parking plans.

The dilemma that faces the all-day parker is the same dilemma with which municipal authorities are coping in trying to provide for better utilization of Washington streets. There simply is not enough parking space in the downtown district to go around. Moreover, the usual experience is that when more space is provided there are more cars to compete for it. The problem of furnishing enough space for persons who drive to and from work, while reserving enough space for shoppers and visitors, is one that never can be resolved to the satisfaction of everyone. The Motor Vehicle Parking Agency has done some valuable work in attempting to arrive at a compromise. Its solution, already being put into effect, is to encourage the building of more off-street garages downtown, to develop more fringe parking lots within rapid commuting distance of downtown, and to improve express bus service to induce more workers and shoppers to leave their cars at home.

We are glad that the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency is working with National Capital Parks to minimize the dislocation by synchronizing the new restrictions with the expansion of fringe facilities. We think the problem might be helped somewhat by asking downtown garages and parking lots to give preference to drivers of cars who provide transportation for other riders. It goes without saying that use of private facilities will not be popular with motorists who have been accustomed to parking free of charge and close to their work. But nonessential motorists must become reconciled to the fact that all-day parking on downtown streets is not possible in a city the size of Washington.

Psychiatric Clinic

In announcing that St. Elizabeths Hospital will open an out-patient psychiatric clinic sometime this fall, Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of the hospital, has promised the District of Columbia a most urgent needed facility. This clinic will afford free consultation with able psychiatrists to persons suffering from minor mental or emotional disturbances. The help such sufferers receive at the clinic may save them—and the community—from the consequences of a serious mental condition liable to develop from neglect of early difficulties.

This psychiatric clinic ought to help, as Dr. Overholser suggested, to break down community prejudice against mental hospitals. It ought also to help break down the sense of fear and shame which keeps so many who need mental help from seeking it. Dr. Overholser is quite right, of course, in pointing out that the present procedure under which the mentally ill must first go to Gallinger and then undergo a lunacy hearing before being admitted to St. Elizabeths is 'too complicated and upsetting to a patient and his family." It reflects the common feeling that mental illness is somehow more shameful and reprehensible than physical illness—a feeling which finds reflection also in the current hysteria tending to treat all sexual abnormality as criminal. We quite agree with Dr. Overholser that hospitals rather than jails are the place for pathological sex offenders. Clinics such as that which he has planned will do more to prevent sex crimes, moreover, than any amount of police action.

RUBY-THROATED HUMMINGBIRD

Dipping like sun
in quick and restless motion, darting above the morning glory urns, brushing the dew-starred petals of the nasturtium,
you are a blur of wings,
a flash of light
in swift, perpetual flight.
The iridescent ruby of your throat burns like an unset gem above the bleeding heart, the hollyhocks . . .
Songless,
your wings hum nameless little tunes among the daisies and the annual phlox.
Oh, tiny hummer,
feeding on the nectar of a flower, constant only

Lafayette And Marne

September 6 is the 290th anniversary of the birth of Lafayette. His place in American history was defined by President Andrew Jackson in a general order to the Army and Navy issued June 21, 1834, upon his learning of Lafayette's death. He said:

"Lafayette was a citizen of France, but he was the distinguished friend of the United States. In early life he embarked in that contest which secured freedom and independence for our country. His services and sacrifices constitute a part of our Revolutionary history, and his memory will be second only to that of Washington in the hearts of the American people."

Speaking on the anniversary of Lafayette's birthday, September 6, 1918, Theodore Roosevelt paid tribute not only to Lafayette's memory but to the heroism of France's armies at the Battle of the Marne begun September 6, 1914. He called for a "peace of overwhelming victory" and urged that "reparation must take the form of action that will render it impossible for Germany to repeat her colossal wrongdoing." He advocated the formula of unconditional surrender of the enemy as against that of a negotiated peace.

The American people proved that they agreed with Theodore Roosevelt in this, but their will was thwarted and he died. With him died the hope of an enduring peace. The action he called for as regards reparation is yet to be obtained, and because it was not obtained in 1918-1919 a second and more terrible world war had to be fought.

The people of France have asked us to heed the lesson of this experience by which the blunder of an inconclusive peace was paid for so dearly, and make sure this time that the resources of the Ruhr are dedicated to the purpose, fulfillment of which Theodore Roosevelt demanded.

As the last survivor of those who took part in the exercises held on that occasion, I venture in recalling his words to state that our capacity for clear vision and sound action will be tested by whether or not we shall make sure that France, Belgium and Holland shall have first call on the resources of the Ruhr to restore their ruined cities and that never again shall Germany be able to use the Ruhr as the arsenal of aggression which it has been during almost a century.

"Hitch-Hike Murders"

I wish to express strong disapproval of your editorial of August 30 urging automobile drivers not to give lifts to hitch-hikers. It sounds like the complaisant attitude of a well-to-do man who would not do a kind deed on a million-to-one chance he might get hurt or killed. No one who goes through life governing himself constantly by fear will get much out of it.

Many a student hitch-hikes to school, or a job to save money for an education. Many an unemployed man without money goes in this way in search of a job. I have occasionally hitch-hiked myself when adequate public transportation was lacking. Many hitch-hikers may be going just for pleasure, but the lift they ask doesn't cost the giver anything. There is a neighborly feeling in giving a lift that we need to cultivate in this country. Your philosophy of life, to suppress the impulse to do a neighborly act because of some possible danger involved, would make this a much worse world to live in.

Be sure not to go out to mail a letter after dark. And look under the bed tonight before you retire.

Don't get married; more men are shot by wives than by hitch-hikers. But don't let proper caution degenerate into meanness.

Economic Appeal

Secretary Marshall was undoubtedly sincere when he stated that his plan was not designed to interfere in the internal affairs of any nation. Mr. Marshall's whole record is one of straightforwardness in speech and action. Why then did Russia turn down this friendly offer of cooperation?

It might be that the plan in the course of its working out would require some interference, but that was not Russia's main reason. The chief reason was undoubtedly the unmistakably hostile tone of our press, radio and public men.

For an example of the latter, Mr. Griswold the other day used the amazingly indiscreet phrase, "the anti-communist aid to Greece."

Why not be fair? There are three economic systems now bidding for world support, namely, democratic capitalism as in the U. S. A., democratic socialism as in Great Britain and undemocratic socialism, as in Russia. Which of these systems is to prevail will depend not on shouting, not on fighting, but on which system proves to be best fitted to provide the economic base for civilized living.

Aussie Sportsmanship

In its report of the Davis Cup matches, the Associated Press stated:

"Schroeder's victory over Bromwich (Australia) might have been forfeited, except for the good sportsmanship of the Aussies.

"A masseur had come onto the court without permission to work a cramp out of Schroeder's arm. Since this was a violation of Davis Cup rules, the Americans offered to forfeit the match, but Roy Cowlin, Aussie captain, would not hear of it."

If Bromwich had been ruled the winner over Schroeder, the Aussies would have had a firm advantage for the next day they won the doubles match. Had that been the situation, Schroeder's victory over Palls in the final singles matches would have squared the series, and the winner of the Davis Cup would have been determined by the victor in the Kramer-Bromwich match.

As it was, the Aussies' refusal to accept the forfeiture of the Schroeder-Bromwich match meant that when Schroeder defeated Palls, the United States had won the Davis Cup, 3 matches to 1. The Kramer-Bromwich match was then anticlimactic.

The foregoing is mentioned only because the writer feels that many of his fellow citizens holidaying over Labor Day may have missed seeing the reference to the Aussies' refusal to accept the forfeit. No American who served in Australia or with the Australians will be at all startled to learn that when they were informed they could lawfully take advantage of their opponents' oversight, the Aussies "would not hear of it."

Consumer Cooperative Investigation

Has Congress taken leave of its senses? And The Washington Post along with it? What is all this nonsense about "investigating" consumer cooperatives because, being tax-exempt, they are a threat to private enterprise? Since when are they tax-exempt, and since when are the people of the United States denied the right to compete with private enterprise—or even to wipe it out entirely if they so desire? The profit system just grew—like Topsy—and it is not guaranteed even an existence by the Constitution, let alone a monopoly of the kind of business enterprise we may have.

In an editorial of August 25, The Washington Post, though deploring the Small Business Committee's method of investigating consumer cooperatives, went along with its intention of looking into cooperatives to determine if their tax exemption gives them an unfair advantage over private enterprise. To begin with, consumer cooperatives pay all the taxes private enterprises pay, with the exception of the profit tax, and since cooperatives are nonprofit, how can they pay a profit tax?

It is sheer stupidity to call the patronage return a profit. Suppose I knew a man who ran a furniture store and he agreed to sell me a chair at cost. And suppose he told me the chair I ordered would cost about $50 and I gave him $50. And suppose when the invoice arrived, he found the chair cost $48. Would you expect him to call the $2 he gave back to me a profit and pay a tax on it? Or would you expect me to call it additional income and pay a double tax on it?

And if instead of knowing a retailer, I and a dozen others, or thousands of others, get together to sell ourselves any commodity or service at cost and overpay for it (to be on the safe side), that overpayment which we give back to ourselves can in no way be construed to be a profit. Since no one is making a living or adding to his income from that money, it cannot be called income, and only income is taxable. Dividends paid on stock in consumer cooperatives are taxable the same as dividends of any private enterprise corporation because they do represent additional income.

Consumer cooperatives are not tax-exempt. If they have an advantage over private enterprise it can only be because consumer cooperation is a better way of doing business.

The "Washington Merry Go Round" reported that Representative Knutson said, "We must curb cooperatives or they will destroy capitalism." That is fantastic. Suppose in 1943 the Republicans had said, "We must curb the people's voting Democratic or they will destroy the Republican Party."

There is absolutely no constitutional way to curb cooperatives any more than there is any legal way to curb the right of citizens to vote as they please. Consumer cooperation is an economic system of, by, and for the people. And although our Constitution does not guarantee us economic democracy, it does guarantee us the right to get together and run our own business for mutual benefit just as much as to run a business by oneself or with three partners or a thousand partners, for mutual profit.

Consumer cooperation will destroy capitalism only when the majority of the people are members of coops, and in democracy the majority may destroy anything it wants to, including the democracy itself. MARGERY KRIMONT.

Calling Washington

German Life

ESSEN, British Zone of Germany.—Just outside of ruined Essen is the Villa Hugel, which is one of the most remarkable private homes in the world. In fact, to speak of this palace of 450 rooms as a private home is a slight misuse of the phrase.

Villa Hugel is the home of the Krupp family, former masters of the Ruhr industrial empire. It has been occupied for two years by the North German Coal Commission, the British agency that supervises coal production. British coal experts have their offices in the baronial salons, the bedrooms and the antechambers of this vast pile.

Not long ago Frau Bertha Krupp wrote to the British government in London to announce that she wanted her house returned to her. Needless to say, the coal commission offices are still in the Villa Hugel and will be there as long as the commission needs office space.

But the very fact that Frau Krupp could make such a request indicates the mentality of this reigning family. As a Britisher put it, they felt themselves slightly above royalty and slightly beneath the Deity. And that seems to have been the attitude of most Germans toward them. From all reports they were treated with something of the reverence accorded the Emperor of Japan.

Recently one of the daughters returned to inspect the family home. The Krupp servants, who now wait on the British, practically fell on their faces at sight of her. The fact that Gustav Krupp, head of the family, and his son Alfred have been indicted as war criminals seems to have made little difference in the attitude accorded the Krupps.

EVEN though invading troops passed through Villa Hugel after 80 per cent of the town of Essen had been razed or severely damaged by bombing, this nineteenth century palace is still more or less intact. When you go from the great halls, with their priceless Bayeux and Gobelin tapestries, to the former air-raid bunkers where many miners' families are living, the contrast could not be greater.

The air-raid bunkers were built near the mine shafts so that shifts going on or off duty could take shelter there. The mines themselves are so deep that they were safe except when a hit on the surface destroyed the machines providing air and light to the men below ground. The bunkers are massive concrete structures built half underground, without windows.

Crude partitions have now been thrown up, and two rooms are assigned to each family. An electric bulb hanging from the center of each room partly dispels the gloom. I visited with one family consisting of father, mother, five children and grandmother. The youngest child, a boy of about 2, played in the corner half naked. The miner was trying to sleep in one of a row of beds in the bedroom. In another bed an older child was sick.

DURING the war temporary barracks were built to house miners and their families who were bombed out. I talked with one family consisting of father, mother and 11 children. They had lived since 1943 in the two rooms allocated to them in the barracks. When their home had been bombed they were moved to a school, and when that was damaged beyond repair they were assigned to the barracks.

When I visited them a young girl was on her hands and knees scrubbing the rough tile floor—a seemingly futile process in view of the dust blowing in through the open windows. The only object not strictly of utility in the two rooms was a crucifix on the wall.

The mother answered questions tersely. Finally, a kind of anger came into her face and with a gesture at the beds crowded close together, she said: "Yes, this! My man has worked underground in the mines 29 years, and this is all we have."

She seemed not to connect what had happened in any way with the war and its prelude of nazism. Observers report that, for the most part, the Germans simply do not make the connection. Propaganda by local Communists seeks to put the blame for present conditions on the democracies.

In the atmosphere of the Ruhr it is hard to see how private enterprise in anything like the American sense can be restored. The British say that the desire among the German workers for socialization of the mines is strong. Communist slogans are splashed on walls that stand up out of the ruins. Eighty-five per cent of all prewar coal output was held by a tight cartel. Yet private enterprise is the earnest goal of the U. S. policy in Germany.

Women With Guns

It's an indictment of our social system when, as chronicled in The Washington Post of September 3, two women are made neurotic enough to be afraid of a knock on the door; of our legal system which permits guns in the hands of these women; of our press system that such stories are played up.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Cold War III

A CRUCIAL defect of the policy of firm containment, known to the world as the Truman Doctrine, is that it concedes to the Russians the initiative in the contest. We are "to hold the line", leaving it to the Kremlin to decide when, where and how it will exert pressure upon that line. We are to erect "unassailable barriers in its path". We are "to confront" the Russians with "counterforce" wherever and whenever they show signs of encroaching upon the interests of a stable and peaceful world.

Lippmann

Therefore unless we can have decisive force immediately available at all times and at every point on the vast perimeter of the Soviet power in Europe, the Middle East and in Asia, the chances are that usually, if not always, we shall arrive too late with too little counterforce.

Moreover, having surrendered the initiative, the policy commits us to an enormous effort without offering any concrete objective that can be attained. For when we arrived at one of the shifting points, and if our counterforce were sufficient to contain the Russians, then all that we could expect to accomplish by our exertions would be to stop that particular attempt to cross the line. The Russians would then be free to pause, while we wondered anxiously where they would decide to encroach the next time.

I FIND IT hard to understand how Mr. X could have recommended such a strategic monstrosity. For he tells us, no doubt truly, that the Soviet power "cannot be easily defeated or discouraged by a single victory on the part of its opponents", and that "the patient persistence by which it is animated" means that it cannot be "effectively countered" by "sporadic acts". Yet his own policy calls for a series of sporadic acts: the United States is to apply "counterforce" where the Russians encroach and when they encroach.

On his own testimony no single victory will easily defeat or discourage the patient persistence of the Kremlin. Yet Mr. X says that the United States should aim to win a series of victories which will cause the Russians to "yield on individual sectors of the diplomatic front." And then what? When the United States has forced the Kremlin to "face frustration indefinitely" there will "eventually" come "either the breakup or the gradual mellowing of the Soviet power."

THERE IS, however, no rational ground for confidence that the United States could muster "unalterable counterforce" at all the individual sectors. The Eurasian continent is a big place, and the military power of the United States, though it is very great, has certain limitations which must be borne in mind if it is to be used effectively. We live on an island continent. We are separated from the theaters of conflict by the great oceans. We have a relatively small population, of which the greater proportion must in time of war be employed in producing, transporting and servicing the complex weapons and engines which constitute our military power. The United States has as compared with the Russians no adequate reserves of infantry. Our Navy commands the oceans and we possess the major offensive weapons of war. But on the ground in the interior of the Eurasian continent, as we are learning in the Greek mountains, there may be many "individual sectors" where only infantry can be used as the "counterforce."

These considerations must determine American strategy in war, and therefore, also in diplomacy, whenever the task of diplomacy is to deal with a conflict and a contest of power. The planner of American diplomatic policy must use the kind of power we do have, not the kind we do not have. He must use that kind of power where it can be used. He must avoid engagements in those "individual sectors of the diplomatic front" where our opponents can use the weapons in which they have superiority. But the policy of firm containment as defined by Mr. X ignores these tactical considerations. It makes no distinction among sectors. It commits the United States to confront the Russians with counterforce "at every point" along the line, instead of at those points which we have selected because, there at those points, our kind of sea and air power can best be exerted.

AMERICAN military power is peculiarly unsuited to a policy of containment which has to be enforced persistently and patiently for an indefinite period of time. If the Soviet Union were an island, like Japan, such a policy could be enforced by American sea and air power. The United States could, without great difficulty, impose a blockade. But the Soviet Union has to be contained on land, and "holding the line" is therefore a form of trench warfare.

Yet the genius of American military power does not lie in holding positions indefinitely. That requires a massive patience by great hordes of docile people. American military power is distinguished by its mobility, its speed, its range and its offensive striking force. It is, therefore, not an efficient instrument for a diplomatic policy of containment. It can only be the instrument of a policy which has as its objective a decision and a settlement. It can and should be used—I shall argue in the course of this series—to redress the balance of power which has been upset by the war. But it is not designed for or adapted to a strategy of containing, waiting, countering, blocking, with no more specific objective than the eventual "frustration" of the opponent.

The Americans would themselves probably be frustrated by Mr. X's policy long before the Russians were.

Mr. Truman's Plea

By Barnet Nover

Latin America Can Help

THE SPEECH which President Truman made at the closing session of the Rio Conference rendered a real service to inter-American understanding by its candor and straightforwardness.

The temptation on such festive occasions is to indulge in banquet oratory, in back-slapping and self-congratulation.

The Rio Conference proved to be one of the most harmonious ever held. Its mood and temper were in sharp contrast with the unending bitterness, the undisguised ill will, the crushing futility, that have characterized so many recent international gatherings.

Moreover, in the hemisphere security pact which had emerged after only three weeks of discussions, the Rio parley had hewn a new path in international life. The Treaty of Rio de Janeiro is the first comprehensive regional security arrangement to be made under Article 51 of the United Nations Charter.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Truman could have limited his remarks to words of praise for the American republics. Instead, he took occasion to talk in straight-from-the-shoulder fashion about the state of the world, the duties and the responsibilities of the nations of this hemisphere.

THE NATIONS of Latin America have, in greater or less degree, been disturbed by the apparent concentration of the United States on European affairs, to the neglect of what they consider the needs of this hemisphere.

Some of them have had the growing feeling that they have been let down.

They have contrasted in their own minds the generous outpouring of United States aid to remote Greece and Turkey with the failure to extend to this country's immediate neighbors the help the latter so desperately need to put their economies back on an even keel.

With the announcement of the Marshall Plan some Latin-American countries saw the hope of that assistance postponed to the indefinite future. Others, however, regarded the plan as a pattern which could just as usefully be applied to Latin America as to Europe.

THE FACT is that with very few exceptions, the countries of Latin America find themselves in an acute crisis.

During the war they expanded their production of those raw materials which the Allies needed and could not do without. The price of those products was rigorously controlled. They could buy little in return. So great dollar and sterling balances were piled up although, at the same time, the shortage of goods needed by the people of Latin America became so acute as to set in motion an inflationary spiral.

The hope was that once the war had ended and goods began to pour into Latin America from broad this inflation could be halted. Unfortunately, it has not worked out that way at all.

BY THE END of 1946 gold holdings and dollar balances in Latin America amounted to close to $4,700,000,000. This was a very great increase over what it had been before Pearl Harbor.

During recent months, however, with the cost of American goods steadily rising, these dollar balances have rapidly been siphoned off in one country after another. Most of Latin America—Venezuela and Cuba being two conspicuous exceptions—are now beginning to suffer acutely from a dollar shortage.

In consequence, one Latin-American nation after another—Mexico, Colombia, Peru, Brazil, Chile and Argentina among them—have begun to take drastic measures to restrict imports and thus end the drain on dollars. In the meantime, the dollar shortage has made it impossible for them to go ahead with the industrialization program which they had hoped to carry out and which they regard as essential to their economic salvation.

NO WONDER, then, that some of the delegates to the Rio conference were far more anxious to talk about a hemisphere economic pact than a hemisphere defense pact.

After all, the hemisphere is not directly threatened from any quarter at this moment. But the financial and economic stability of most of the Latin-American countries is threatened.

Were the United States in the position some of them imagine this country to be—a Lady Bountiful with an inexhaustible cornucopia—we could help Latin America even while helping Europe. Unfortunately, as the President pointed out, our resources are not unlimited.

He made it clear to the assembled delegates at Rio that first things will have to come first, that European recovery must take priority, with the United States doing its best to provide economic assistance to those European nations prepared to help each other. What is more, he pleaded with the nations of Latin America to do all they can, on their part, to help that overseas recovery effort.

Whether they will do so remains to be seen. But the fact must be clear to them that only insofar as Europe recovers can Europe again become a major market for their goods and a source of supplies of needs which the United States cannot supply or for which they cannot pay.

U. S. Doctor to Treat Cancer Victims With Russian Extract

St. Louis, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—A New York biochemist said today he will give a widely publicized Russian extract—KR—its first human tests as a treatment for cancer before American medical observers next month.

Three patients who have "inoperative and very advanced" cancers, have already been selected, he said. Supplies of KR are too small for additional clinical tests, he added.

The announcement was made at the fourth International Cancer Research Congress by Dr. William M. Malisoff, research director of the Longevity Research Foundation of New York.

His report was made at the same session that heard Dr. Theodore S. Hauschka, microbiologist at the Institute for Cancer Research of Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia declare:

"Clinical tests with trypanosoma cruzi (KR) material are not indicated at present."

Hauschka said he believes "the problem needs to be worked on by a great many people for a long time to determine its value as a cancer control agent."

Malisoff said he used a "special culture medium following the Russian prescription" to obtain KR for treating advanced cases of two types of cancer — spontaneous breast carcinoma and sarcoma 180—in two strains of mice. The untreated mice died.

"Decreases in tumor size were noted in all cases" of carcinoma, he reported. "Complete regression (disappearance) was noted in 25 to 85 per cent of the cases, averaging 55 per cent of the animals tried."

In sarcoma, he said, one series of tests shows "complete regression in nine" mice, one complete failure and two partial regressions.

"I would like to make it clear that I do not claim to have a cancer cure," he told reporters, "as there is not the slightest reason to believe human reactions will in any wise resemble the reactions of mice."

St. Louis, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—The Soviet Embassy in Washington said today: "unfortunately academician Petrov, who had planned to arrive in the United States for participation in the fourth International Cancer Research Congress, has fallen ill."

The letter to Dr. E. V. Cowdry, congress president, from the cultural attache, S. Striganov, added: "we should be grateful if you would help us to keep our scholars informed of the proceedings of the congress through the embassy."

Dr. Cowdry said he was convinced that "Russian scientists will join those from other parts of the world in an international organization to combat cancer." Plans for such an organization are being drawn at the sessions attended by scientists from 44 nations.

New Streptomycin Method Successful in Tuberculosis

Saranac, N. Y., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—A new tuberculosis treatment utilizing streptomycin, which has shown such remarkable results that it is recommended to combat all forms of the disease, was revealed here today.

Dr. George E. Slotkin, associate professon of urology at the University of Buffalo, described the treatment.

He said the method, designed specifically for combating kidney and bladder tuberculosis, had rendered negative six active cases of renal tuberculosis after only 30 days' treatment with an oil preparation, known as moogrol and streptomycin. He said the oil, which comes from an Egyptian plant, increases the effectiveness of the drug.

Dr. Slotkin explained that the oil dissolves the waxy coating on the tubercle baccili, making it more susceptible to streptomycin.

He asserted that the new treatment not only is more effective and faster than the recently developed treatment with streptomycin alone, but much cheaper.

The latter treatment calls for the use of three grams of streptomycin a day, at $4 a gram, for a 4 to 6-month period. The new method uses a single gram daily for 30 days.

Air Cadet Training Program Attracting Few Candidates

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Army Air Force officials are beginning to wonder what's happened to all the red-blooded young Americans wanting wings.

They're having trouble filling next month's flight training class at Randolph Field, Tex. Some 100 vacancies as flying cadets seem to be going begging.

It's the first class of cadets accepted from outside the Army since the war, and officials expected a flood of applicants for the once-coveted appointments. For this reason they didn't put on a big recruiting campaign.

The response, however, was disappointing. Requirements are stiff—only one in eight can qualify—but they only wanted 350 cadets.

Several Factors

An AAF spokesman said that headquarters believed several factors are responsible for the dearth of applicants.

With few exceptions, those eligible are former servicemen entitled to GI benefits. They can go to college at Government expense. If they quit school to take a flying cadet appointment they lose such benefits.

Requirements have been tightened since war days. Appointees must have two years of college or the equivalent, and now must be 20 years old rather than 18. The top age limit is 26¼.

Though an announcement that the October class was open to civilians was put into college papers last June, officials feel the matter was not publicized enough.

Still Time to Enter

Eligibles who apply immediately can still qualify for the October 15 class, it was said, or will go on a waiting list for the next group in March. Applications must be unmarried, citizens of the United States, and pass a series of stiff examinations. The latter include screening by an AAF board for both "officer aptitude" and "flying aptitude."

Cadets receive $75 a month, food, quarters, uniforms and a free $10,000 life insurance policy. After a year's training they are appointed Reserve second lieutenants at $351 a month and go on active duty for three years. Later they may qualify for commissions in the regular Air Force. AAF examining boards at Bolling and Andrews Fields or the Army recruiting office at 10th and D sts. nw. can supply full details.

Veteran Better After Nail Removal

Denver, Sept. 5 (INS).—The horrors of living in shadows may be gone today for Virgil Gomez, 27, of Cerro, N. Mex., following the operation at Fort Logan Veterans' Hospital yesterday for the successful removal of a 21inch Jap nail from his head.

Doctors said a partial paralysis which had attacked his right side appeared to be easing today as his leg moved voluntarily, and his eyesight seeme dto be clearing.

Gomez talked with his wife today and appeared in very good spirits, the doctors said. He spoke of the baby which Mrs. Gomez is expecting in November, and has hopes of seeing the child and of being a "real father."

The Gallup Poll

Weekly Family Food Budget Almost Double 1942 Amount

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 5.—The rising weekly food budget of the average non-farm family is now almost double the amount spent in 1942.

On three occasions in the last five years the institute has asked the same question of typical urban families from coast to coast.

"On the average, how much does your family spend on food, including milk, each week?"

The national median average, excluding farmers, was:

April, 1942	$11
March, 1946	$17
August, 1947	$21

This institute food-budget figure differs from most cost-of-living indexes since it is based on direct evidence of what people say they actually pay out for food, while the others are based on prices of commodities that people need.

For comparison, here are the figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics food index (based on 100 as the consumers' average price paid for food during the 1935-1939 period):

April, 1942	119.6
March, 1946	140.1
June, 1947	190.5

Apparently the rising cost of food in the last 18 months has not hit all segments of the population equally hard, as the following table shows:

WEEKLY FOOD BUDGET

Occupation.	March, 1946.	August, 1947.
Prof. and Bus.	$20	$24
White collar	18	20
Manual workers	15	20

A breakdown by $5 brackets throws some interesting sidelights on how higher food prices have touched the Nation's pocketbooks. For example, the number of families now spending more than $25 a week for food is practically double what it was in the spring of 1946.

	March, 1946.	August, 1947.
$5 or less	4%	3%
$6 to $10	19	11
$11 to $15	25	21
$16 to $20	24	23
$21 to $25	14	17
Over $25	14	25

Of the family's dollar, the biggest share generally goes for food. The jump from $17 to $21 in weekly food expenses in the last 16 months means that more than $200 has been added to the yearly food bill of the average American family. The mounting size of food costs thus indicates the necessity for many family units, whose incomes have not advanced correspondingly, to postpone either now or shortly some purchases that ordinarily would have been made.

In the same survey the institute asked:

"What is the SMALLEST amount of money a family of four (husband, wife and two children) needs each week to get along on in this community?"

The national median average answer was $43. The Federal Reserve Board reports that in 1947 half the Nation's families had incomes of more than $44 per week and half less than that sum; the figure may have changed somewhat during the past half year.

Following is a sectional breakdown of the median average revealed by the institute's survey:

Section of Country	Median Average
New England and midatlantic	$
East and west central South
Mountain and Pacific Coast

The purchasing public, most of whom think prices in general are going to rise, may take any or all of the following steps: Shop with greater care over the next year; cut down on purchases of the more costly food items; dip into their savings if any; or take advantage of the easier credit purchase regulations to beat expected price rises to the punch.

Willkie's Son Denies Candidacy

New York, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Philip H. Willkie, 27, son of the late Wendell L. Willkie, denied today published reports that he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressional representative from Indiana.

Charles Myers, Rush County, Ind., Republican chairman, said Wednesday that the son of the 1940 Republican presidential candidate would permit his name to be considered by the party's district committee for the Republican nomination to succeed Representative Raymond S. Springer of the Tenth Congressional District, who died last Thursday.

Willkie said "I want to further deny stories which have been printed in some of the papers and gossip columns that I have political plans and ambitions. I have no plans except to finish my legal education and engage in the active practice of law."

Bikini Atoll Is Again Safe For Humans, Scientists Find

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Two chemistry professors at the University of Notre Dame said today human beings could now live on Bikini atoll without danger from scattered radioactivity.

Dr. William H. Hamill and Dr. Russell R. Williams, jr., returned yesterday after serving as special consultants to the United States Navy in atomic research studies. They conducted the studies this summer at Bikini, site of the 1946 atomic bomb tests, to determine conditions on the atoll one year after the bomb experiments.

Both agreed that much radioactivity remained at Bikini but it was distributed so thoroughly among biological deposits human beings might be able to live there as long as a year without suffering ill effects.

A person could eat fish and cocoanuts containing radioactivity, provided he ate moderately.

Hamill and Williams spent five weeks on the atoll.

At first, they said, they drank no water from the lagoon. Later, when they discovered that the radioactivity was not concentrated, they drank from the lagoon water and swam in it.

Beer Consumption Up 1.5 Million Barrels Over '46

There's a lot more beer this summer than last, although more is being consumed than a year ago.

The International Revenue Bureau said yesterday beer stocks totaled 9,453,125 barrels (of 31 gallons each) at the start of August, or 1,512,393 barrels more than at the same time in 1946.

Tax-paid withdrawals, which reflect consumption, came to 8,776,048 barrels during July, or 1,525,276 barrels more than in July, 1946.

More beer also is being consumed "on the premises" at the breweries, which have a custom of setting 'em up for visitors and employes.

Russia Promises Poland 300,000 Tons of Food

Warsaw, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Food Minister Wlodzimierz Lechowicz said today Russia had agreed to supply more than 300,000 tons of foodstuffs to Poland and declared that "the year 1948 will be the last difficult year" in the food situation.

Lechowicz, returned from Moscow, told a news conference that the Russians had agreed to send Poland 100,000 tons of wheat, 10,000 tons of rye, 40,000 tons of barley and other foods.

Cub Fliers Leave Paris

Paris, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Piper Cub pilots George Truman of Los Angeles and Clifford Evans of Washington, D. C., left Paris today and headed their 100-mile-an-hour planes toward Marseilles, next stop on their round-the-world flight. They plan to fly to Rome early Saturday.

REV. MR. SHAW

The Rev. Robert W. Shaw, who tomorrow at 11 a. m. takes over the Bethesda Christian Church pulpit, comes from a preaching family.

In Albion Ill., where he was born in 1918, his father divided his time between managing a shoe store and doing lay preaching in rural areas.

Inspired by his father's religious activities, young Shaw enrolled at Johnson Bible College, near Knoxville, Tenn., after graduation from Albion Community High School.

Mr. Shaw went from Johnson College to Butler University's School of Religion, Indianapolis, where he received his bachelor of divinity degree in 1944. While at Butler, he was elected to membership in Theta Phi, international religious scholastic honorary society.

Activities Since 1944

"Since 1944," says Mr. Shaw, "I have divided my time in school between finishing work on a master of arts degree with a major in church history, and serving as instructor in the Butler University School of Religion.

"During my school years, I have held short part-time pastorates at Fountaintown, Ind. and Shiloh, Ind., and a full-time student pastorate of five years at Hobbs, Ind. I have also been a preaching and singing evangelist, and at present am closing a brief full-time student pastorate with the Oak Grove Christian Church at Monticello, Ind."

Clergymen Returning From Abroad Urge Greater U. S. Aid to Stricken Countries

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

American aid for Europe's economic plight was urged yesterday by clergymen and laymen back from church conferences and other missions abroad.

"The situation on the Continent and in England is so critical that the United States must act quickly and generously," said Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, in an interview. He added:

"The Marshall Plan seemed like a ray of sunshine across Europe, but this plan does not offer aid soon enough to help the impending crisis. I hope Congress will reconvene at once in order to face the facts of our tragic and volcanic world and then take action befitting a Nation which has been so unusually blessed."

Dr. Reissig, whose trip was sponsored by Church World Service, urged all Americans to contribute clothes, food and cash to European peoples. "This winter will be the darkest and hardest they have experienced," he reminded.

"SITUATION NOT HOPELESS"

Dr. James M. Dawson, executive secretary for United States Baptists, with headquarters here, said his observations convinced him that "the situation is not hopeless but exceedingly precarious." Said he:

"Denmark, burdened with thousands of refugees, has to export all its bacon and eggs to maintain its economy. Sturdy Holland clutches at retention of its Far Eastern Colonies to stabilize its reeling homeland. Belgium, which got out of the war by King Leopold's surrender to Hitler, has money but a real shortage of commodities, with much suffering. Poor France, drought-stricken, utterly confused politically, cursed with high prices and food shortage, will be strongly tested to show that she is eternal, as claimed. Too well all of us know Germany's plight. Switzerland, a neutral nation on her border, was enriched by the war and deserves no sympathy."

"In England, with Laborites and Conservatives at each other's throats, financially on the verge of ruin, and staggering to rise up from war's exhaustion, I found more poignant anxiety than in any country I visited. But when I asked a London cabbie if he thought England could pull through, he showed me the picture of his three children and asserted: 'As long as we have these we have something to struggle for!'"

Dr. Dawson addressed the Baptist World Congress in Copenhagen, Denmark, in August, sharing the program with Ernest Brown, former Labor Minister under Churchill, and others.

STEEN "SHOCKED"

"I was shocked at the anguish of the peoples of the world, and their bitter nationalism and factionalism," commented the Rev. Thomas Steen, director of the Federation of Churches' Christian education department. In his interview, he stated:

CHAPLIN IMRIE

"European civilization mutilated and tottering . . ."

"We have something to struggle for!"

"I came away more convinced than ever before that only a dynamic and positive religious faith will provide sufficient motivation to bring peace and understanding."

Discussing the World Conference on Christian Youth that brought 1300 delegates from 71 nations to Oslo, Norway, in August, Mr. Steen said:

"Tension surrounded the conference on the opening day as word was received by the Indonesian delegates that their country was at war with the Dutch army. Still, the Indonesian and Dutch delegates continued to meet in conference together. They made a joint statement of confession and faith at one of the plenary sessions."

CHAPLAIN CITES CONDITIONS

Maj. Matthew H. Imrie of the Army Chief of Chaplains Office, pictured European civilization as "mutilated and tottering."

The chaplain, among clergymen who made a 35-day tour abroad under War Department auspices, declared in his interview:

"The moral conscience of the people appears numbed; as one German put it, 'a hungry belly has little conscience.' The chaos brought about by the material losses of public utilities, food, shelter and clothing has resulted in hopelessness and despair. One's grief for the plight of Germany is somewhat counteracted by the fact that too few Germans realize that they themselves set off the chain of catastrophic events that gave wing to death and misery at home and abroad."

Praising the Army for doing a "magnificent job" in occupying Germany, Chaplain Imrie said "the courage, industry and intelligence of Americans in occupied countries are deserving of our praise and gratitude, and have won the appreciation of the conquered."

HITS "FOOLISH TALK"

Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square and former Navy chaplain, who also made the War Department-sponsored trip to Europe, commented:

"The wisest word I heard on the Russian situation is that the hysteria here and in Europe against Russia and for Russia hides the real gravity of the situation. It is exceedingly dangerous. We must be careful not to talk foolishly.

"The complexity of the task of reconstruction beggars description. It is physical, social and political. In this the United States is helping. The work of our Army and State Department is of a high order. Until I had a chance to see this at first hand, I had no idea of the difficulty and urgency of the task."

Dr. Glenn will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Communion services at St. John's Church.

BRITISH SPIRIT PRAISED

The spirit of the British in the economic crisis was praised by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, back from addressing the Baptist World Alliance parley in Copenhagen, Denmark.

"The people are facing the food and financial crisis in the same courageous spirit with which they endured the blitz," he stated. "They are people who have not been accustomed to the luxuries the average American enjoys and they are therefore capable of adjusting themselves more readily to the present austerities."

Dr. Pruden, who has been on vacation in his home town of Chase, Va., since returning from abroad, will be in his pulpit tomorrow.

Petworth Church Will Honor Students

College students will be honored at services at 11 a. m. at Petworth Baptist Church, 7th and Randolph sts. nw. Howard Rees, Washington Baptist student secretary, also will speak. Dr. J. O. Williams, secretary of the Baptist Sunday school board's education and promotion department, Nashville, Tenn., will speak tomorrow at 8 p. m.

23 Churches In 15 Lands Join Council

Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, associate secretary of the World Council of Churches, yesterday announced that 23 churches in 15 countries have joined the council in the last six months.

"The affiliation of the Orthodox churches with the evangelical Protestant churches through the World Council heralds a new and dynamic orthodoxy which has not been known for centuries," stated Dr. Leiper from the office of the American Committee for the World Council of Churches, New York City.

New Orthodox members of the World Council, said Dr. Leiper, are Patriarchates of Jerusalem, Antioch and Alexandria; the Coptic Church; the Syrian Orthodox Church of Malabar, India, and the Church of Greece.

[The last-named church is not to be confused with the Greek Orthodox Church.]

Because of the increasingly cosmopolitan character of World Council membership, said Dr. Leiper, "the World Assembly of Churches, to be held in Holland in the summer of 1948, will not be dominated by any single of Christian principle and social order."

Jesus' Tomb

Repairs Due Old Church in Jerusalem

Jerusalem's Holy Sepulchre, Christendom's holiest place, soon will be rebuilt for the sake of safety and beauty.

The oft - rebuilt Crusader Church, deep in the heart of the old walled City of Jerusalem, houses the generally accepted location of Jesus' tomb.

The 1927 earthquake shook the ancient walls so badly that the Palestine government quickly shored up the collapsing church with steel and wood beams that mar its beauty.

Disagreement among the church communities such as the Latin Catholic, Greek Orthodox Armenian, Egyptian Coptic, Abyssinian and others on the method and extent of refurnishing, has thwarted rebuilding up until now.

The report of an English architect on the need for repairs has been submitted to the groups controlling the Seuplchre Church. The Palestine government says it has the money to start repairs, if an agreement is reached.

Face-lifting of the church will take years, because the architect's plans call for a work schedule that will not interrupt a single mass or a single pilgrimage.

For two decades, ugly scaffoldings have obscured the enchantment of the iridescent mosaics, the semidark crypts and aisles and the tarnished gold and worn red velvet trappings of the dozens of altars.

Organ Recital Planned Sept. 21 in Arlington

Miss Robbie Campbell will give an organ recital September 21 at 4:30 p. m. at Arlington Methodist Church, 8th st. and Glebe rd. South. It will be sponsored by the Washington Chapter, American Guild of Organists. Miss Campbell is on the Federation of Churches' secretarial staff.

30 Europeans Coming Here For Theology

The "Marine Tiger" ship that "shoved off" from LeHarve, France, August 29 carried 30 European students en route to study American theology.

Selected by interdenominational reconstruction committees of nine countries, the young theologians have their transportation expenses underwritten by Church World Service, the interdenominational relief agency in New York. The 13 theological seminaries to receive them will bear their educational expense.

Among the Dutch, French and others are students who have played an active and colorful role in the resistance movement. Some of the Hungarians have been prisoners of war. The six Czechoslovakians studied in the "underground" theological seminary in Prague during the Nazi occupation.

Seminaries to receive the students this fall include Princeton, Yale, Chicago Theological and Chicago Lutheran; Eden of St. Louis, Hamma of Springfield, Ohio; New York City, and Union, Richmond, Va.; McCormick of Chicago; Drew of Madison, N. J.; the Pacific School of Religion, near San Francisco; the Southern Baptist Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and Austin (Tex.), Seminary. Most of the students are of the Reformed or Lutheran faith.

Fund Lack Halts Census of Churches

The 10-year Government census of church bodies, only 60% complete, has been halted because of lack of funds, Director of the Census J. C. Capt reports.

Congress failed to provide a $400,000 appropriation for the survey before adjournment. Church groups' spokesmen say they will pass for reconsideration when Congress reassembles. The previous statistical church membership survey of the Nation was made in 1937 by the United States Commerce Department.

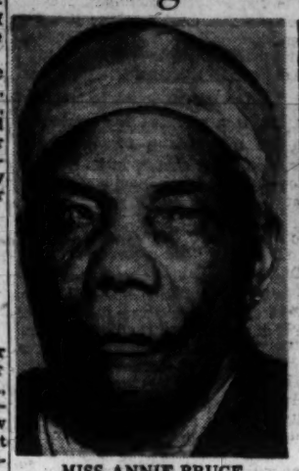
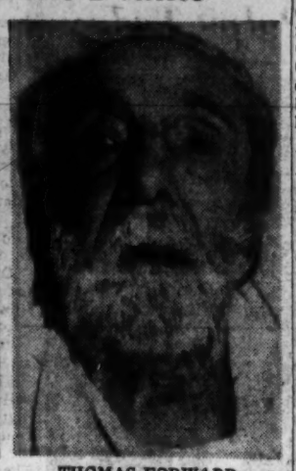
Religion in Action

Volunteers of Many Faiths Cheer Aged at Blue Plains



MISS ANNIE BRUCE



THOMAS FORWARD

Miss Bruce, 102, and Thomas Forward, 100, are the oldest residents at the District Home for the Aged at Blue Plains, in southeast Washington

Various religious groups, ranging from brown-robed Franciscans to blue-garbed Salvation Army lassies, scatter sunshine and inspiration at the District home for the Aged, Blue Plains.

The volunteers conduct religious services, bring "treats" for the residents, aid the social and recreational programs and do a hundred and one other things to brighten the old folks' lot.

"These volunteers visit among the residents, regardless of their race, color or creed, and do wonders to lift their morale," says Miss Ada Welch, social worker in charge of intake service.

Among those who listened to the Metropolitan Police Band concert last Wednesday night at the home were its two oldest residents—Miss Annie L. Bruce, 102, and Thomas Forward, 100.

Right now the old folks are saddened by the loss of their most popular form of entertainment—movies. The organization that furnished the films dropped the project because of the difficulty in getting 16-mm. films. The residents are hoping some good Samaritan will donate a projection booth and arrange for showings of latest Hollywood films.

The Friars from the Franciscan Monastery come over Sundays and conduct masses and hear confessions. They frequently furnish candy, tobacco, cash and other donations.

Communion services are conducted Friday mornings by the Rev. J. P. Coleman, vicar of St. Timothy's Episcopal Chapel, 3301 Alabama ave. s.e., who also gives spiritual counsel to the residents. Members of the Washington Diocesan Women's Auxiliary visit the institution regularly to cheer the men and women.

Every resident gets a birthday card—thanks to the District Baptist Woman's Missionary Society. Its members get a list of the residents' names from the home's office, and mail the cards. Monthly parties are held for folks with birthdays falling in the same month.

Once weekly the Salvation Army Women's Corps sings gospel hymns at the home and circulates reading material in the wards. The Christian Scientists hold services Thursday nights.

Other groups which visit the home are the Vaughan men's Bible class of Calvary Baptist Church and members of First Brethren, Metropolitan (Negro) Baptist, the Full Gospel Tabernacle and the Mennonite Church. Most of the organizations sponsor special projects at Christmas and during other holidays.

There are now 426 white and Negro men and women living at the home.

Vandals Topple Md. Tombstones

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 5.—Tombstones marking the final resting places of members of some of Maryland's oldest families have been toppled over and even removed by vandals here.

Scene of the desecration is the churchyard of historic St. Andrew's Church. Built in 1766, it once numbered George Washington among the members of its congregation.

The vandals were supposedly hunting for buried whiskey. During prohibition the sequestered graveyard, shielded by dense woods, was found ideal by bootleggers for hiding their wares.

Bishop Confirms 37 in Ceremony

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 5.—At an impressive service yesterday afternoon at the Episcopal Mission atop the Blue Ridge Mountains in Greene County, Bishop W. Roy Mason confirmed a class of 37 mountain folk.

As the mission building is a one-room shack, which is also used as a public school, the confirmation service was held out of doors and was attended by 125 mountaineers. One of the candidates, a 16-year-old boy, who has been a cripple since infancy, was confirmed at his home.

Since 32 of the candidates favored immersion, Bishop Mason acceded to their wishes and held the baptismal service during the morning in a creek about five miles from Standardsville. It was the first time in 20 years that Bishop Mason had officiated at a similar baptismal service.

Five in Field For Vacancy On ABC Board

A former prohibition agent, a women's club leader, and a Retail Liquor Dealers Association official are among five candidates being considered for a vacancy on the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

This was revealed at District Building yesterday after the Commissioners denied they had decided who would fill the vacancy left by the death Sunday of Board Member William P. Meredith.

"We honestly haven't made up our minds," Commissioner Guy Mason insisted. The Commissioners are expected to announce the appointment at their regular board meeting Tuesday.

Peters Not Interested

Mason said J. Wilton Peters, a textile manufacturers' representative who was considered a leading candidate for the post, had indicated he wasn't interested in the job.

Frank D. Tippett, inspector in charge of the Washington field office of the United States Treasury's Bureau of Federal Supply. Tippett, who served as a Government prohibition agent from 1920 to 1936, applied for the post, he said, because he felt he had a good background and could handle the job well.

Hugh Russell Thomas, general auditor of receipts and disbursement for the United States Maritime Commission, was proposed by Attorney John Wattawa.

Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, national legislative chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was urged as a candidate by Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.).

Col. Halsey Dunwoody, a West Point graduate who retired from the Army after World War I and is now employed in a civilian capacity by the Army Transportation Corps, applied for the post.

Jerome McKee, executive director of the D. C. Retail Liquor Dealers Association, was indorsed by the Federation of Businessmen's Association.

Murphy Takes Responsibility In Promotion

Fire Chief Clement Murphy yesterday said he had ordered personally the noncompetitive promotion of a $3398-a-year private to a $5023-a-year assistant machinery superintendent.

Back after a vacation, Cheif Murphy said he wanted to make it clear Deputy Chief Frank G. Berry did not promote Pvt. William H. Boswell, his former driver, on his own initiative.

"Chief Berry acted only on my specific instructions," Chief Murphy declared.

He insisted there was nothing irregular about Boswell's noncompetitive advancement, which was fully approved by the Civil Service Commission.

Murphy admitted Boswell had been a cosigner for a $2400 loan from the Uniform Firemen's Credit Association, but denied it had affected the promotion in any way.

Chief Berry and Boswell conferred yesterday with Corporation Counsel Oliver Gasch, who is investigating charges made against Chief Murphy last June by Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, president of Local 36, International Association of Firefighters. He told a House District Subcommittee Murphy was "demoralizing" the department. The Commissioners subsequently ordered an investigation.

Justice Dept. Takes Step in Durant Case

The Justice Department disclosed yesterday it has taken under advisement the case of former Wac Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant, convicted with her husband in the $1,500,000 Hesse crown jewel thefts.

Mrs. Durant, meanwhile, was one step nearer freedom after a Charleston, W. Va., court order voided her conviction on grounds that the Army court-martial "lacked jurisdiction."

T. Vincent Quinn, chief of the Justice Department's criminal division, however, said yesterday the case "has not been taken under advisement." He declined further comment.

United States District Judge Ben Moore ruled Thursday in Charleston that Mrs. Durant was a civilian at the time of her arrest, and the court-martial lacked jurisdiction in sentencing her to five years in prison.

He emphasized the ruling was not on Mrs. Durant's guilt, but said she was "an officer on inactive duty" and was recalled to active duty one day before her terminal leave exired, and then arrested.

Her husband, Col. Jack Durant, was sentenced to 15 years.

The Army judge advocate general's office withheld comment pending receipt of official word on Judge Moore's ruling. There has been no final order directing her release from the Federal penitentiary for women in Alderson, W. Va.

Man Brought Back From Kansas in Circus Slaying

Baltimore, Sept. 5 (AP).—Police today brought back from Hutchinson, Kans., a man booked as Hubert Thompson, 44, under indictment in the slaying last June of a trucking contractor who worked with the Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The victim was Richard Sheehan, 34, of Arlington, Va., shot five times as he sat in a rest tent while the circus was showing in Baltimore.

Sheehan was a subcontractor in charge of the circus sanitary crew. His mailing address was 5711 N. Washington blvd. in Arlington. The slain man's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Sheehan, and brother, Edward J. Sheehan, live at the same address.

Educators Express Concern Over Shortage of Teachers

U. S. Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker yesterday voiced new concern over a Nation-wide shortage of teachers.

District School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning said Washington's schools would continue to feel the shortage, but that it was too early to say how acute it will be in the new school year.

Dr. Corning said it would take at least a year to test what the newly increased Washington teacher pay scales will do to attract more qualified teachers.

He said the biggest teacher shortage is expected to be in the white elementary schools. He said almost no shortage is expected in the high schools, and none in the Negro schools.

Dr. Corning emphasized that the basic solution to the teacher shortage lies in increased enrollments in teacher training institutions. If teacher pay raises here and elsewhere do attract more teacher trainees, he pointed out there would still be a four-year lag before the y would be ready for actual teaching. Studebaker estimated that the Nation would need about one million new teachers in the next 10 yeears.

He predicted that 32 million students would be enrolled in the Nation's schools and colleges this fall. He said that 2,450,000 six-year-olds are expected to start school this year, compared with 2,247,000 last year. High school enrollments will be 6,300,000, compared with 6,275,000 last year. College enrollments are expected to reach 2,750,000, an increase of 600,000 over last year.

Dr. Corning said District enrollment estimates are made uncertain by the new law requiring non-District students entering the schools here for the first time to pay tuition. An increase is expected here in the elementary grades, but the high school enrollment would be little changed, he said.

Va. Forester Submits Report

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 5 (AP). Virginia's State foresters selected and marked 44 million board feet of privately owned timber for harvesting under good forestry practices in the fiscal year ended June 30, State Forester George W. Dean reported today.

That is about 4 per cent of the lumber cut in Virginia during the last fiscal year.

Grable's Very Nice in 'Tights,' But Watch This Dan Dailey

(Mr. Brady, an instructor in the speech and drama department at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post's theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.)

By Leo Brady

"MOTHER WORE TIGHTS," at the Palace, much to my surprise, is a pleasant little comedy which compensates for the presence of Betty Grable in its cast by putting most of its money on the whiz-bang performer named Dan Dailey.

Dailey, a little research reveals, was in a spate of pictures before the war, but this seems to be his first appearance since he climbed out of a uniform. He plays Father, who wore check suits. He is a crass, brassy hoofer of the burlesk vaudeville school extant 30 years ago, and Dailey mugs and mouths and squints and struts him in a manner delightful to behold.

Father is the kind of gold-hearted wise guy with a gold-plated front who is prevented from going the way of Hal Skelly and Bert Lahr by the gentle ministrations of Mother, who is, of course, stemmed nicely but acted lamentably by Miss Grable.

Life in Show Business

The story is a kind of chronological rundown of the life and times of two nice people in show business. They team up as youngsters and play vaudeville all over the country, running through some modest but effective production numbers which are knowingly staged by Kenny Williams. "Kokomo, Indiana," is probably the best number Mother and Father do together, but Dailey will never let you down.

The scenes are unusual for a musical picture because everybody in the picture makes some attempt to understand everybody else. No sooner does a little domestic difficulty come up, than they all huddle around and work it out—usually by means of a song. Not once, it should be triumphantly announced, do Miss Grable and Dailey really pout at each other or sing moony Alice-Faye songs until the last reel unites them. They act like people all the way.

Their crises consist in Mother working out a method to make Father propose to her; waking up a sleepy summer resort; and convincing daughter Mona Freeman that she shouldn't be ashamed of her song-and-dance parents, even thought she does attend Miss Ridgeway's finishing school. All of this comes off in a casual, unhectic way for which credit should go to writer Lamar Trotti, who does an awful lot of good screen scripting, and Director Walter Lang.

Connie Marshall plays the younger of the two daughters with a great deal of appeal and has only a couple of ridiculous lines to say—a high average. Nobody else has a great deal to do, although Chick Chandler ripples off a slick scene as an even more vulgar hoofer than Father, and Sara Allgood has one choice line when she defends chorus-girl Mother from a literal-minded sailor.

There's a little schmaltz involved here and there, of course, but it treads lightly. Mostly this is an unpretentious and entertaining picture, and though Mother wore the tights, Father does the highest and pleasantest stepping.

How many of these reporters do you know?

Suppose someone stepped up and asked you to name some of the reporters on Washington newspapers. Could you do it? Which ones would you name?

A cross-section of Washingtonians got that question the other day. Many couldn't remember the name of a single reporter on any paper. But 199 of those interviewed were able to name one or more reporters. And here's the box score of the leaders:

Reporter	No. of Mentions	Paper
1. Shirley Povich	47	POST
2. Edward Folliard	30	POST
3. Jerry Klutts	24	POST
4. Alfred Friendly	9	POST
5. Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.	9	Star
6. Newbold Noyes, Jr.	8	POST
7. Mary Spargo	8	Star
8. John O'Leary	7	Star
9. Francis Stann	7	POST
10. Dillard Stokes	7	POST
11. Robert Albright	6	POST
12. Agnes Meyer	5

Of these twelve, 9 write for The Washington Post. And all of the 5 best known are Washington Post reporters.

What does this prove? This, in our opinion:

To become well-known, a reporter has to be good; good enough so that people who read his news articles say to themselves, "This is good, this is interesting, I wonder who wrote it," and then glance back to the beginning of the article to look for the name.

Evidently this has happened a lot of times with Washington Post readers. It fits right in with another finding of the survey: that when The Washington Post is paired off with other Washington newspapers, readers vote 2 to 1, and 7 to 1, and 8 to 1, that "The Washington Post has the best news reporters."

Do you select your newspaper primarily for its reporting of the news? This confirms your wisdom in choosing The Washington Post.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—On the day when major league baseball comes to Los Angeles, as it surely will some day, all attendance records for a single game will be shattered. Angelenos, as the newspapers call the natives out here, will launch their big league club with an opening game turnout of 99,000.

POVICH

That kind of a baseball crowd is possible only in the Los Angeles Coliseum which seats more than 101,000 for football. The Coliseum people, to provide 300-foot foul lines for baseball, would gouge out a couple of thousand seats with no great sense of loss.

That's one of the factors that will hasten the big leagues into Los Angeles. The major league club owners are not so unimpressionable as to ignore the fat checks they would pick up in Los Angeles as the visiting club's end of the gate receipts.

The American League owners have not spouted publicly on the sad situation at St. Louis where the visiting clubs have scarcely been making transportation and hotel expenses since midseason, but privately they are concerned. They are not necessarily crass about it when they look toward the richer revenue from Los Angeles.

California and the Pacific Coast are dreaming for the day when they are part of the big leagues. The newpapers here play up the big league scores exactly as if they weren't 2000 miles distant from the nearest major league park. The Coast's native sons in the majors get the big play, of course.

It's been pretty galling to Coast fans to see their home-grown stars develop and then whisked away to the majors in the East, never to be seen in a big league uniform except by those Coast people rich enough to afford the expensive trips. They want to see the DiMaggios and Bobby Doerr and Ted Williams and Joe Gordon and the other Coast boys who made it, but they want to see 'em in a big league setting, not in the after-season exhibition games out here.

THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE, still looking down its nose at the come-lately All-American Conference, has suddenly started to brag about its fine old traditions. The league's stationery now bears a sticker reading: "28th year," as if to stick out its tongue at the AAC.

What strikes us is the fact that 28 years ago there wasn't any National Football League. It wasn't until 1922 that the National Football League was heard of. Up to that year, there was an American Professional Football Association, a loose-knit circuit that included such whistle stops as Dayton, Canton, Muncie, Rock Island, Hammond and Decatur. But the NFL was an outgrowth of that circuit.

While the NFL is about it, why didn't they go all the way back to 1902 to point out the fine old traditions. In their 1947 manual, it is startling to read that the pro football championship of the world was claimed by no other than Connie Mack 45 years ago.

Yep, Mr. Mack used to be a football magnate. He organized the Philadelphia Athletics Football team with Rube Waddell, his best pitcher in the lineup, and beat a Pitsburgh team that had Christy Mathewson at fullback. That's when Mack claimed the championship.

JOHNNY MIZE is one up on Babe Ruth's home run pace of 1927 with 45 homers on the same date when Ruth was boasting 44, in the year when he set the record of 60. But this is no time for Mize to smug about it and contemplate the ease with which he can smash Ruth's mark.

In fact, Mize had better get a move on if he wants to keep ahead of Ruth's 1927 pace in the next few days. Because on September 6, 1927, the Babe whacked his forty-fifth, forty-sixth and forty-seventh homers, and the following day he got his forty-eighth and forty-ninth. That's five homers in a two-day spurt, and one of the reasons Mize does not figure to surpass the Babe.

Ruth has been quoted that he won't mind seeing Mize break his record because "it will still be in the family." He points out that Mize is a cousin of Mrs. Ruth. But what the Giants' slugger needs more than his kinship to the Babe is a few more cousins among National League pitchers from here in.

Cup Regatta Opens With Swim Meet

With the Olympics coming up next season, participants in tonight's President's Cup Regatta swimming meet will go all-out for recognition at East Potomac Park Pool, where local stars vie with a flock of topnotch out-of-town entrants.

The first event is at 7:30 o'clock. Admission is free.

Tomorrow afternoon the rowing and canoeing phases of the regatta will be held in the Upper River of the Potomac, at 1 p. m.

DeForrest anad Frank Harter will join Verdeur in the medley relay event, the winner of which will receive the President's Cup.

Officials are looking for a flock of records to go by the boards. Leola Thomas, Ambassador feminine ace, holder of 100-meter individual medley, free style and backstroke records, and with her eyes riveted on an Olympic berth, will "shoot the works." Hank Talks, But . . .

Bucs Sure Greenberg Won't Switch Clubs

Pittsburgh, Sept. 5 (AP).—Roy Hamey, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, expressed conviction today that Hank Greenberg would remain with the Buccos if the slugger prolongs his playing career beyond this year, despite a report that Greenberg might seek other hire for his big bat.

Hamey said he had learned that Hank candidly had admitted declaring he was through as a Pirate player after this year, but that Greenberg asserted the remark was only a peevish ouburst not intended seriously.

Greenberg's remark was dropped in a pregame batting drill yesterday.

"I had just come back to the bench from the batting cage yesterday when a fellow on the bench asked me about my plans for next year," the former American League home run king said.

"I didn't know he was a reporter, because our bench was full of people. He quoted me correctly, but today my plans are changed again."

Greenberg had been quoted as saying:

"If I do play next year, it won't be with Pittsburgh."

"I'm sure that if Hank plays anywhere it will be with us," Hamey said. "His relations with us have been unusually good and I see no reason to think otherwise. I know how earnestly he has tried for a big year, and I believe his failure to hit as well as he wants to has irked him. But we've been more than satisfied.

The big slugger currently is hitting only .258, but he's second on the club in runs batted in with 71 and he's pounded 24 homers.

Greenberg was "not accepting" telephone calls at his apartment here.

Hamey admitted, however, that under an agreement with the big slugger who is receiving a reported $80,000 for his 1947 services, Greenberg is free to sever his connections with the club at the end of the season.

Billy Herman, manager of the last-place Buccos, said:

"Hank has never said a word either way to me on his plans for next year."

Meanwhile Greenberg himself, while not clearing the situation, said today that he plans a post-season operation on an ailing elbow.

Alexander Leads Denver Open With 137

Denver, Sept. 5 (AP).—Players from the Southland grabbed the leadership in one-two-three order today as the Nation's top golfers began conquering the tough Cherry Hills course in the second round of the $15,000 Denver Open tournament.

A former Duke University star from Lexington, N. C., Stewart "Skip" Alexander, proved himself the steadiest competitor as he shot a 68 to go with yesterday's 69 and took first place with a 5-under-par 137.

Holding second and third spots with about half of the field across the finish line were Dr. Cary Middlecoff, handsome young dentist from Memphis, Tenn., with 138 and John Palmer of Badin, N. C., recent winner of the Western Open, with 139.

Middlecoff, who shot a 68 yesterday for second place at the end of the opening round in the 72-hole medal tournament, slipped to 70 today, but Palmer improved with a 69 after making the first tour in 70.

Few if any players have circled the exacting Denver course without serious trouble on at least one hole and Alexander was no exception. After shooting two birdies on the front nine, he mired in the numerous sand traps around the eighth green and took a two-over-par 5.

He opened the back nine with two quick birdies on the tenth and eleventh, stumbled again on the 14th with a one-over-par five, then sank a 30-foot chip shot on the 17th for the finishing punch that pushed him ahead of the field.

In fourth place at 140 was E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, of York, Pa. Next at 141 came Bobby Locke, of Johannesburg, South Africa. Jack Harder of El Paso, Texas, had 142.

Deadlocked at 143 were Gene Webb, of Springfield, Mo.; Ed "Porky" Oliver, of Wilmington, Del.; Rod Munday, of Sylvania, Ohio; Fred Hawkins, of Antioch, Ill.; Edward Furgol, of Pontiac, Mich.; Ray Gafford, of Fort Worth, Texas, and John Rogers, of Denver.

Bums Beat Giants; Mize Belts 45th

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Brooklyn outlasted the New York Giants in a slugging bee played on the sodden Polo Grounds turf today, 7-6, to open up a seven-game lead over the idle St. Louis Cardinals in the National League race.

Forced to come from behind in the late innings despite a three-run first inning blast against Larry Jansen, the Brooks beat off a ninth inning challenge to snap Jansen's 10-game win streak. Not even Johnny Mize's forty-fifth homer with Buddy Kerr on base in the ninth was enough to stop the Dodgers pennant drive.

The Brooks almost chased the Rookie Jansen in the first when Eddie Stanky's single, an error by Jansen, two outfield flies and Dixie Walker's two-run homer, his eighth, added up to three runs. But the Giants got one back in the second on Sid Gordon's single followed by Lloyd Gearhart's double and a fly ball by Jack Lohrke.

MacPhail Denies He Said Durocher Won't Be Back

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Stories in several New York newspapers quoting Larry MacPhail as saying he doubted that Leo Durocher would return as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers next season were denied here tonight by the fiery president of the New York Yankees.

In a statement issued at the All-America conference football game between the grid Yankees and the Chicago Rockets, MacPhail said:

"I had no press conference in Washington. I did not meet with the press or issue any statement of any kind to the press. No reported was authorized to quote me.

"Whether Mr. Rickey hires Durocher again is Mr. Rickey's affair and certainly none of my business and I have no knowledge as to his desires or intentions."

Stories from Washington, written by staff members of New York's afternoon newspapers, had quoted MacPhail as saying during a press conference in the Capital yesterday:

"It's a 100 to 1 shot that Leo don't be back as Brooklyn manager. Do you think Leo would have been suspended for a year if Rickey had not wanted him suspended?"

Mickey Hangs on for Win

Haefner Has Shutout Until Ninth Inning

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Little Mickey Haefner pitched himself out of a bad hole in the ninth inning at Griffith Stadium last night and the Nats scored their second victory in a row over the New York Yankees, 3-2.

The Nats were leading 3-0 going into the ninth inning when the Yanks suddenly came to life. Tommy Henrich opened for the Yanks with a double. Joe DiMaggio singled, scoring Henrich, and George McQuinn followed with the third hit of the inning sending DiMaggio to third.

Billy Johnson then flied to Buddy Lewis with DiMaggio scoring after the catch.

But Mickey came through, forcing Sherman Lollar to hit to Johnny Sullivan at short who threw out Lonnie Frey, running for McQuinn, ending the game.

The Nats were quick on the draw and had a 1-0 lead before you could say "Sherry Robertson" and the player by that name paved the way with a double off the top of the right-field fence in the first inning.

The smack came after Lewis had walked and sent the latter to third from where he scored while Vernon was rolling out to McQuinn.

Mancuso started the Nats' second frame with a single but Wensloff settled down and got the next six batters in order.

The Yanks put a man on through a walk in the first, and had another base runner when McQuinn singled to start the second but it was not until the third when Sternweiss and Lindell singled that they had a scoring chance. This went by the boards when Yost took care of DiMaggio's hot grounder.

Two Washington scoring opportunities petered out in the next three innings while Haefner was setting down the Yanks in one, two, three order.

With two out in the fourth, Mancuso made his second single, a scratch affair and Sullivan walked, but Haefner flied to right. The little hurler also was the last out in the sixth when the Nats filled the bases on Spence's single, Rizzuto's error and a walk to Sullivan. This time Haefner popped meekly to Johnson at third.

Our side went two up on the league leaders in the seventh. Yost led off with a walk, Lewis sacrificed and then Vernon slammed an off-the-signboard double to send Yost across after Robertson flied out. Spence was purposely passed and Rizzuto ended it all with a leaping spear of Priddy's liner.

Sullivan, with one away and the Yanks' Starr pitching in the eighth, sent a drive along the right-field foul line that bounced every way while Henrich chased it. Sullivan hot-footed for a triple. Haefner was walked. After Yost popped to Rizzuto, Lewis singled to left, sending Sullivan over for run No. 3. Robertson rolled out to curtain the inning.

School Football Series to Start

HIGH SCHOOL, prep and private schools in the Washington area are in the midst of preparations for the approaching football season.

To give fans an insight on how these teams will shape up, The Washington Post will publish a story on the players, schedules and so on of each of these schools.

The first stories will appear tomorrow, and others will follow daily, written by Herb Heft and Roger Wolbarst of the sports staff.

Opening Net Play Delayed

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP).—Sodden courts at the Westside Tennis Club today forced the postponement until tomorrow of first round matches in the national singles championships.

It had been expected that all the men's first-round matches and a good part of the women's singles would be completed today. However, if the weather remains favorable for the rest of the tournament it is expected the finals can be played September 14 as scheduled.

Defending Champion Jack Kramer is not listed to play until the second day of competition, but other outstanding performers will appear on tomorrow's program. Gardner Mulloy appears in the opening match against Bitsy Grant.

Jaroslav Drobny, hard-hitting Czechoslovakian, meets Clayton Benham, champion of Hawaii, in another first-round match of more than casual interest, and Billy Talbert takes on Herbert Flam, former national junior champion, in still another.

Braves Edge Phils; Spahn's 17th Win

Boston, Sept. 5 (AP).—Lefty Warren Spahn tonight won his seventeenth game and his first of the season over Philadelphia as the Braves edged the Phillies 2-1 before 18,050 fans.

The loss dropped the Quakers into a tie for the cellar with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Rams Favored Over Redskins Before 70,000

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—Some 70,000 were expected to pay in excess of last year's gate of $102,000 tonight at the Coliseum where the Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams renew their pre-season exhibition football gam esponsored by Los Angeles in the interest of charity.

The Rams are two-touchdown favorites with a wealth of backfield talent in the third meeting between the rivals.

Interesting phase of the contest may be a passing duel between the 'Skins' Sammy Baugh and Los Angeles' Bob Waterfield. It was Waterfield's superiority which decided the 1945 meeting in favor of the Rams.

Mrs. Filchock Now Mrs. Bagarus

Los Angeles, Sept. 5.—The anticlimax of the famous Steve Bagarus-Frank Filchock-Mrs. Filchock story finally was made official today. Mrs. Filchock is now Mrs. Bagarus, and she has been for the last seven months.

Steve, in training with the Los Angeles Rams, made the fact known along with the announcement that the marriage took place in Reno last February. Mrs. Bagarus had obtained decrees in Tiajuana, Mexico, and Reno from Filchock, former Giant backfield star who was banned as an upshot of the now famous football "bribe" case.

"Upsy-Downsy" Added Attraction

Colts Planning to Out-Marshal Marshall In Hopes of Luring 45,000 to Home Opener

By John Chandler

BALTIMORE, Sept. 5 (AP).—Major league football comes to town Sunday when the Baltimore Colts, baby member of the All-America Conference, meet the Brooklyn Dodgers and a good part of the interest seems to concern the size of the "gate."

It is generally conceded that Coach Cecil Isbell's team has a tough assignment in facing the seven other established members of the conference, now in its second year.

Colt officials expect a crowd of about 45,000 at Municipal Stadium, which would make Owner Bob Rodenberg—wealthy Washington, D. C., sportsman—happy that he acquired a franchise. The defunct Miami, Fla., Seahawks, whose demise made way for Baltimore, drew only 50,151 persons in seven home games last season.

Rodenberg apparently hopes to outmarshal George Preston Marshall and his Washington Redskins in the entertainment field, for the Colts' marching band with six drum majorettes, a 15-piece swing orchestra, a barbershop quartet and other attractions will be there to help the football team get over in its initial appearance.

WINX to Air Game

All games played by the Baltimore Colts of the All-America Football Conference this season will be broadcast over WINX and WINX-FM by Ted Husing, veteran sports announcer.

The Colts will open the 1947 season tomorrow in a game with the Brooklyn Dodgers in Baltimore, and the broadcast will begin at 2:05 p. m. The Colts have 14 games scheduled, running through December 7, and all will be broadcast by Husing over WINX facilities.

For several years Marshall has brought his Redskins here for charity exhibitions, drawing crowds of 40,000 to 50,000.

Isbell also will introduce "upsy-downsy" line play, which he hopes will confound and dismay the pro grid world.

Isbell is the father of the idea, a technique in which the linemen don't move their feet, as in a shift, but raise and lower their bodies at odd moments between the time they line up for play and the snapping of the ball.

The Colts coach calculates the unorthodox method will disturb the peace of mind of opposing linemen sufficiently to draw them off balance and perchance off side, which is good strategy in any grid game.

According to Isbell, the play is strictly legal and in line with AA rules, adding that the only trouble is the Colts have sometimes fooled themselves with the up-and-down manipulations.

Mrs. Price Runnerup, Stroke Back

Mrs. G. R. Levy of Prince Georges Golf and Country Club shot a 96-19—77 to win The Washington Post Class B Trophy yesterday in the annual D. C. Women's Golf Association Tournament at Prince Georges.

Continuing to show marked improvement—Mrs. Levy has cut her handicap from 32 to 19 in one season—the Prince Georges golfer defeated a field of 68. After her victory, Mrs. Levy's handicap was lowered further to 17 and she was moved up to Class A.

The low gross award went to Mrs. Bradley Burrows, of Indian Spring, who toured the course in 100.

Mrs. Price Second

One stroke behind Mrs. Levy in the trophy competition was Mrs. Weldon Price of Washington Golf and Country Club, with a 105-27—78. Mrs. R. L. Hutchison of Washington had a 101-23—78 to take third place after matching with Mrs. Price.

Next came Mrs. James Somes of Kenwood, with 103-24—79, Miss Grace King, Manor, 103-24—79, and Mrs. Alfred Brand, Belle Haven, 101-22—79. Mrs. Gus Dimberg, Washington, shot a 110-29—81 and Mrs. W. G. Hipps, Army-Navy, 103-22—81.

Two Deadlock

Other prize winners were Mrs. Lois Russel, Prince Georges, 106-24—82; Mrs. Leonard Obert, Indian Spring, 113-30—83; Mrs. Houston Harper, Congressional, 111-28—83 and Mrs. Willard Edwards, Indian Spring, 106-28—83.

Mrs. Edgar Kreutzberg, Kenwood, finished in a deadlock for twelfth place with Mrs. Edwards at 83 but lost out in a drawing for the prize.

Terps Hold 'Showdown' Drills Today

WITH A WEEK of hard work behind them nearly 100 University of Maryland football players will lay their reputations and their jobs on the line at 3:30 this afternoon when they take to the turf in the first full scale scrimmage of the year.

The most exacting spectator among the 100 newspapermen sportscasters and sports personalities who have been invited to attend will be Terrapin Head Coach Jim Tatum who will use the performance as a yard stick in making the first squad cut tomorrow.

Tatum, who has seen his eight teams in live scrimmages for three days feels that today's simulated game conditions will offer a truer test for his prospects and has announced a "big cut over the weekend."

Scheduled for unwrapping along with the rest of the squad is Jim LaRue an explosive pigskin parcel who reported to the squad only yesterday and immediately began work with the first string backfields.

LaRue, who played two years of wartime ball under Eddie Cameron at Duke while in the Navy V-5 program, hails from Clinton, Okla., where he was all States halfback in his high school days. Tatum makes no bones about being high on the 170-pound halfback who makes the most of scoring speed and jack rabbit elusiveness.

Not even Tatum knows where the ax will fall when he begins cutting the squad. With 72 freshmen whom the coach terms "just as green as grass" facing the stiffest test it is likely that many of them will fall.

Rhodes Is Victim . . .

Bubby Worsham Rallies To Win D. C. Junior Golf Title

Marvin (Bubby) Worsham, brother of National Open Champion Lew Worsham, followed the winning Worsham tradition by defeating Pat Rhodes, 2 up in 18 holes to win the District of Columbia Junior Open Golf Tournament yesterday on Georgetown Prep course.

To gain the final round Worsham defeated 15-year-old Bob Wolfe, 6 and 5, and Rhodes edged Lew Swartout, 1 up.

Worsham, former Bethesda Chevy Chase High School star who will enter Wake Forest University this month, beat down a determined rally by Rhodes after the latter had drawn to within one stroke of Bubby on the seventeenth.

Shooting a one over par 36 on the first nine to Rhodes' 39, Worsham held a three-up lead at the turn.

Worsham birdied the tenth to go four up, then Rhodes started to rally. After halving the 11th, Rhodes won the 12th as Worsham 3-putted. They halved the 13th and the 14th was a nightmare to Worsham.

His third shot buried itself in the sand trap to the right of the green and his recovery went over the green. By the time he holed out he had a 7 and Rhodes' 6 was good enough to win the hole and put him only two down.

Both three putted on the 15th to halve the hole and both drove badly and had trouble on the 16th before halving it with 6s.

On the 17th, Rhodes let fly a beautiful drive which almost went down for an ace, but he dropped his short putt for a birdie two to take the hole and trail by one hole.

The former Devitt golfer then proceeded to cancel his fine recovery attempt by blowing the 18th as Worsham bore down and parred the hole with a 4. Rhodes topped his drive, got on in 3 and two putted for a bogie five to lose 2 up.

Don Dedrick defeated Eugene Carusi, 4 and 3 to win the second flight championship and Dennis Bolster downed Jay Lent, 4 and 3, to take third flight honors.

The complete results of yesterday's play follows:

Loyalty Test Won't Bring Witch Hunt, Tolson Says

Schwellenbach Becomes First Cabinet Official To File Papers

Clyde A. Tolson, associate director of the FBI, denied last night that the loyalty check on Federal workers will lead to a witch hunt.

"There is no cause for hysteria except on the part of those who have something to conceal," he said.

Earlier, Labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwellenbach became the first cabinet official to fill out and place his fingerprints on loyalty check papers.

In his list of "affiliations," he included the Episcopal Church, the Democratic Party, the American Legion, bar association, the Elks, Eagles and Rotary.

Describes FBI Role

In a broadcast over WRC, Tolson described the part that the FBI will play in the investigation of the Government's 1,800,000 workers. He and Arthur Flemming, U. S. civil service commissioner, who also participated, were questioned by Jerry Klutz, Federal Diary columnist of The Washington Post.

Tolson denied the loyalty investigation will be used to break up Federal worker unions. "Nothing could be further from the truth," he said.

Cites Protection

Flemming said adequate protection for employes faced with dismissal on charges of disloyalty is provided in the system of appeals.

In fact, Flemming said, an accused employe has far greater protection under the program than he formerly had. Mere membership in an organization that developed into a Communist front group is not sufficient cause for dismissal, he added.

An employe will be dismissed only if evidence of his association with such an organization, plus all the other evidence in the case, leads to the conclusion that reasonable grounds exist for believing that he is disloyal to the Government of the United States," Flemming said.

Civil Service Ends Hardman Investigation

Civil Service Commission has completed its investigation of George D. Hardman, Navy employe and former president of the Alexandria Central Labor Union, on charges of alleged Hatch Act violation.

Alfred Klein, chief law officer of CSC, said last night the Commissioners will have to decide whether to drop the case or order a hearing.

Klein said the investigation was touched off by a complaint he received in 1946 that Hardman had violated the Hatch Act by electioneering in the Alexandria elections of November 7, 1944, and November 6, 1945, and in the Democratic primaries of August 7, 1945, and August 6, 1946.

Klein noted that discharge from Government service is the only penalty provided by the law.

A Navy carpenter, Hardman resigned as president of Alexandria Central Labor Union and as vice president of the Carpenters Union Local 1665 in June, 1946, when he was transferred by the Navy to Sands Point, Long Island, N. Y., after a widely publicized fracas with another labor leader.

He was convicted of assaulting Fred Kirchner, State labor department inspector, at an Alexandria CLU election.

Labor groups and several Congressmen called the penalty excessive when Hardman and another labor leader, J. C. Turner, were both sentence dto 90 days in jail and a $250 fine.

A higher court subsequently changed the sentence to a straight $400 fine for each man.

Baltimore Jumps Special Taxes Yield Estimate

Baltimore, Sept. 5 (AP).—Special taxes levied by Baltimore on cigarettes, liquor, utilities and slot machines were expected to produce about four million dollars this year instead of the originally estimated $3,300,000, a survey showed today.

Figures compiled by Charles E. Bichy, superintendent of the Bureau of Receipts, showed that the 3 per cent tax on gas, light and telephone bills already had exceeded by $44,489 the $600,000 expected.

The cent per pack levy on cigarettes brought in $972,394 during the first seven months, the 50-cents-a-gallon levy on liquor produced $722,748 and the $5-$25 levy on pinball, vending and music machines netted $78,337.

The Maryland General Assembly is expected to hold a special session this month to discuss a request by city authorities that these taxes be extended beyond the present expiration date, December 31.

Marilyn Krug Named Queen For President's Cup Regatta

A "shy," honey-haired miss of 20, who hopes to be a wife and mother but is studying for a school teacher's license "just in case," yesterday won the coveted role of queen of the President's Cup Regatta.

The honor went to soft-spoken Marilyn Krug, Washington debutante and daughter of Interior Secretary and Mrs. Julius A. Krug.

To mark the occasion, the President's Cup Regatta Association threw a cocktail party for the University of Wisconsin coed at the Statler. And judging from the attention showered on the 5' 6" "queen," that teaching degree will wither from disuse.

Still, the tanned, lovely girl, who will be crowned at a ball September 20, preferred to remain strictly mum on all matters dealing with romance.

Poses With Composure

"That's a touchy subject," she replied to reporters' queries on her heart interest, demurely closing her blue eyes for a moment. "Couldn't we just skip over that?"

Although a self-styled "introvert" and "shy" young lady, Miss Krug posed for a battery of news photographers without once losing her composure.

She wore a becoming two-piece blue chambray dress, just a few inches below her knees because "I just hate" the new and controversial longer lengths. On her wrist were half a dozen silver bracelets.

Miss Krug, who hails from Madison, Wis., received ample preparation for her role as ruler while a member of the court of darkmaned Drucie Snyder, daughter of the Treasury Secretary, who was last year's queen.

Events Start Tonight

Nonetheless, she was "very thrilled" at the top billing in store for her this year.

Events will get underway tonight at 7:30 o'clock with a meet at the East Potomac Park swimming pool. Tomorrow, at 1 p. m., there will be canoeing and rowing races in the Potomac near Key Bridge. Next weekend sailing races are scheduled and the following weekend powerboat races will be held, with finals Sunday afternoon, September 21.

Tomatoes Rot As Cannery Force Strikes

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 5 (AP).—Maryland's Eastern Shore farmers, with tomatoes already rotting on the vines and in baskets for lack of canning facilities, today were without services of their largest consumer, the Campbell Soup Co. plant, which Manager W. L. Parvin said was closed by a strike.

Parvin said a group of workers met other employes at the gate last night and told them the plant would not be operated. The plant employes 700 and normally operates until October.

The plant manager said an open shop prevails and he was unaware if a strike vote had been taken. The workers made no statements.

Parvin said the shutdown came after a demand for an increase of ten cents an hour and a 10 per cent night differential. Present starting scales are 65 cents an hour for women, 70 cents for men and 76 cents for night workers.

The Salisbury Campbell plant cleans thousands of bushels of tomatoes daily.

Eastern Shore farmers reported two weeks ago they were facing losses because present canning facilities in the area were unable to handle a near-record crop. As prices dropped sharply, some farmers and their wives volunteered as temporary night workers to help clear the jam.

Policeman Before Trial Board Tells of Lapse of Memory

Police Pvt. Alfred M. Burnell, 33, told the Police Trial Board yesterday he could not remember anything about four incidents of unbecoming conduct which witnesses said he was involved in August 8.

He pleaded not guilty to charges of conduct unbecoming an officer on two counts, being under the influence of liquor, and drinking in public while off duty. The Trial Board reserved its decision last night, after a hearing which took most of the day.

Burnell was accused by Miss Mary H. Pence, a waitress, of slapping her face after she had declined his invitation to take her home at about 1 a. m. on August 8.

Durley Proctor, operating engineer for the Board of Education, testified that Burnell was drunk on that morning, had snatched his pocketbook and then returned it, and also said to Proctor, a Negro, "I hate all them black sons of ——" without any provocation.

Burnell, who has been on the police force more than seven years, admitted that on the night in question, after getting off duty at 11:30 p. m. from No. 11 Precinct, he had had a glass of whisky equal to "three or four shots" at the Hillcrest Grill, 2714 Good Hope rd. se.

He left the grill with another officer a few minutes later, he said, "presumably" to go home, but had no recollection of anything after that until 10 minutes to 5 that morning, when he woke up in a lawn chair in back of his apartment house, he declared.

Pvt. Burnell, who is married and has two children, with another expected, declared he had contracted tropical malaria while in Panama and Nicaragua with the Marines in 1928 and 1929. He said the fever had caused lapses of memory at other times, but did not know whether his failure to remember the incidents of August 8 was due to the malaria.

Pvt. Francis J. Gallaghan, who was on his beat outside the Hillcrest Grill when Miss Pence came out to take the bus home, said he saw Burnell slap Miss Pence lightly after she again refused Burnell's request to take her home, according to her testimony. Shortly after that, Miss Spence, who lives at 1301 Ridge pl. se., got on a bus.

Proctor, whose home is at 5202 Jay st. ne., testified Burnell was "weaving and bobbing," and came up to him as he prepared to drive off after buying cigarettes at the grill.

Pvt. Gallaghan testified he had seen Burnell talking to Proctor at about 12:30 a. m., had told Proctor to drive on, and had called the precinct to see if a scout car was available to take Burnell home. He believed Burnell had been drinking, but was not drunk. He tried to get him to walk home, he said, when a car was not available.

Lane to Ask For Six on Rent Board

Move Is Planned To Make Md. Group 'More Representative' Of Population

Recommendations for new members of the Montgomery-Prince Georges Rental Area Advisory Board will be made by Gov. William Preston Lane of Maryland, a spokesman for the Governor said yesterday.

Federal Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon had announced Thursday that he was writing Governor Lane to advise him that membership of the six-man board did not appear adequately "representative."

He said he had requested that Governor Lane recommend additional members to bring the board into balance. None of the six persons first named to the board are tenants.

Governor Lane's spokesman said the letter from Creedon had not been received yesterday, but that the Governor would submit additional names for the board as soon as the request is received.

Five is the minimum number of members who may serve on a board, but there is no limitation on how many members a board may have. The board named for the Baltimore area has 13 members.

The Montgomery-Prince Georges board which held its first meeting Wednesday in Silver Spring is composed at present of a builder, a mortgage department official, a banker, an architect, a restaurant owner, and Mayor Harry A. L. Barker of Riverdale, who was elected the board chairman.

In announcing that Governor Lane would be asked to recommend additional members to the Montgomery-Prince Georges board, the office of the Federal housing expediter said Creedon had also ordered a Nation-wide review of all appointments to area rent advisory boards.

The advisory boards are being set up in 614 rent-control areas throughout the country. About 350 such boards have already been formed.

Millions Go Into Va., Md. Roadbuilding

The Public Roads Administration has announced that State and Federal highway projects, either in the planning stage or actually underway, total $37,900,934 for Virginia and $17,498,000 for Maryland.

Virginia is at work constructing 134.3 miles of roads at a total cost of $18,780,999, while Maryland is building 93.6 miles costing $9,226,000.

Virginia Figures

Figures furnished for Virginia show:

Under construction—134.3 miles; total cost, $18,780,999, of which $11,292,752 will be Federal aid.

Plans approved but roads not under construction—322.8 miles; total cost, $7,049,985, of which $3,433,202 will be Federal aid.

Programmed, but plans not approved—84.8 miles; total cost, $12,069,950, of which $6,332,949 will be Federal aid.

Completed during the fiscal year ending last June 30—22.8 miles; total cost $3,390,014, of which $2,315,944 came from Federal aid.

Maryland Program

Maryland has a $12,200,000 highway program already under way, covering 150 miles, with an additional $5,296,000 project proposed for 58 miles, the Public Roads Administration said yesterday.

The Free State's program includes 26.9 miles completed in the year ending last June 30 at a cost of $1,495,000, of which $871,000 was paid by the Federal Government.

Construction is now under way in the state on 93.6 miles of road at a cost of $9,226,000, with the Federal Government paying $5,719,000.

In addition, plans have been approved for other construction, not yet begun, of 31.6 miles at a cost of $1,518,000, of which $723,000 will come from Federal funds.

The PRA has not yet approved the plans for the additional outlay of $5,296,000, of which $2,654,000 would come from Federal grants.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1944 authorized 500 million dollars in each of the three fiscal years, following the war to assist the States in developing a three billion dollars highway program.

A total of $207,443,000 was spent throughout the Nation last year under the program, with 118 million dollars coming from Federal funds for 7,797 miles of road.

Va. Apple Commission Collects $63,146

Richmond, Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—The Virginia State Apple Commission created by the 1946 General Assembly to promote the Old Dominion's apple industry collected $63,146.11 in revenues during its first full year of operations, State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett said in an audit report today to Governor Tuck.

Under the law the commission derives its revenues from an excise tax on apples—1¼ cents per bushel, or 3¾ cents per barrel—on all apples packed in covered packages, after the first 200 bushels per grower per year.

Citizen Fire Safety Group Is Proposed

Committee Would Confer With Officials on Changes in Law

A permanent citizens' committee to confer with building inspection and Fire Department officials whenever fire safety regulation changes are proposed was recommended to the Commissioners yesterday.

Frank Weakley, president of the Washington Hotel Association, made the suggestion during a public hearing on proposed changes in fire safety regulations. The changes would apply to certain types of commercial and public buildings constructed here after April 1, 1948.

All of 13 persons who testified at the hearing indorsed, with minor reservations, the regulation changes proposed by a 19-member committee appointed last March to study modification of the tough new code.

The changes are designed to ease "too strict" requirements of the new fire safety regulations, which builders and building owners said would cost them 100 million dollars.

Enforcement of the code, originally postponed to last July 1, was further delayed to April 1, 1948, to enable the committee to present recommendations to the commissioners.

Clouds Tame Heat Wave, Still Here

You may not have felt it, but that heat wave is still in town.

Cloudy weather kept temperatures down yesterday, but today will be mostly sunny and hot, the Weather Bureau warned. You can expect a high of about 90 today, and probably more of the same tomorrow.

The mercury had been expected to reach the 90 mark here yesterday, but its best effort was 81 at 1:54 p. m. The low was 74 at 6:56 a. m.

The Weather Bureau said a cold air front from Canada began moving into th eDakotas yesterday and spreading eastward. It should reach Washington by Monday, and send the heat wave out over the Atlantic.

D. C. Man, 30, Is Fined $150 In Sex Case

A 30-year-old man convicted of indecent exposure yesterday was fined $150, given a 6-month suspended sentence and placed on probation for one year in Municipal Court.

The man, Louis Nicotra, 6621 2d st., nw., was convicted of exposing himself in the presence of a policewoman in Anacostia Park, August 21.

"There is a possibility that psychiatric treatment might help you," said Judge D. Neilson. "So I am suspending imposition of a jail sentence and placing you on probation with the understanding that such treatment be given you. Society must be protected. If science cannot find the answer, the other alternative is jail."

The maximum penalty for indecent exposure is $500 fine or six months imprisonment or both.

Richmond Mayor Asks Referendum On Spending Plan

Richmond, Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—A proposed five-year capital outlay program of $21,500,000 for the City of Richmond was sent to City Council yesterday by Mayor Horace Edwards with the recommendation that it be submitted to the voters in a referendum.

The program would be financed from current revenues and sale of bonds, without necessitating an increase in taxes.

Public schools would receive 40.5 per cent of the outlay, the remainder of which is divided as follows: Public utilities, 31.5 per cent; public works, 20.8 per cent; public safety, 1.2 per cent; public health, 1.1 per cent; general government, 0.2 per cent, and unallocated reserve, 4.7 per cent.

Law Balks Attempts to Aid D. C. Family Without Water

This will be a dry weekend for the Unangst family at 1113 South Carolina ave. se., unless they continue to buy their water at 15 cents a bucket.

Legal, health and welfare officials of the District were stymied yesterday in their attempts to solve the problem of Mrs. Mary Unangst, 28, and her six children who have been forced to borrow water from neighbors—or buy it at 15 cents a pail—since April when the water was shut off because of an unpaid bill of $62.14.

Plight of the Unangst family was revealed Thursday when the mother was charged with violating sanitary laws. The corporation counsel, upon learning the circumstances, refused to prosecute.

Mrs. Unangst, who says she pays $45 rent a month to Paul Delaney, attorney with offices at the Union Trust Building, claims the water bill is not her liability.

Delaney could not be reached by phone. The assessor's office listed as property owner a Martin D. Delaney 2d of Alexandria.

Assistant Corporation Counsel George Lynch said yesterday he would continue investigations Monday to determine if the owner, rather than tenant, could be held legally at fault for tolerating the waterless condition of the dwelling.

E. Milton Dulin, assistant director of the Bureau of Public Health Engineering also said he would investigate to see if the landlord was to be b lamed, legally.

Meanwhile, the Public Assistance Division of the District Board of Public Welfare was legally unable to help the needy family whose money-earner, John, 38, the father is hospitalized as the result of an accident. Unangst is getting $24 a week unemployment insurance.

As Donald Gray, PAD superintendent, explained, the PAD ruling of August 6 precludes help to families whose "minimum budget deficiency" is not at least $20.

So PAD directed Mrs. Unangst yesterday to the Salvation Army. She needed money to feed six children. Mrs. Unangst received a $10 food order from the Army, to tide her over until Monday.

Charges Police Beat Youth Ordered Sifted by Barrett

A full scale investigation has been ordered of charges by the mother of a 21-year-old veteran that her son was beaten by three policemen when being arrested early Sunday.

Richard Edward Jones was taken into custody as he stood in the doorway of his home at 3035 M st. nw., saying goodnight to his girl friend. He is now under observation at Gallinger Hospital, charged with being drunk and disorderly, and with assault on an said in a letter of complaint to Chief of Police Major Robert J. Barrett that her son was so drunk "he could not hurt a child in his condition." Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly was ordered to investigate the case.

Barrett Defends Police

Major Barrett defended the police department, saying a policeman has a right to use force when it is necessary in making an arrest.

He pointed to the youth's record of arrests, when he was charged many times with being drunk and disorderly, and with assault. Major Barrett said: "He is one of those hoodlums who have caused the trouble between the Georgetown students and the police."

Pvt. R. B. Lewis, the arresting officer, declined to discuss the case. Capt. Beverley Beach, in charge of the precinct, has gone on leave and could not be reached for comment.

Inspector Kelly said a preliminary inquiry showed Jones had struck the arresting officer, but that there was a possibility Jones had attempted to use a sliver of glass from a broken window to stab him.

Mrs. Charles Griffith Jones' sister, who lives at the same address, said that two officers who arrived in a scout car held Jones on the ground while Private Lewis hit him on the legs with his club.

"It was only after my husband interceded for him and the officers let him off the ground that he swung at Private Lewis," she said. "He already had a gash on his forehead where he had been struck by the club."

Interviewed at Gallinger Hospital yesterday Jones told a Washington Post reporter that he could not remember anything about the fight.

Jones, who will be 22 February 19, was discharged from the Navy on March 16, 1946.

Youth Draws Fine or Jail Term Despite Tale of Police Beating

The frail-looking 20-year-old youth, charged with disorderly conduct, peered at Judge John P. McMahon out of a bruised and blackened eye.

"The police beat me, judge," he said. "I was trying to find a party I'd been invited to when the policeman grabbed me.

"He asked me what I was looking in windows for and when I told him about the party, he hit me. Then he put an iron grip on my hand and twisted it and tortured me all the way to the precinct.

"When we got there, the policeman and a man in plain clothes beat me until I was unconscious, then they threw water on me until I awoke and started to beat me again. They made bets as to who could sink his fist in my stomach furtherest!"

All this had been disputed by Pvt. Ernest C. McClanahan, of Tenth Precinct, who said the youth was injured when he leaped through a screened window into the basement at 1601 Argonne pl. nw.

McClanahan said the defendant resembled the description of a man wanted for a series of pocketbook snatchings and housebreakings in the vicinity and so he was booked for investigation. The charge was later changed to disorderly conduct.

"I can't believe the defendant's story," Judge McMahon said, "twenty-five dollars or 30 days."

Shortly afterward, before Judge Nathan Margold, Johnson was ordered sent to Gallinger for mental examination and a probation hearing was set for October 7 after it was brought out that the youth had been placed on a year's probation last June for indecent exposure.

Crash Probe Squad Needs More Help, Miller Says

Inspector to See Barrett About Increasing Staff From 3 to 6 Men

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

The 42-man Accident Investigation Unit of the Metropolitan Police Department should have six investigators, Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the Traffic Division said yesterday.

The unit is now functioning with three investigators. Maj. Robert J. Barrett, chief of police, has cut the number of investigators from nine to three since he assumed office on July 1.

The latest cut which went into effect September 1 abolished a four-man hit-and-run squad. For the first eight months of this year the squad had investigated 734 cases for the AIU.

Miller to See Barrett

Inspector Miller said he would confer Monday with Major Barrett to discuss the need for more investigators. He explained that standard procedure for an accident investigation unit was to have one investigator for each six men in the unit.

"The investigator supplements the work of the "uniform man," Inspector Miller said. "It is the function of the investigator to follow up the report made by the uniform men in contacting and interviewing the defendants, complainants and witnesses in the accidents."

The cut in the number of investigators has forced Inspector Miller to issue orders to the precinct captains to have their men in the scout cars to make their own drunk driving tests and their own investigations in hit-and-run accidents.

Arrests Fall Off

AIU statistics show that since the precincts have been making their own drunk-driving tests the number of arrests fell from 37 in July to 12 in August. Orders to the precincts on the hit-and-run cases did not go into effect until September 2 and no statistics are available yet.

A. Robert Forster, assistant director of Northwestern University Traffic Institute, under whose guidance the AIU was formed, told The Washington Post that the effectiveness of the entire AIU unit might be lost if they did not have the necessary investigators to correlate the work.

Motor Vehicle Director George Keneipp said he planned to discuss the removal of the six investigators with Major Barrett but did not wish to make any comment until after the discussion.

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District division of American Automobile Association, criticized the reduction of the investigating unit. He said that with the increase in traffic accidents the police department should be increasing the personnel.

Inspector Miller explained that the reason the conference was set for Monday was to make it possible for Lieut. William J. Inverman, chief investigator for the AIU, to attend.

D. C. Police Streamline Index System

The Police Department yesterday inaugurated a streamlined system of indexing and filing administrative orders and correspondence in a move to modernize operations.

Walter H. Thomas, assistant superintendent of police, said the new system was devised by a special board of officials appointed last month to remove obsolete orders from the files and bring others up to date.

The new method applies to general, special and memorandum orders and other correspondence received at the precincts from Administrative Headquarters.

Precinct stations and bureaus were instructed to cross index all orders received. Orders are first to be read to all members in each command, then posted on the bulletin boards and finally carefully filed. "Out" slips must be used whenever orders are removed from the file.

Casey, Leviness Tax Evasion Trial Dates Set

Baltimore, Sept. 5 (AP).—Trial dates for Eugene B. Casey, former White House assistant, and Charles T. Leviness, former chairman of the Board of Liquor License Commissioners and State Board of Correction, on charges of income tax evasion, were set today by U. S. District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn.

The attorney said Casey would be given his second trial October 20 on charges of evading $70,384 in taxes in 1941-43, when he was assistant to the late President Roosevelt. The original trial last March resulted in a hung jury.

Another Federal suit was filed against Casey here yesterday by the McCarthy Brothers, a Chicago real estate firm. They sued for $28,000 allegedly due them as commissions on sale of a Chicago building.

Leviness will be tried October 6 on charges of evading $9,496.76 in taxes in 1943 and 1944.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—Several hundred Roanoke women, members of the local chapter of the "Little Below the Knee" (LBKC) Club, will parade through this city Saturday in protest against the lengthening of skirts.

This parade, however, apparently will be a more elaborate affair than others being held in various parts of the country.

The floats will feature displays designed to point up the similarity between the fashions of 25 years ago and the "new" fashions of today.

Movement of commercial crops of peaches is being completed from the belt currently, the last to move being the Hales and the Elbertas. Prices have ruled strong—from $2.50 to $3 a bushel here. Stock has been good.

End of the peach harvest was also indicated in the USDA Bureau of Market's daily field report today, which said it was closing up the peach survey and is ready to start the apple reports.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 5 (AP).—William J. Graham of Pittsburgh, president of Cumberland Airways, Inc., said last night he will not be interested in renewing his lease to operate the Cumberland Municipal Airport unless relations with the city are improved.

Graham said he is "not very well pleased with petty politics" in a statement replying to the recent claim of Mayor Thomas S. Post that the city was "sold down the river" when it leased the airport to Graham's firm.

Graham said he agreed with Mayor Post that the city should operate the airport "if the mayor persists in his present attitude." Terms of the lease are due for renegotiation December 31.

CAB Begins Full Probe of 2 Va. Crashes

The Civil Aeronautics Board is conducting a "full" inquiry into two Falls Church (Va.) plane crashes which, within 16 hours, took the lives of two persons and seriously injured two others.

A spokesman for the CAB's accident investigation division said yesterday the investigation would entail a complete analysis of the wreckage of three planes involved in the two crashes. The probe, CAB said, may determine whether either of the accidents could be attributed to malfunctions or other "abnormal causes."

Miss Agnes Louise Brady, principal of the James Madison School in Arlington, and Ferdinand H. Kirchman, owner of a Washington welding shop, were killed late Wednesday when their light plane collided over the Falls Church air park with a small monoplane piloted by William G. Sauerwein, a Marine Corps veteran. Sauerwein was critically injured.

The second crash occurred Thursday morning, when a plane piloted by Miss Margaret Vaughan, a Civil Authority link trainer instructress, plummeted to the ground two miles from the airport just as CAB investigators had arrived to probe the first accident. She told officials at the airport that the plane's engine started to miss as she took off from the airport on a flight to Harrisburg, Pa., and cut out entirely when she circled and tried to return to the flying field.

Even before they had begun their investigation of the fatal accident, the CAB investigators went to the scene of the second crash, where they obtained gasoline samples from the wrecked plane to determine if the fuel was in any way adulterated. The plane reportedly had been refueled at the Falls Churc hairport shortly before the takeoff.

Officials at Arlington Hospital last night reported a "slight improvement" in the condition of Sauerwein, who suffered fractures of both legs and severe head and facial lacerations. Miss Vaughan, who sustained serious head and facial injuries, was reported resting comfortably at the same hospital.

The boat captain said his supply was obtained from the Choptank River, and were about the same quality as last year. He reported selling them for $2.80 to $3 a bushel.

Two Bay Islands Granted Loan to Build Power Plant

Tangier and Smith Islands in Chesapeake Bay are going modern.

Yesterday the Rural Electrification Administration approved a loan of $207,000 to finance electrification of the two islands.

The plant will be on Tangier but will serve Smith Island by a power line across 10 miles of water. Smith Island, with 900 population, is in Maryland; Tangier, with 1100, is a part of Virginia.

According to REA officials, the loan was a shot in the arm to the islanders. It will bring them movies, a municipal water system, a street lighting system of 60 lamps, refrigeration facilities for storage of processing of the islands' chief products, crabs, oysters and other seafoods. Until now all have been hauled on the day of catching to plants on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, 12 miles away.

Town Planning Starts

But it also has started them planning a lot more things. At a town meeting a five-year economic and social plan was drawn this week. It includes a health clinic (there is one doctor and no dentist on the two islands), a community center and town hall, a public library, an airport to speed transportation of seafood to Washington, Baltimore and Richmond, the islands' chief markets.

In addition Tangier plans a better school system, including a lighted athletic field. It is seeking a woodworking shop, a dry cleaning and laundry plant, a machine shop, a beauty shop and a shoe repair shop. None of these has ever operated on the islands.

No Autos There

There are no automobiles or houses on either island. Last month an automobile visited Tangier and furnished rides for the youngsters—in many cases the first first sight they had had of such vehicles.

Most transportation is by bicycle, although there are two motor scooters on Tangier. All hauling is done by pushcarts.

Years ago Tangier Island had an electric plant that served 40 families from dusk until midnight. It burned out about 10 years ago, and was never rebuilt.

The new plant will serve 400 consumers, and extend over 18 miles of lines. The organization is known as the Chesapeake Islands Electric Cooperative. Its president is Town Clerk Henry B. Jander. REA hopes it will be completed and in operation by March 1.

Says Quicksand Can't Swallow You

Chicago (U.P.).—The next time you get caught in a bog of quicksand, don't be alarmed, advises Philip C. Rutledge.

You won't sink in any further than your waist, he said.

Rutledge, professor of civil engineering at Northwestern University's Technological Institute, said the idea that quicksand swallows persons whole is just a myth for use by writers of adventure stories and horror movies.

"Civil engineers have known for years that there isn't a place in the world where a person will sink from sight in quicksand," Rutledge said, "but the public has been led to believe that once a person gets stuck in the sand and water mixture, he is doomed."

Rutledge explained that a person can't sink deeper than his waist in quicksand, because sand and water have a specific gravity of between 1.8 and 2, while humans have a specific gravity of .95.

"The frightening thing about being stuck in quicksand is the restriction of movement," he said, "but there's no reason for panic."

Anyone who sets foot on quicksand can get stuck in the mixture, he said, and just about anyone in such a predicament can free himself by swimming through the morass.

"It's best," he added, "to have a companion along to assist."

Girl Scouts Proud To Own Ship

Pacific Grove, Calif. (U.P.).—Pacific Girl Scout mariners bragged today that they were the first "ship" in the country to own their own training craft—a surplus Navy LCPR (landing craft personnel ramp).

The 13 members of the group acquired their 36-foot motor vessel under a Federal ruling granting surplus goods to Boy Scouts after Representative E. K. Bramblett (R., Calif.) succeeded in getting the law changed to include sea-going Girl Scouts.

The girls have named the LCPR "The Pegasus" and their fathers are designing a cabin for it. Then they will get instruction from the Monterey Coast Guard and put to sea—at least out into Monterey Bay.

Rescues Pet Cat Stuck in Fish Can

Goshen, Ind. (U.P.).—Paul Lopshire came home and found his pet cat lying in the street, apparently the victim of a hit-run driver. He ran to her rescue, however, when he noticed her tail twitching.

He found her smothering with her head stuck in a salmon can. Lopshire went to work with a pair of tin snips and his pet soon recovered.

Veteran Barber Couldn't Escape

Philip, S. Dak. (U.P.).—W. L. (Bill) Church, who came here to homestead from Iowa in 1905 because he was tired of the barber business, finally retired this month.

Church said cowboys and ranchers soon discovered that he was a barber and forced him to set up a makeshift chair in a saloon. Later he decided he might as well open a regular shop.

When he sold his shop this month, Church agreed to help out when business was brisk.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Recently a pail of water containing a commercial cleanser was accidentally spilled on an expensive rug. The rug, which has been successfully shampooed before, has a large spot where the dye from the dark background has stained the floral pattern. Can you suggest a remedy? K. K.

Send your rug to a commercial rug cleaning establishment for treatment. Even they may not be able to remove the spot made by the running dye. Perhaps the rug can be redyed successfully in a solid color.

Is there any way to remove dried shellac stains from a fast-color cotton material? Turpentine didn't work. J. D.

Alcohol will often remove shellac stains. Soak the spots in it, then sponge over a pad of absorbent cloth. Or you might try softening the spots by rubbing lard or petroleum jelly on both sides, letting it remain for awhile, then sponging with dry cleaning fluid.

My spode earthenware in the "Antoinettee" pattern is not being manufactured now. I wonder if any of your readers have pieces for sale or can tell me where to find it. V. J. B.

Can anyone help V. J. B. locate pieces of this spode?

1. I have a dark blue Wedgewood tray which has been used on a desk. There are now several ink stains on the dark blue. What can be used to remove these stains without affecting the color?

2. What can be done to prevent throw rugs from curling at the ends? G. K.

1 If a thorough washing has not removed the ink stains, try sponging with denatured alcohol, carbon tetrachloride or benzine. Strong soapsuds with a few drops of ammonia added may also be effective. Or place glycerine or soapless shampoo on the spots, leave it there awhile to soften the ink particles, then wash the tray thoroughly.

2. Fastening strips of thin rubber netting at least 3 inches wide along the edges of rugs on the underside will keep them from curling up and make them skid-proof, too. There is also a skid-proof powder (sold in the rug section of a Washington department store) which should be helpful in keeping the rugs flat on the floor. It may be necessary to dampen the rugs and dry them in a flattened position in order to straighten out the curling ends.

How can I remove mustard stains from a pink crepe dress? B. D.

Sponging the spots with denatured alcohol should remove them. If the dress is acetate rayon, dilute the alcohol by adding two parts water to one part alcohol. Otherwise use the alcohol full strength. Test it first on an inside seam of the dress to be sure it won't harm the color.

I would appreciate your giving me all the pertinent facts concerning preparations for a christening and a christening party. F. H. G.

First step in making ready for a christening is to choose the godmothers—usually two for a girl, and one for a boy—and the godfathers—two for a boy and one for a girl, if you are a member of a church where godparents are customary. If a godparent whom the parents particularly want is unable to be present, invite a proxy to serve at the ceremony.

If the christening is to be in church or baptistry, the clergyman must of course be consulted and the place and hour arranged. Babies are often christened during or at the close of the regular service on Sunday, but if a good deal is to be made of the christening, a weekday is chosen and an hour at which the church is not otherwise occupied. Invite friends to the christening by telephone or in person.

Guests at the christening seat themselves in the pews nearest the font. Ask the clergyman for exact directions as to where sponsors are to stand and other details of the ceremony. It's a good idea to print the baby's exact name on a slip of paper and give it to the clergyman before the ceremony.

Unless forbidden by your church, a home christening is usually simpler, prettier and easier. A bowl—usually of silver (often borrowed)—can serve as a font. Arrange it in the living room on a small high table covered with a dark cloth. Arrange flowers in a flat circle around the bowl, their stems turned in and concealed by the base of the bowl.

At the hour set for the christening, the clergyman enters the room first and takes his place at the font. The guests, who stand during the ceremony, make way for him, forming an aisle. A godmother carries the baby and follows the clergyman. The other godparents enter immediately behind her. The baby is usually clothed entirely in white for its christening.

Almost immediately after the ceremony, a luncheon or afternoon tea is served, depending on the time of day. A traditional feature of the christening tea is "cake and caudle." The cake is usually a white one, elaborately iced, sometimes with the baby's initials and garlands of pink roses. The caudle usually served is hot eggnog, drunk out of little punch cups. A cold punch might be substituted in hot weather. One is supposed to eat the cake as a sign that he partakes of the baby's hospitality and is therefore its friend, and to drink the caudle to its health and prosperity.

Since baptism is a sacrament, no fee is required of the parents by the church, but a donation may be given.

First Aid for Parents

Midnight—the baby screaming with pain—and you at a loss what to do till the doctor comes. Is there any more terrifying time in a parent's life? Yet such panic could easily be averted by knowing beforehand the symptoms and emergency treatments of the common childhood illnesses.

Croup, for instance, is characterized by hoarse, barking cries. It's difficult in the early stages to distinguish between simple croup, which is not serious, and the severe kind—laryngitis—which is. Therefore, call the doctor at once.

Meanwhile, baby should be kept in a warm, moist atmosphere. If your house has a good supply of hot water, turn on the taps in the bathroom and keep baby in there. Otherwise, a steaming kettle in a warm room will do.

Susie Q

"Would you believe it if I told you I made this dress, myself, Susie?"

When an electric mixer goes to work for you in your kitchen it takes over many of the most fatiguing and irritating jobs necessary in meal preparation.

Gadgets Whip Up Tantalizing Meals in Jig-time

Motor-Mixers Free Kitchen Slave

HOME cooking is at a crossroads.

For years researchers busily divided the kitchen into parts and lined up specialized tools to go with each kitchen task. For years we assumed that all women enjoyed working in the kitchen.

We have now changed our tune. In the first place, it simply was not true that a woman needed a vast assortment of equipment to prepare "tantalizing meals." Besides, the more utensils one used, the more there were to wash and put away. Why make more work for oneself? This is an age pressed for time.

In the second place we discovered that some women are not interested in staying in the kitchen all day, every day.

As a result of all this, cooking is becoming a production problem rather than a handicraft. In this situation no one cooks at all in the sense of preparing food. Rather some member of the family is custodian of the kitchen.

Mechanical Skills Needed

This person assembles the raw foodstuffs, subjects them to heat and cold, regulates temperatures and directs motor-driven appliances. The home cook is the machine operator, mechanic, maintenance crew and production foreman all rolled into one. This requires skills that grandmother never had to master in her home.

In this light, what equipment do you need in your kitchen? For example, would an electric food mixer be of any use to you?

The next question is what kind of meals do you serve? Are you more interested in saving money than saving time? Or would you rather cut both the food budget and time spent in the kitchen?

The findings of Grace K. Tanner, designer of kitchen equipment, who has made a thorough study of mixers in relation to meal production, may help you.

Miss Tanner analyzed five cookbooks and found that three operations involving food mixers existed in typical recipes. The first one was stirring, necessary in making pie fillings, gravies, frostings, puddings, sauces and cereal on top of the range. These recipes require a watchful eye. One can't walk away for long while they are on the range. This is annoying and time consuming.

Next she considered the recipe group including fruit whips, batters, whipped cream, ice cream and salad dressing as well as thickening for gravies. All these required whipping and blending. What is annoying here is the effort and time involved. Miss Tanner found that the electric mixer produced greater volume with less effort and in less time than the hand beater.

The third group of recipes she studied included cakes, cookies, boiled frostings, candy and mashed potatoes—all of which required beating.

End Irritation, Fatigue

The beating required in these recipes often causes irritation and fatigue when done by hand. The electric food mixer is popular for this group because it does eliminate irritation and fatigue. So far we do not have a timer that shuts the motor off when the desired texture of the batter is obtained.

Do you use all of these recipe groupings in a week of preparing meals? If you do, an electric mixer would produce good results with less effort in half the time and prove less annoying than a hand beater.

Miss Tanner's study proves these points. She found that the benefits of an electric mixer increase in proportion to size of the family and are affected by family income. She points out that families on the lowest food budgets use foods requiring stirring twice as often as those with more food money to spend.

Cooking for one or two, particularly if one or both members of the family are working outside the home, tends to result in meals that require less mixing. These small families do not serve many homemade puddings, cakes, gravies and cream sauces.

On the other hand, mothers of large families do use recipes involving stirring, blending and beating.

If you are trying to cut the food budget you will make your own cakes, cookies and salad dressings. You can make them at home for less than you can buy them ready-made.

Early mixers were criticized adversely because they were hard to clean, the surface chipped, motors were not powerful enough to move stiff batters and the beaters did not reach the bottom of the bowl. To many persons accustomed to hand methods, the mixer proved annoying.

Models now on the market or scheduled to appear this year have overcome these objections. Some types are lighter in weight and would adapt to the needs of small families, while others are heavy duty models suitable for cooking larger quantities.

Models Improved

Controls are placed within thumb reach on some styles and dials include the phrases "mixing cakes" or "mashing potatoes" beside the speed controls.

For those who want home cooking in less time, motor-driven appliances can be of great help.

One does need to learn to use them. And once one has a mixer, it would seem inefficient not to use this power tool for as many different cooking activities as possible.

The electric food mixer comes with attachments for taking the juice from oranges, slicing and shredding vegetables, mixing milkshakes or making ice cream, to name a few.

Because this motor-driven tool is not light enough to pick up and carry across the kitchen easily, to be of most use it should be kept on a work table or counter top where it is within reach.

Many women will find that for every day cooking in busy households, a light hand beater that plugs into any convenience outlet and mashes potatoes at the stove, makes mayonnaise in a salad jar or whips cream ready to serve, is an efficient tool.

Some persons would rather not learn the skills needed to "cook mechanically." Some would rather make use of ready-cooked frozen meals, packaged mixes and buy other preparations from the corner grocer and bakery. Many would like to do the latter, but find it too expensive.

If you use many recipes requiring "agitation" you will want to investigate electric mixers. Miss Tanner also notes that many husbands have reported that they enjoy helping to get dinner if they can use the electric mixer. Here is one way of getting family cooperation.

Appetite Grows for Salad Dressing

America's expanding appetite for salads boosted the mayonnaise and salad dressing industry into the "hundred-million-dollar" class in 1946, the Commerce Department reports.

Commercial production totaled 57,900,000 gallons, the highest on record except in 1944, when production was 800,000 gallons higher.

Higher prices last year brought the sales value to about 112 million dollars, more than 16 million dollars above the 1944 sales.

"The average consumer in this country now uses three times as much salad dressing as he did 20 years ago," the department said. "Per capita consumption has risen steadily from one pint in 1928 to over three pints in 1946."

Child Learns By Example Of Parents

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The end and aim of all good discipline is that the child shall learn to discipline himself. There cannot always be a watchful parent at hand to tell the child how he shall behave. All adults should have reached the stage of being able to refrain from temptations even though they be surrounded by them.

We do not expect that the child be temptation-proof when small. We help him by removing temptations. The mother will not leave her pocketbook available for the child to rifle it. She will put all breakable objects out of the reach of the curious, young child. She will not ask the child leading questions, which, if answered truthfully, would result in punishment. She recognizes that children must grow in strength and character.

Learning From Mother

While the child is learning—and good behavior has to be learned and practiced—the parent herself should illustrate good conduct. The Ten Commandments are our guide to ethical living and through them the child will learn right from wrong.

Eventually, through explanation and through an illustration of right conduct, the child will develop a conscience. He will feel guilty when he does what the parents have told him is wrong. He will feel guilty because he will hurt his loving parents by undesirable conduct. He cannot evade his conscience, once it has become a factor in his life, and then he will go according to its dictates even though no one is around to tell him what to do, or to tell on him if he doesn't act as he knows he should.

There are so many periods in a child's life when his natural desires will be in conflict with those of the parents and all adults. This is when it behooves the parent not to give the idea that everything the child wants to do is wrong. She should turn over backward to give the child every possible opportunity to do as he pleases so that he will, in turn, cooperate with her when some conduct is impossible.

Walk Like an Actress

Theater Can Teach How to Step Proudly

By Ida Jean Kain

Come on girls . . . chest up. I wish I could take all the flat-chested, droopy girls who are inclined to regard themselves as wallflowers and show them how to snap out of it.

But first, find out if you've got the stuff and can take it. Brace yourself . . . the chief reason you are self-conscious and lack poise is that you are self-centered. If you spend time feeling sorry for yourself, and make no effort to put the other person at ease, there's your trouble.

Perhaps you think you have an inferiority complex. But you've never done anything to be ashamed of! Actually there isn't any such thing as an inferiority complex, and knowing that should help you get over one! What it is is merely a feeling of inadequacy you may feel a bit shy, and perhaps ill at ease, but that can be quickly banished.

Walk Proudly

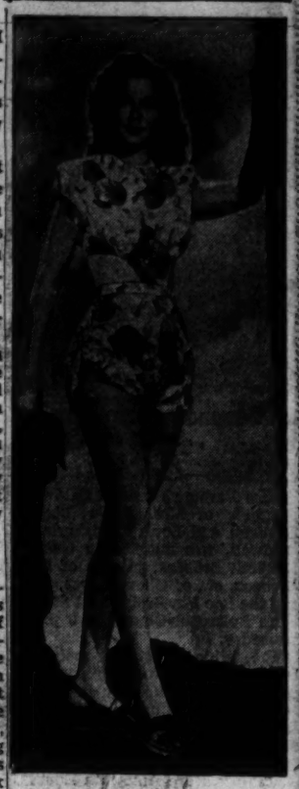
How? It's done with the diaphragm. The posture authorities who coach actresses in the art of beautiful movement say the diaphragm is the center of balance and that all movement should stem from there. Try it out . . . all that is required in the way of stage properties is a room and a mirror, preferably a long mirror. Facing the mirror, walk into the room as you would normally. Now go back and walk in as if you had just been crowned Miss America. Lift your diaphragm . . . reach up with the top of your head, and come in with confidence and poise. Wait, go back and try again . . . you raised your shoulders . . . shoulders must be relaxed and easy for graceful movements. This time as you enter the room, leading with the diaphragm, notice how light your step is. Using the diaphragm as the center of balance lets you glide along, instead of clump.

Concentrate on holding the diaphragm up, shoulders easy, head high, and you won't have to pay any attention to your feet; just point the toes straight ahead and keep upper legs close together. Above all, do not look down at your feet!

Beauty Is Natural

Centering all movement from the diaphragm brings the body into balance and seems to take away all the bulging inches. And once you get into the habit, it's perfectly natural to walk and move beautifully.

Follow through with the diaphragm-up rule when seated in a chair . . . at school, or at a tea party, sit up beautifully. To make it easy and natural, sit with back of hips against the chair.



Only practice makes perfect posture and graceful movements, says Marguerite Chapman, poised young screen star. When Marguerite was 15 she asked for a full-length mirror for her birthday; then she practiced walking, sitting and standing beautifully . . . practiced until it became habit.

The 'Extra' Shelf

A few things that should be on the "extra" shelf of every home in case of the inevitable emergency are percolator tops, electric fuses, an assortment of corks, waxed paper, paper napkins, a box of tacks, an extra can opener, a few household tools, extra electric light bulbs, a ball of string or twine, bicycle tape. How many of them have you on hand?

Airfield for Naval Academy Urged by Board of Visitors

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 5 (AP).—For the Naval Academy to be without an airfield is as inappropriate as for it to be without a harbor and waterways, the Academy Board of Visitors declared in a report made public today.

In urging that an airfield be developed without delay, the board said, "aviation indoctrination must be fully integrated into the instruction program of the Naval Academy in a basic professional category, and it has been so recognized in the academic calendar."

A proposed academy air base near Sandy Point, subject of bitter controversy with residents of the area and shipping interests, was indorsed by the House Armed Services Committee last summer. A Senate committee deferred action until the next session of Congress. The Navy had requested an initial appropriation of 12 million dollars for the project.

The airfield recommendation was one of several made by the board in summarizing its three-day visit last April. One of the proposals emerged from the board's view of its own function.

Without an opportunity to become fully aware of academy policies and problems, the report noted, the annual visit "can be of little value." To overcome this, the board reiterated a suggestion of the 1946 board that terms of membership be lengthened and staggered.

Appointments have been made each year by the President, President of the Senate and Speaker of the House.

Besides the airfield, the board, headed by Rear Admiral Nat T. Cluverius, jr., retired, listed these as pressing needs:

A larger auditorium, additional playing fields and recreational areas, suitable quarters for enlisted personnel on duty at the academy, new classrooms and laboratory facilities and a field house.

For future requirements, the board supported plans for expanding the academy to accommodate as many as 5150 midshipmen, development of the postgraduate school to meet new requirements and turning over administrative control of Tome School at Bainbridge, Md., to the academy superintendent.

The report was signed by the 13 educators, businessmen and legislators who made the inspection. Cluverius is president of Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute.

State May Lift Welfare Cost Share, Board Member Hints

Richmond, Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—A hint that the Mitchell Commission may recommend revision of the State's welfare laws so that the costs, aside from Federal allotments, would be borne two thirds by the State and one third by the localities came today in the course of a six-hour public hearing conducted by the commission here.

This chance, which would replace the present system whereby the State generally may reimburse the localities from 50 to 62½ per cent of welfare expenses, was suggested by State Senator E. L. Breeden, jr., of Norfolk, commission member and chairman of its subcommittee on public assistance.

Breeden propounded the 2-to-1 cost sharing idea in questions to several of the more than 30 persons who testified at the session in the Senate chamber, and most of them agreed enthusiastically to the suggestion, which would not only increase the State's contributions but simplyfy the sharing calculations.

Care For Juvenile Delinquents

Immediate attention to improve juvenile delinquents was urged by the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Commission also heard Delegate James E. Gardner of Richmond charge that the State short changed the city of Richmond not less than $176,000 in public relief funds during the past fiscal year.

Mrs. Claude E. Ely of Suffolk, president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, said that the federation is p lacing particular emphasis on public welfare matters.

Improvements Advocated

"The following improvements we are convinced need immediate attention," she said:

"1. That the State should increase its financial aid so that staffs of Juvenile and Domestic Relations Courts may be organized to give social services to the large number of children and adults brought before the myearly.

"2. To chance the present conditions of the receiving homes for children and place them under the direct supervision of the State department of welfare.

"3. To assist localities in improving the detention services for children.

"4. To raise the standards of the State training schools for juvenile delinquents by providing adequate and well-trained staffs and adequate housing facilities with a sufficient number of small dormitories, a comprehensive type of vocational and academic training and competent parole supervision, where necessary, of children after release.

"5. To maintain a salary schedule comparable to agencies employing professional staffs with similar training, experience and duties."

Pulaski School Complaints Go to Miller

Richmond, Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—Governor Tuck has referred to the State Department of Education complaints concerning conditions in the one-story, two-room building temporarily used as a school at Fairlawn, war-born village in Pulaski County, it was learned today.

G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, said that the governor had received and referred to him complaints from Mrs. C. Y. Baird, a resident of Fairlawn, concerning the condition of the school where a threat of a strike has been made by some 110 pupils next Monday unless better facilities are provided.

Miller said he advised Mrs. Baird by telephone that under the Virginia code the State Board of Education was the authority to close or order corrections in a school building only if such conditions constitute a fire hazard. He added that he would confirm this by letter to Mrs. Baird.

Miller said he advised Mrs. Baird that parents of any children between 7 and 16 years who are kept from attending school could be charged with violation of the State's compulsory school attendance laws.

The complainants termed the building a "fire trap" and an "eyesore" at a community grievance meeting this week. The group adopted a resolution asserting that inside sanitary facilities were lacking.

1947 Maryland Tobacco Sales Made Record for Poundage

Baltimore, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Department of Agriculture reported today that auction sales of the 1946 southern Maryland tobacco crop set a new record this year of 40,603,906 pounds.

The sales ended officially August 29, with clean-up sales continuing until September 1, and though poundage set a new mark for the 107 years for which records are available, the average of $44.67 per 100 pounds was down $12.14 from last year.

Total deliveries, including receipts on the Baltimore hogshead market, were estimated at about 44,500,000 pounds, the department said, wit happroximately another four million pounds estimated still in the hands of farmers.

The sharpest decreases from last year were in the medium and low qualities of dull crop, dull tips, seconds and ground leaves. These were down from $20 to $39 generally. Declines for good to choice dull crop, some good dull, fair to choice bright crop, fine seconds and most nondescript were considerably smaller. Most decreases for them were $10 to $18, but on a few small volume grades the drops amounted to more than $40 a hundred.

The department said that larger proportions of better quality grades, as compared with 1946 sales, especially in bright and dull crop of light red color, minimized the drop in the general average considerably.

Grower dissatisfaction with prices received was manifested throughout the selling season of 19 weeks, starting April 22.

The department said reports on the 1947 crop, now being harvested, indicated irregular growth, with the condition on August 1 indicating a crop of 34,560,000 ponuds.

Prince Georges Federation Fails to Get Gaming Views

Leaders of Prince Georges County's too businessmen's groups yesterday refused to go on record as to legalizing gambling in the county.

The County Civic Federation had voted Thursday night to sample its member groups on that proposal, and also on establishment of county liquor dispensaries.

"Both subjects are of an extremely controversial nature," Charles T. Hartley, president of the Independent Trade Association, said, "and I do not feel that I could speak for the ITA without its having taken a definite stand on the matters."

Ernest Maier, chamber of commerce presdient, said, "I would have to talk with the members before I could make a statement regarding the chamber's views on these questions."

Meanwhile, letters asking the civic federation's component groups views ar ebeing prepared for distribution. Walter F. Mulligan, the organization's president, estimated that it might take five or six months to obtain a complete survey.

Dr. Eric Durand, federation delegate from the Temple Hills Citizens Association, who offered the resolution to sample the member groups, said he did so because he felt the delegates to the federation, not having been instructed on the questions, should not act without referring them to their groups.

Raised Informally

The subjects were raised informally by Daniel Greene, chairman of the laws and legislative committee.

Opposition within the meeting was expressed by Arthur Brumel, Riverdale, who stated that gambling is a "bad habit" and if legalized would attract an undesirable crowd to the county.

Dr. Durand said he understood that a bill seeking legalized gambling for Prince Georges may be introduced at the next session of the State Legislature.

Work Holds No Fear For Aged Farmer

Glenwood City, Wis.—Old Frank Norddell is looking forward to another harvest season. The fact that he just celebrated his 90th birthday doesn't seem to bother him at all.

The veteran farmed thinks nothing of heading out to the woodpile every morning and cutting his own supply of firewood. He also is in full charge of the "pig department" on the farm now operated by his son John.

Frozen Hamburgers A Bargain at 4 Cents

Lemmon, S. D., (U.P.).—A Milwaukee hamburger chain made good on its advertising when a Lemmon newsman clipped a newspaper coupon and mailed it with 20 cents for five hamburgers.

The chain spent 78 cents in postage alone to send the five budget burgers special delivery, packed on dry ice, to the long-distance customer. Five persons agreed that the burgers, complete with onions and pickles, tasted wonderful even if their frigid state.

Did Mail It

Man Unjailed By Tracing Of Letter

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 5 (AP). Charles Carter, 31, was a free man with a clean record today after a misdelivered letter caused a miscarriage of justice which sent him to jail for 21 days.

Carter was sentenced to 60 days' imprisonment August 12 when he was convicted in police court of failing to mail a special delivery letter containing $20, given him by a friend, Frank Williams, and addressed to Williams' wife in New York.

Mrs. Williams wrote a letter, used as evidence against Carter, saying she had not received the money from her husband.

Yesterday, Fredericksburg police were notified by New York postal officials that the letter had been traced to the building in which Mrs. Williams lived. It was delivered to another family named Williams.

The recipients said that when they found the letter was not intended for them, they put it on their mail box in the hall. No trace of the letter has been found.

College Probes Mexican Tomatoes

Berkeley, Calif. (U.P.).—Discovery of the basic genetic differences is the aim of intensive research being carried on by the University of California College of Agriculture here.

Under the direction of Dr. James A. Jenkins, geneticist, the college has collected about 150 samples of wild and cultivated tomatoes from Mexico, wheer the tomator plant is believe dto have originated.

A greater variety of hereditary material or genes, seems to exist in Mexican tomatoes, Jenkins found. Some less desirable Mexican varieties are dying out, but they may contain useful genes not found in American plants, he explained.

"Wild tomatoes are no larger than marbles," he said. "They originated thousands of years ago and still exist. Yet today cultivated tomatoes are larger than baseballs. We are trying to discover what genetic changes occurred during this long period of improvement."

Bread Stays Fresher With New Shortening

Chicago (U.P.).—A meat processing company has mixed glycerin with lard and come out with a baking shortening which it claims will make 48-hour old bread taste as if it had just come out of the oven.

The firm's research staff figured grocers normally return 7 to 10 per cent of the bread delivered because it has lost its freshness. And housewives throw away 10 to 15 per cent of the loaves they have bought for the same reason.

The company said the neew shortening will keep bread five to six days before it grows stale.

Helps Tire Changer, Then Robs Him

Birmingham, Ala. (U.P.).The "good samaritan" who offered to help F. B. Foster fix a flat tire on a lonely road near Birmingham turned out to be something else.

Two men pulled up in another car while Foster was struggling with his tire and one of them obligingly held a flashlight for him while he put on a spare.

When Foster turned around to thank his helper, he found himself lookink down a pistol barrel. The "good samaritan" then relieved him of his pocketbook, which contained about $550.

Foster said the two men then debated about whether or not to take his car, but decided against it because they were afraid he hadn't fixed the flat very well and that they might have more tire trouble.

Big Passenger Plane Has 400 Instruments

Seattle, (U.P.).—On the new Boeing Stratoliner there are approximately 400 instruments on the flight deck, all of them to be watched while in flight.

Hundreds Visit Waterford's Exhibit of Arts and Crafts

Waterford, Va., Sept. 5 (Spl.).—Hundreds of visitors thronged the streets of this eighteenth century town today as the Waterford Foundation opened its three-day annual exhibit of arts and crafts.

Conspicuous at the opening of this fourth annual show was an increased number of hand-made articles, indicating that the Waterford Foundation is accomplishing its aim: "To encourage work in arts and crafts in Loudoun County, particularly in the Waterford community."

Exhibit in Old Mill

Center of attraction for visitors, in addition to the old homes opened to the public, is the exhibit in the Old Mill, a portion of which is believed to date from 1740.

The kitchen of the mill is completely furnished with colonial equipment varying from fireplace accessories to sausage mill and spice chest. A hostess in Quaker costume, Mrs. S. Lee Douglas of Lovettsville, explains the purpose of the articles.

Hundreds of hooked and braided rugs are on exhibition, together with bed quilts and spreads, examples of woodworking from a class conducted by Lawrence L. Taylor, children's paper cut-out by Mrs. Clara Briggs Metzger, painted articles by Mrs. Frederic Stabler, beer mugs and salad bowls by David Crooker of Purcellville, and refinished furniture.

Elves and Paintings

Among the notable exhibits is one of wood elves and other small figures made from nuts, seeds and similar materials by Mrs. Alice Hutchison of Aldie.

The third floor of the mill is devoted to work of Loudoun County artists, with example by Maj. R. B. Lawrence, Miss Betty Tiffany, Mrs. K. B. Slappey, Mrs. E. A. Marshall, Mrs. Robert S. Pickens, Mrs. Clyde C. Taylor, Mrs. Frances Allen and others.

The Waterford a capella chorus will sing at 4 p. m. (EST) Saturday and Sunday.

2 heads future Double Trouble

Mangum, Okla. (U.P.).—Mrs. Norman Meadows hoped the worst was over after two rattlesnakes killed a young calf in her pasture one week and she killed two rattlesnakes in her yard the next. The buzzards ganged up on the calf—and Mrs. Meadows. Several buzzard swooped down and drove Mrs. Meadows away while other buzzards killed the calf and tried to make off with the carcass.

Wichita, Kans. (U.P.).—Willis Tooley's car was hit by a house. The real estate salesman, showing a house to a prospective buyer, hurried out into the street when he heard a crash. A small house being moved on a truck had sheared a fender off Tooley's parked automobile.

'Auto Salesman' Steals Sheriff's $760 and Badge

Grantsville, W. Va., Sept. 5 (AP). E. V. Arnold, 41-year-old sheriff of Calhoun County, said today he was held up and robbed of $760, his badge and other personal possessions when he went to Upshur County to buy a new automobile.

The sheriff said he had gone to Adrian to buy an automobile when he was approached by a young man who told him of a bargain that was obtainable "down the road." Arnold said he consented to look at it and got into the man's car.

They had driven some distance on what the sheriff described as an isolated road when the motor stopped and the two men got out to push.

Arnold said he was struck as he went around the car, and when he regained consciousness both the man and automobile were gone.

Vacation Ends For 30,000 In Nearby Va.

It was back to school again Thursday for 30,000 northern Virginia school children, but those in the rest of the Greater Washington area still can relax for another week or two.

Arlington County reported registration of 10,069 students so far. They expect the figure will reach 12,750 by Monday when most of the stay-to-the-bitter-end vacationists will probably be back.

Of Arlington's 31 schools, only 30 opened Thursday. The James Madison Elementary School remained closed because of the death of its principal, Miss Agnes Louise Grady, in a Falls Church plane crash Wednesday.

In Fairfax, where 38 schools began operation, Superintendent W. T. Woodson said he expects close to 11,000 students by Monday—about 500 above last year's figures. Neither Fairfax nor Alexandria, where 7000 pupils were expected at the 12 public schools, had definite enrollment figures by last night.

The school bell will not ring until Wednesday in Maryland's Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties. In the District, the summer vacation stretches on until September 22.

In other parts of Maryland, children of Calvert, Anne Arundel and Allegany Counties and the City of Baltimore flocked back to school. Schools are now in session in 15 of the State's 23 counties.

Realty Firm Sues Roosevelt Aide For $30,000

Baltimore, Sept. 5 (AP).—McCarthy Brothers, a Chicago real estate firm, has filed Federal suit for $30,000 against Eugene B. Casey, wartime executive assistant to President Roosevelt, and the United States Fidelity and Guaarntee Co.

The firm claimed it was entitled to $28,000 in real estate transactions involving sale of a Chicago building. The suit said Casey bought the 15-story building for $350,000 in 1934 and sold it recently to the surety company for $900,000.

The brokers alleged they acted as agents and managers for the building, obtaining offers for purchase of the structure. They said they endeavored to sell it to the guarantee company, one of the tenants. The guarantee company, according to the suit, claimed it was not interested but continued to direct negotiations through Chicago attorneys.

Miss Bessie Crone, 226A Q st. nw., has retired after 41 years with the Government Printing Office.

A native of Richmond, Va., Miss Crone worked for the GPO from 1903 until 1910, then lived in Chicago for three years, returning to Washington and the GPO in 1913.

She will continue a special hobby she has had of aiding veterans in the paralytic and mental wards of Walter Reed Hospital. This has been accomplished through the Teagle Club, a group of more than 100 GPO employes who contribute 25 cents apiece each pay day for the purchase of books and other articles. Miss Crone, who named the club for a GPO employe, who lost his life in the war, plans to contribute to this cause the contents of a purse collected for her retirement by fellow-employes.

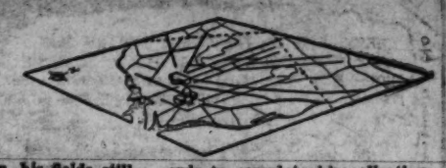
Beautification of Key Bridge Eyesores Suggested



George Vitas, of 2332 19th st. nw., comes up with one of those ideas that makes you wonder, "why didn't I think of that?" He says:

"Every time I canoe past Key Bridge I wonder why something isn't done to dress up those ugly heaps of concrete which are the remains of the old bridge.

"In New England, they'd know what to do. On the crowns of those abandoned abutments there would be six inches of soil. And from this earth would spring a blaze of colorful flowers and vines."

Good idea, George. I've passed it along to Engineer Commissioner General Young.

UNCENSORED REPORT

For obvious reasons, the gentleman who sends this note will remain anonymous:

"I share your pet peeve about too much ice in drinking water —and I work for a Government agency which makes a study of such matters.

"The cooling effect of ice water on the human system is only two per cent greater than the effect of water chilled only to 50 degrees.

"It wasn't so bad when they used ice cubes. But now there's a sinister movement afoot to glaciate the water with flaked ice, making it so stabbingly cold that my innards just can't take it.

"Please don't mention either my name or this bureau if you use my letter, because if you do I'll catch hell for not clearing this with the chief."

PROVOCATIVE IDEA

Aaron Herschfeld, of 1430 Newton st. nw., thinks it's high time we stopped talking about the weather, and started doing something about it.

He suggests that The Washington Post get together with the Weather Bureau, the Army Air Forces, and General Electric's Vincent Schaeffer (the man who starts rainfall by dropping dry ice on clouds).

The possibilities are extremely provocative. Farmer Brown calls up and says, "Please renew my subscription for another year and send me some rain for my crops."

Our plane scoots out and drops some dry ice on his clouds, but the wind shifts and 20,000 people watching a doubleheader at Griffith Stadium are drenched.

Clark Griffith comes looking for the editor with a horsewhip. Mrs. McThistlewhist complains that our rain has caused her rheumatism to act up, and we get ourselves denounced from countless pulpits as "interfering with the will of God."

And the worst of it is that Farmer Brown, his fields still bone dry, cancels his subscription and winds up reading Pravda.

PUBLICITY STUNT

Representatives of Loew's Columbia are drumming up business for that house by depositing nickels in neglected parking meters in the downtown area.

Then they leave a note under the motorist's windshield wiper saying that they hope that his delay in returning to his car was occasioned by his having gone to the Columbia.

INFORMATION PLEASE

The search centers about "Boogie Woogie on the St. Louis Blues" (Earl Hines); "Out The Window" (Count Basie); and "John's Idea" (Andy Kirk).

You're breaking Hans Kindler's heart, Pete.

SIGN LANGUAGE

Neal L. Boykin of 820 Kentucky ave. se. is having a wonderful time rounding up unusual signs. In a Takoma Park (Md.) grocery store he found:

"Remember—no Maryland sales tax on food except confections and pet food you eat at home."

"Quiet — several hundred garments undergoing operation every few hours in our cleaning clinic."

Down in Richmond (Va.) there's a similar sign in a Lucky Strike warehouse:

"Quiet—tobacco asleep."

And on the cash register of a Mt. Pleasant st. restaurant, you'll find:

"Your story has touched my heart. Never before have I met anybody with more (or worse) trouble than you have. Please accept this expression of my sincere sympathy."

Biddle's Heading for U. of Chicago

NEW YORK.—George Bernard Shaw, who probably has collected more royalties than any other playwright in the history of the theater—his royalties in his ninety-first year were over $200,000—says he's broke. That's what he told Gabriel Pascal, who has been producing the movie adaptations of Shaw's works . . . A few years ago, when Pascal asked him to write the dialogue for the film story of St. Francis of Assisi, Shaw refused, explaining: "For 50 years I've been preaching to the world against poverty." Shaw at last has agreed to do the job. "Now is the time for me to write in glorification of the spirit of St. Francis," he told Pascal, "for I have given away all my money and am now poor myself."

If the producers of "Tobacco Road" can lift the ban in Chicago—it was banned during the regime of Mayor Kelly—James Barton is ready to become Jeeter Lester again for a long run there . . .

The State Department will make its final decision this week on the employes who were fired on suspicion of being disloyal. If the department rules against reinstating them or giving them an opportunity to resign, their lawyer says that this will end the matter, for there is no legal recourse . . .

Francis Biddle, despairing of getting the Senate to confirm him for a new post, will write a book and lecture at the University of Chicago.

Meyer Davis is introducing his son, Emery Davis, into the bandleading business. Emery, who eventually will succeed his father, will have his first opportunity in conducting the Davis orchestra at the George Hamlen Shaw debutante party on Long Island.

The Treasury Department's recent list of America's highest-salaried people included the name of Eddie Bracken, the actor. This is the same Eddie Bracken who, in campaigning against Roosevelt in '44, announced that he feared a boycott by Hollywood's producers and that his income would be impaired as a penalty for his campaigning . . . Representative Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts flew to Ireland and England last weekend. He hasn't been there since his father was the ambassador.

Louis Calhern finished his Hollywood chores and returned to New York yesterday. He leaves for Chicago next week, for a neck operation.

Abbott and Costello will inaugurate a Nation-wide drive for the Lou Costello Junior Youth Foundation, which needs $80,000 annually.

The London newspapers and the film trade-press criticized Rita Hayworth for using side-door entrances and exists at her hotel and the restaurants and theaters she attended. Miss Hayworth, who came home yesterday, revealed last night that her trips through London were under the supervision of the home office, whose officials insisted that she use the side doors . . . Miss Hayworth protested, pointed to the crowds waiting outside to see her, and reminded the home office's emissaries: "But the British are undemonstrative, aren't they?" . . . "Perhaps," she was told, "but if we tested that, you'd get trampled on and hurt."
